LADY CROFTON HERE WITH LORD MONTAGU

TRACED BY DETECTIVES

Members of the English Nobility Persuaded to Return to Their Respective Families.

When the North German Lloyd liner Kronprinz Wilhelm sails from her pier in Hoboken at 10 o'clock this morning she will carry back to England J. Walter Douglas Lord Montagu, his younger brother, and Lady Crofton, all three members of the British nobility.

Young Montagu will be in charge of the party, for it is through his efforts that his elder brother and Lady Crofton are returning to England from which they fled two months or more ago; Lady Crofton to face her husband of three years with whom she left her infant child when she sailed from England; Lord Montagu to resume the title which he dropped for plain James Montagu when he sailed for this country with Lady Crofton.

For two months James Montagu and Lady Crofton have been registered at the Hotel Gotham, Fifth Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street, and have occupied a suite of rooms on the tenth floor, which included a parlor, two bedrooms, and several rooms for servants.

In the hotel James Montagu and the beautiful blonde young woman who appeared on the register as Lady Crofton, have been supposed to be a bridal couple. The house physician, who was summoned a day or two ago to treat Lady Crofton for a slight cold, jested good-naturedly with the young man.

Said She Wasn't a Bride.

The doctor was astonished, however, when his patient hastened to assure him that she was not a bride, but a wife of three years. The physician apologized, and was amazed at the uneasiness which the young couple exhibited.

It was not until a cablegram reached the hotel on Sunday, however, that the management of the house realized thot perhaps Lady Crofton and James Montagu had a reason for so signing themselves on the hotel register. The cablegram, it is understood, was signed simply "Mother," and, it is understood, contained in effect the following:

There is nothing but death left for me. Katherine has exposed everything.

Scarcely had the message been delivered at the rooms of Lady Crofton when a young man hastened to the desk of the hotel with eager inquiries for a certain James Montagu. He was assured that such a person was registered at the hotel and sent a card to his rooms immediately, first, however, stating that he was a brother of James Montagu, who was really J. Walter Douglas Lord Montagu of England.

He was shown to the rooms of the man he called his brother and for some time was closeted with James Montagu and Lady Crofton. When he finally reappeared to engage a room for himself at the hotel it was to announce that he would want it only until Tuesday morning, and that at the same time his brother and Lady Crofton would surrender their suite.

"We are all going back to England," the young man said.

Since then James Montagu and Lady Crofton have not been seen in the hotel resting rooms or corridors. They have remained in the suite on the tenth floor, and have denied themselves to every one. Young Montagu has appeared scarcely more than his brother or Lady Crofton, but he gave the necessary orders for the removal of his own and the luggage of his brother and Lady Crofton to the steamer's pier this morning.

Long Hunt for Sleuths.

More than he had admitted when he revealed the name of his brother and his identity, with the additional information that the party would return together to England, young Montagu refused to disclose.

From other sources, however, it was learned last night that James Montagu and Lady Crofton have been the subject of much solicitude on the part of the Pinkertons here for the last six weeks. Prior to that time, it was learned, they were as eagerly sought in England, and it was only when their departure to this country became known that Scotland Yard communicated with the detective agency here with the request that the couple be found.

For weeks the Pinkertons shadowed the Hotel Buckingham, at Fifth Avenue and Fiftieth Street. One or more of the bureau's men were in or near the hotel at all hours of the day and night, but nothing was discovered of Lady Crofton or James Montagu until one day, a week or ten days ago, when the couple were seen strolling arm in arm down Fifth Avenue.

The description of Lady Crofton sent from England, recounting her blonde beauty and her stately figure, was sufficient for the Pinkerton men. Half a block behind them for the rest of their walk down the avenue Lady Crofton and James Montagu were followed by a detective. When they retraced their steps, stopping finally at the Gotham, a sleuth was close behind them, and once they were established at the hotel neither one nor the other was ever out of reach of a detective.

It was through this source undoubtedly, although he did not admit it, that young Montagu got trace of his brother, and it is understood that he took ship for this side as soon as the news of his brother's whereabouts reached England.

What arguments the young man used to persuade the couple to return home are not known, but that they were strong ones is evidenced by the fact that James Montagu and Lady Crofton, in sailing on the Kronprinz Wilhelm, are foregoing a shooting party in the South which they had announced their intention of joining within the next two weeks.

Lady Crofton admitted last night in her apartments at the Gotham that she had quarreled with her husband in England and had run away from him. She said that he had followed her here and that they had become reconciled. She declared that he now regretted exceedingly having employed detectives to trace her, and thus made known the story of her departure.

Of any James Montagu, Lady Crofton declared she had no knowledge. She said that she was stopping at the Gotham with a woman friend.

Lady Crofton is the wife of Sir Morgan George Crofton, Sixth Baronet of Mohill Castle, County Leitrim, Ireland. She was Frances Margaret, only daughter of the late Lieut. Col. Leonard Howard Lloyd Irby, a relative of the Baron Boston. She was married Dec. 12, 1905, and has one son, Morgan George, who was born on April 18, 1907.

Sir Morgan George Crofton is a Justice of the Peace, a Captain in the Second Life Guards, and succeeded his brother as sixth baronet in 1902. He was born on Nov. 27, 1879.

TESTS WIRELESS ON TRAIN.

Erie Tries a Telephone by Which Trains Can Be Stopped.

The Erie Railroad tested a wireless telephone yesterday which, it is believed, will not only make telephonic communication with distant points possible for train passengers, but will act also as an automatic brake for trains which are entering upon a danger zone covering two miles ahead. The telephone is the invention of Fred Lacroix, a young electrical engineer of San Antonio, Texas, and is operated by a third rail. This rail is not deadly and one may touch it without serious results.

The test was made on a train moving between Newark and South Paterson at an average speed of about thirty-five miles an hour.

The contrivance is much like an ordinary telephone. It is operated by the engineer and is suspended in the locomotive cab. It records on a clock arrangement each stop of the train, and when there is trouble on the road within two miles in advance of the train the device automatically sets the air brakes, the degree of their application being determined by the engineer, who may set the machine to apply the brakes immediately or by degrees.

The test train was run close to a local yesterday, and when it reached the danger zone the air was automatically cut off and the train brought to a standstill within fifty feet, despite the fact that the engineer was holding the valve open. The train was moving at about twenty-five miles an hour and there was no jar in the stopping.

A public test will be held on Nov. 10 in about the same vicinity, and two engines will be run from opposite directions at full speed. Mr. Lacroix says he is confident his device will stop both engines and prevent a collision.

Telephone communication was established, and it was said that voices were carried plainly.

TROOPS OUT IN KENTUCKY.

Militia to Prevent Fighting in Breathitt County Election To-day.

JACKSON, Ky., Nov. 1.—Jackson and Breathitt Counties are quiet on the surface to-night, after an exciting day. Militia arrived here from Lexington to-day, and departed later for Crockettsville, the stronghold of former Sheriff Edward Callahan. The streets were thronged with armed mountain men all day, while groups of citizens discussed the tense political situation and others gathered at the station to await the arrival of more troops from Cynthiana.

Circuit Judge J. P. Adams, Republican candidate for re-election, who made the request on Gov. Willson for militia to preserve order in Breathitt County during to-morrow's election, said to-night:

"In requesting the troops of the Governor, I was heeding the earnest appeals of the good people to take immediate action to prevent a conflict and loss of life and to preserve peace and good order among the people. A number of people, led by Ed Callahan and heavily armed with rifles, were installed in the upper story of the old Hargis building and were issuing threats of death against many citizens and some of the officers of the law, and they had commenced to terrorize the town by shooting in the streets and exhibiting their pistols and guns, when I sent to the Governor for troops.

"I felt it my duty not to wait until men were killed before taking steps to bring about peace and good order, and I have no doubt that the presence of the troops prevented serious trouble and perhaps saved many lives."

SHIPP APPEAL DENIED.

Chattanooga Sheriff in Lynching Case Must Appear for Sentence.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The unusual proceeding of an arraignment for sentence at the bar of the Supreme Court of the United States will be witnessed Nov. 15, in accordance with an announcement made to-day in the cases of Joseph F. Shipp of Chattanooga, Tenn., and five co-defendants, charged with contempt.

The court to-day denied motions for a rehearing of the cases, which arose out of the lynching by a mob at Chattanooga, Tenn., of the negro Ed Johnson just after the Supreme Court of the United States in March, 1906, had decided to review the proceedings by which the Tennessee courts had convicted the negro of criminal assault and sentenced him to be hanged.

The Attorney General instituted proceedings against Shipp, who was the Sheriff, and the jailer and twenty-five others supposed to have been implicated in the lynching, charging them with contempt of the Supreme Court. Many of the accused were exonerated, and in the end only six were found guilty. These were Sheriff Shipp, his Deputy, Jeremiah Gibson, who was the jailer; Luther Williams, Nick Nolan, Henry Padgett, and William Mayes, residents of Chattanooga.

All the defendants entered motions for a reheating, which the court to-day, through Chief Justice Fuller, denied. It lies in the discretion of the court to fine or to imprison the men or to inflict both penalties, and no intimation has been given as to what course may be pursued.

ATTACKS COURT'S GRAMMAR.

Brief in Lumber Case Stricken from U. S. Supreme Court Record as Scandalous

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Chief Justice Fuller to-day created a mild sensation in the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of the Yellow Poplar Lumber Company versus S. F. Chapman, which came to this court on a petition for a writ of certiorari asking for a review of the decision of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Fourth Circuit. That court decided a controversy involving a contract by Chapman to deliver to the company 50,000,000 feet of lumber in Virginia in favor of Chapman.

In its petition the company has asked a review on various grounds, one of which is stated as follows:

"The opinion of the Court of Appeals is so grotesque in its conclusions of law and prepared with so little care and study as to be almost unintelligible, even grammatically, not to say legally."

The Chief Justice did not quote any portion of the papers, but, referring to them in a general way, said that they were "so impertinent and improper that they would be stricken from the docket, in order to protect the records of the court from scandal." The petition for a writ of certain was denied.

PEARY SATISFIES BOARD OF EXPERTS

Every Indication That Committee Will Report Favorably on North Pole Data.

IS INVITED TO LECTURE

His First Public Address Will Be Made Before the National Geographic Society on Nov. 12.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Commander Robert E. Peary came to Washington this morning to present in person the data of his polar expedition to the sub-committee of three appointed by the National Geographic Society to pass on the validity of his claims to having reached the north pole. Although the officials of the society and Commander Peary refused to-night to reveal the nature of the explorer's testimony, there is every reason to believe that he satisfied the committee.

He has been invited to deliver the first of his public lectures before the society here on Nov. 12, and it was pointed out to-night that had the proofs been open to the slightest question he never would have been asked to appear.

The explorer spent the day and evening at the home of Rear Admiral C. M. Chester, one of the three members of the sub-committee. To-night there was a small gathering of Mr. Peary's friends, and they all seemed elated at the outcome of the matter. The other members of the sub-committee appointed to pass on Mr. Peary's data are Dr. Otto H. Titman of the Coast and Geodetic Survey and Prof. Henry Gannett of the National Geographic Society.

The sub-committee will prepare its report to-morrow, and at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning will present it to the full committee at the home of the National Geographic Society. Exactly when the text of the sub-committee's report will be made public is unknown. It is possible that it may come out Wednesday after the meeting of the full committee, though the committee may keep the decision of the experts secret until a meeting of the society some weeks hence.

By that time Mr. Peary may have returned to Washington, but it will not be to undergo more questioning. If he comes again it will be simply as the guest of the society, and probably to exhibit as curiosities his sledge and outfit already examined by Dr. Tittman in New York.

When Mr. Peary reached the Union Station this morning he telephoned to Prof. Gannett, and soon the two men were arranging for the subsequent meeting this afternoon. They had a brief consultation at the Hubbard Memorial Hall, and then went direct to Admiral Chester's home. Commander Peary had luncheon there and waited until the other members of the sub-committee gathered for the examination of his data and to hear his supplementary oral evidence. President Willis L. Moore of the National Geographic Society was present as an ex officio member of the committee.

The formal meeting at which Commander Peary was present was brief. It appeared that with the additional data brought by the explorer the committee needed little further explanation from Mr. Peary. Members of the commission made it plain to-day that in asking for further enlightenment as to his data they were not dissatisfied with the data already submitted by Commander Peary, but that certain documents had been omitted from the first installment by inadvertence.

It was thought at first that Commander Peary might be kept here several days for the examination of his data. This evening, however, it was learned that Mr. Peary would not again appear before the sub-committee and—as one member expressed it—"the committee had everything it wanted." He left for New York to-night on the midnight express.

ASTOR SUIT REPORT.

Referee's Findings Will Be Filed in Dutchess County.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Nov. 1.—It was learned this morning that the divorce proceeding brought by Mrs. John Jacob Astor against Col. Astor is a Dutchess County suit and that the report of Referee C. H. Young and all the testimony will be filed in the Dutchess County Clerk's office in Poughkeepsie.

Referee Young has practically completed the taking of the testimony, but it cannot be learned when he will submit his report to Supreme Court Justice Isaac N. Mills. Justice Mills will hold a trial term in Rockland County, beginning on Monday, and will sit at the Court House at Nyack. It is reported that the findings of the referee will be submitted to him there next week.

The papers in the case are all headed "Supreme Court, Dutchess County." The suit was brought in that county because the Astors have their country residence there. The Ninth Judicial District, in which Justice Mills holds court, includes Dutchess County, and for that reason he had the right to sign the order appointing the referee in any part of the district.

Justice Mills, when asked to-day, said that the referee had not made a report to him.

BEAR AFTER GUGGENHEIM.

New Yorker Saved from Attack by Companion on Hunting Trip.

Special to The New York Times.

SEATTLE, Wash., Nov. 1.—M. Robert Guggenheim of New York was saved from the attack of a bear in the woods near Aberdeen last Tuesday by H. W. Treat. The story became known to-day. Mr. Guggenheim and Mr. Treat were tracking a bear. They followed the trail for about ten miles when there was a sudden crackling in the brush just ahead, followed by a growl. Mr. Guggenheim sprang upon a log to get a shot. In doing so he slipped and sprained his ankle. He lay helpless when Mr. Treat came up and shot the bear, which had turned on his pursuers, in the nick of time.

The guide, whom Mr. Guggenheim and Mr. Treat both outran in the chase after the bear, then came up. While Mr. Treat remained with Mr. Guggenheim the guide went for a horse. Mr. Guggenheim was taken to a farmhouse several miles away and from there in a buggy to Aberdeen.

MRS. STETSON BOWS TO CHURCH EDICT

Declares Allegiance to Christian Science and Devotion to Mrs. Eddy.

OBEDIENT TO DIRECTORS

Deposed Teacher Denies Secession Was Contemplated—First Church Members Astonished.

Mrs. Augusta E. Stetson, deposed head of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, and central figure in the turbulent conditions in that congregation, since the Mother Church in Boston checked Mrs. Stetson's power as a teacher and admonished sixteen of her adherants among the practitioners, issued a statement last night denying that she intends to secede from the Christian Science Church. It was the first time Mrs. Stetson had broken silence. Notice came from Mrs. Eddy's Directors that she could not teach or practice Christian Science for a period of three years.

Mrs. Stetson says that she is not resisting the authority of the Board of Directors of the Mother Church and that she intends strictly to comply with their directions. She declares that she will never deny Christian Science and that she was never more devoted to the cause than at present. She also speaks of her love and obedience to Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy, and adds that she is sure that First Church will always be found displaying the banner of Christian Science when the enemies of the faith are most aggressive.

Mrs. Stetson's announcement was sent to the newspaper offices last night, together with a letter in which the former head of First Church said:

"As false reports regarding my words, actions, and intentions continue to circulate in the papers, may I ask you to kindly publish in full the accompanying statement.

Will Obey Orders Strictly.

The reports that I am resisting the authority of the Board of Directors of The Mother Church, and that I intend to secede from that church and form an independent church, are false. I have not said to anyone any of the things attributed to me in the papers. On Oct. 10, 1909, I notified the Directors of The Mother Church that I would comply strictly with their orders, and therefore would neither teach classes in Christian Science nor convene or attend my Students' Association. I leave all judgment of God, the righteous Judge. On the same day, I notified the Trustees of First Church of Christ, Scientist, New York City, that I had so advised the authorities of The Mother Church. I also requested the secretary of my Students' Association to notify its members whom I taught in past years that there would be no meeting of my students this year.

I shall never secede from Christian Science, and no student of mine, with my approval, will ever secede from Christian Science or disobey the constituted authorities of our denomination. I was never more devoted to the cause of Christian Science, to which I have given my whole life for twenty-five years. I was never more grateful, loving, and obedient to my revered leader, Mary Baker Eddy, discoverer and founder of Christian Science, and the leader forever of all true Christian Scientists.

I have labored for over twenty-three years to built and strengthen First Church of Christ, Scientist, New York City. I have seen it spring from nothing to what it now is. It is for others to say what part I had in its growth. From what I have learned of its members by my labors in developing this church, and in teaching Christian Science to its members, I am sure that this church and my students everywhere will always be found holding the banner of Christian Science aloft most valiantly and fearlessly when the enemies of Christian Science are most aggressive.

Surprise at the Avowal.

Mrs. Stetson's avowal came as a surprise last night both to officials of the mother church in this city and to those in First Church, who have been prominently identified with the movement to discipline Mrs. Stetson. They had confidently expected that Mrs. Stetson and her followers would secede at the congregational meeting which has been called for next Thursday afternoon in First Church to take some action on the unsettled church's affairs.

One of the afternoon papers yesterday published a story to the effect that Mrs. Stetson was ready to leave First Church and try to wrest the control of the Christian Science Church at large from Mrs. Mary Baker Eddy. It went on to say that Mrs. Stetson and her followers had been planning and plotting for several weeks, and that at last all was ready and the step would be taken at the congregational meeting on Thursday.

It was said by Christian Scientists last night that Mrs. Stetson's announcement of her attitude was probably drawn out by the publication of this story.

Contemplated action at the congregational meeting has taken a decided turn, it was said last night, as the whole aspect of the situation in First Church seems to have been changed by Mrs. Stetson's statement.

One theory advanced was that Mrs. Stetson now means to carry out the plan told of in THE TIMES two weeks or more ago, of having her younger sister, Mrs. Stella Stimpson, take up the duties of teacher in First Church, and occupy the high position that Mrs. Stetson formerly held.

It is generally understood that the committee of inquiry which has been holding daily meetings ever since Mrs. Stetson was admonished has about completed its work and is ready to make a report to the congregation. Should they make a report seeking to temporize the charges of "error" made against Mrs. Stetson before the Mother Church Directors it would have no material effect on First Church, it is said, owing to the fact that the Mother Church Directors have already passed upon the case.

Members of the First Church Board of Trustees were in conference with Mrs. Stetson yesterday. Several of them called at the Stetson home, at 7 West Ninety-sixth Street, next door to the church, and conferred with her for several hours. Last night there was a conference among the members of the anti-Stetson faction.

It was learned yesterday that members of the Mother Church Board of Directors have been in this city during the last few days watching developments and giving advice to those who are heading the strong opposition to Mrs. Stetson in First Church.

ODDS ON GAYNOR NOW 21-2 TO 1

Betting at the Hoffman House Is Slow and Most of It Done by Bookmakers.

FREAK BETS ARE THE RULE

Many Wagers Laid at Even Money That Hearst Will Run Ahead of Bannard and Vice Versa.

With the odds still favoring Gaynor, the election eve betting at the Hoffman House took a peculiar twist last night. While a few big bets were made on Gaynor against the field at the earlier figures of 2 to 1 and even at 2½ to 1, most of the betting was on who would poll the larger number of votes, Hearst or Bannard.

There was a scattering of bets on the minor candidates, but little money was wagered on this issue.

As in other years, the Hoffman House lobby and cafe were the centre of the uptown hotel betting. It was a crowd much dissimilar to the one that has gathered there in other years. Most of the wagers last night were laid by bookmakers against each other. According to persons who assumed to have information on the subject, the bookies were acting for themselves, not as commissioners. As one man put it, it was a case of "dog eat dog."

The opening odds on Bannard to win were 1 to 4. At that price there were plenty of takers, and before the betting for the night had been done the odds were beaten down to 5 to 13. Some bets that Hearst would win were made at odds of 1 to 5 and 1 to 6. A large number of bets were made at 5 to 6 that Hearst would run second. This bet seemed popular.

Some of the Sullivan henchmen showed up with tiny driblets of coin to wager on the election of Christy Sullivan for Sheriff at odds favoring him. In the betting for District Attorney Whitman was the favorite, the odds being 4 to 3 with few exceptions. Little money was wagered on this contest, though.

Leading lights of the betting fraternity were missing. Tammany leaders who in former years have furnished their quota of the betting crowd in the Hoffman House lobby were conspicuous by their absence last night.

Altogether it was estimated by the bookmakers that in the vicinity of $100,000 was wagered at the Hoffman House last night.

Gaynor Odds Down.

The night betting had been preceded by considerable betting activity in Wall Street earlier in the day. Robert Lane, the Curb cigar man, who had $22,000 of Gaynor money to bet at 2 to 1, placed a remainder of $17,000 yesterday at those odds. Just before the Curb market closed the Bannard chances advanced until the odds on Gaynor were only 5 to 4.

It could not be learned just what factor had entered into the situation to bring about this apparent lack of confidence in Gaynor, who had been such a strong favorite in the early betting. The prediction in Wall Street that the betting would be even money before the day closed did not, however, materialize.

Among the larger bets placed at the Hoffman House were these by Felix Isman, the theatrical manager and real estate operator:

$1,400 to $1,000 that Bannard beats Hearst.

$500 to $1,300 that Bannard wins.

$500 to $1,500 that Bannard wins.

$2,200 to $1,000 that the candidates run Gaynor, Bannard, Hearst.

Max Marks bet $10,000 all told that Gaynor would win, giving odds of 2 and 2½. He made one such bet at $2,000 to $800 with George Rose, a bookmaker.

Two bets were made of $200 at even money that Hearst would not get 150,000 votes, and that Hearst would not get 175,000 votes, respectively.

Max Marks bet Robert Rose $5,000 to $2,000 that Gaynor would win.

Several bets were made at $800 to $500 that Hearst would run second.

There were many small bets made at even money that Bannard would run stronger than Bannard.

A few of the Bannard-Hearst bets with the odds on the Fusion candidate were $1,100 to $1,000, $4,000 to $2,600, $2,000 to $1,300, $4,000 to $3,200, $1,000 to $700. Three thousand dollars were sent down from the Sullivan headquarters to "Charlie" Mahoney to be placed against $2,500 that Bannard would have a plurality over Hearst, but the bearer was told that there was $10,000 ahead of him to be laid at the same odds.

It was announced at the Cadillac that $9,500 of the $20,000 stake that Hearst will run third had been covered, $7,500 having been placed during the day. Joseph put up $6,000 to $5,000 that Bannard will beat Hearst.

There was some backing of "Christie" Sullivan. One bet made was $600 to $500, with the odds against Shea. Eight to five was offered freely, but found no takers.

Two large bets of two and a half to one on Gaynor against the field heard of were $5,000 to $2,000 and $2,500 to $1,000.

There was very little betting in Brooklyn before yesterday. Over $25,000 was laid at Fred Schumm's in Borough Square last night, however.

A few of the bets were: $5,000 to $2,500, Gaynor against the field; $5,000 even that Bannard will have a plurality over Hearst; $500 to $2,000 that Gaynor will get more votes than Hearst and Bannard together, and $500 even that Prendergast will beat Moore. $900 was offered at 9 to 10 that Steers will beat McCooey, but was not covered.

10 TO 7 ON TOM JOHNSON.

Odds Still in Favor of Cleveland's Mayor, Though Price Changes.

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 1.—Though the night before election finds Mayor Johnson still the favorite in the betting, the odds suddenly changed late to-day from 10 to 6 to 10 to 7. The odds had been 10 to 6 in Mayor Johnson's favor, but when about $1,500 of Baehr money came in, the figures were changed. Then the betting stopped.

The Baehr men who offered only 5 to 10 this morning were offering 6 to 10 in the afternoon. Bets of 2 to 1 were made on Johnson at the Hollenden Hotel. Even money was offered late to-day that Mayor Johnson will be re-elected by 2,000 majority. There were few takers. Even money was offered at the same time, with more takers, that Mayor Johnson will not get a 4,000 majority.

County Clerk Salen, one of the keenest political observers in the city, said:

"Mayor Johnson will carry the West Side by 4,000 and the East Side by 1,500 to 2,000. That will give him a majority of between 5,000 and 6,000. It will insure a Democratic majority in the next council."

RAIN FOR ELECTION DAY.

Bad Weather Expected This Afternoon, Says Weather Man.

The New Yorker will have to vote between showers to-day if the prediction of the Weather Man holds good. The best chance of voting without a wetting is to vote early. Even this, it is admitted, is not a surety, for last night when the fog came there was evidence of rain soon to follow.

The forecast is for showers. Politicians commenting on the promise of to-day's weather pointed out that it was going to be Democratic weather. They meant that Tammany democrats vote in rain or shine, while Republicans do not usually flock to the polls under overcast skies. More than one remembered that Roosevelt weather was fair weather.

The cause of this weather condition is a rain area that is moving eastward from the Great Lakes and another bound East from the Gulf States. During the day the rain storms will reach the Atlantic States, with the result that showers will occur in the afternoon.

The temperature will remain above normal until Wednesday, when there will be a drop in temperature following the clearing. Wednesday will probably be cool and fair.

COCKRAN SHY OF POLITICS.

Would Have Stayed If He Wanted to See Tammany Win.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—Bourke Cockran arrived in London to-day. He refused absolutely to talk politics, but said, in reply to a question whether he wished to see Tammany win:

"I would have remained in New York if I did."

MENELIK IS DYING.

Announced That Abyssinian Ruler Cannot Survive Many Hours.

ADDIS ABEBA, Abyssinia, Nov. 1.—It is announced that King Menelik, who was recently stricken with apoplexy, is dying and that the end is expected within a few hours.

AEROPLANE AFIRE IN FLIGHT.

Aviator Jumps to Ground to Escape Being Burned to Death.

HAMBURG, Nov. 1.—Aviation week opened here to-day with an accident that nearly proved fatal. A mechanic named Pequet was making a flight in an aeroplane at a considerable height when flames broke out. A moment later the benzine tank exploded.

Pequet succeeded in gliding to the earth, but the danger of burning to death was so pressing that he jumped from the machine while it was yet 15 or 20 feet in the air. He was injured about the chest and was carried to a hospital. Apparently his injuries are not serious.

The cloth wings of the aeroplane were consumed.

SUES NEW YORK ARCHITECT.

Mrs. William Lee Stoddart Applies for Divorce in Reno Court.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nevada, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Powell Stoddart, who has been in this city for nearly a year earning a livelihood for her three children and herself by giving vocal lessons and singing in churches and at entertainments, today filed a suit for divorce from William Lee Stoddart, an architect of New York City. Mrs. Stoddart in her complaint accuses her husband of extreme cruelty.

Mrs. Stoddart was married in Atlanta, Ga., in 1898, and her oldest child, Margaret, is about 10 years of age.

Mrs. Stoddart says that her husband would have furnished her with money to live here, but that she desired to be independent, and would not even accept aid from her own relatives, who are wealthy.

SHE'D HAVE A FOUR-HOUR DAY.

Woman Advocates It and Makes a Hit with the Unemployed.

The Brotherhood Welfare Association gave the various candidates an opportunity yesterday to come to Cooper Union and tell the unemployed what they would do for them. Only James T. Hunter, candidate of the Socialist Labor Party, and Edward F. Cassidy, Socialist candidate for Mayor, appeared. Their promises did not make half the hit as did Mme. Vesta La Viesta, who advocated a four-hour work day.

The men, she said, would then have time for lovemaking. She also spoke in favor of woman's suffrage and pointed out how much better things would be if women were at the head of affairs. She held that the world would be better and love would reign with women in power.

"What will you do when women are in power?" she asked impressively.

"We'll make love to 'em."

A resolution was adopted to petition Congress to start public work where there is a congestion of unemployed.

'PHONED FROM BLAZING ROOM.

Lumber Yard Manager Jumped to Save His Life.

The telephone in Police Headquarters in Jersey City rang at 1:20 o'clock this morning, and over the wire came the voice of a man, who shouted:

"I am John Lloyd, manager of the Charles H. O'Neil lumber yards, at Twentieth Street and Jersey Avenue. The yards are on fire, and the flames are eating into the room where I am 'phoning. Send the engines. I—"

The man who was taking the message heard Lloyd's voice die away, though he knew by the sound that the lumber yard manager had not hung up the receiver.

Persons in Jersey Avenue, attracted there already by the flames, which had begun to mount skyward, saw Lloyd jump out of a window half a dozen feet above the street, in the room from which he had been telephoning. Scarcely was he out when the room, a small one in the office, became a mass of flames. The manager had been sleeping there and had been awakened by the smoke which filled the room.

How the fire started is not known, but at 2 o'clock the yard was still burning fiercely. Five horses and seven trucks were destroyed. The blaze was a spectacular one and throngs of people crowded Jersey City Heights and the D. L. & W. Railroad trestle, which is near the scene of the fire, to watch it.

LEADERS CONFIDENT ON ELECTION EVE

"We Win," Says Bannard, While Murphy Thinks Gaynor Will Swamp Both Opponents.

TAMMANY GIVES OUT MONEY

District Organizations Receive an Average of $75 to the Election District for Expenses.

With all the hard work of the campaign at an end, Otto T. Bannard, the Fusion nominee for Mayor, reiterated yesterday his laconic statement of Saturday, "We win." Mr. Bannard said he had been too busy discussing the issues to pay any attention to figures, but said he knew everything would be all right when the votes were in, and that at last Tammany's hold on the city would be broken.

"I will vote between 8:30 and 9 o'clock to-morrow at the polling place on Fifty-eighth Street, between Fifth and Sixth Avenues," said Mr. Bannard. "I will play the rest of the day, and to-morrow evening I will return to this headquarters to receive the returns."

Mr. Bannard said that he would go to Milwaukee on Thursday afternoon to attend the wedding of one of his nieces, which has been set for Saturday.

"There seems to be a good matrimonial market for pretty nearly all my relatives, though there is none for me," said he with a laught.

When Mr. Bannard was being nominated for Mayor by the Republican City Convention, it will be remembered, he was on his way West to attend the wedding of another niece. Mr. Bannard will return to this city a week from to-day.

At the Bannard headquarters in the Fifth Avenue Building employes of the telegraph company were busy yesterday putting in wires over which the election returns will be received. John Henry Hammond, former Republican leader of the Twenty-ninth Assembly District, where Mr. Bannard lives, will do the honors at his headquarters during the evening. It was Mr. Hammond who placed Mr. Bannard's name before the Republican City Convention.

Bennett Sure of Ticket.

Congressman William S. Bennet, Mr. Bannard's campaign manager, will be busy in his district, the Nineteenth, during the day and will hear election returns at the Republican Club of the district, at 363 West 117th Street. Mr. Bennet made this statement yesterday:

"Mr. Bannard will be elected. I don't care to change my figures in reference to his plurality given out last week. Not only will Mr. Bannard be elected, but under himself and his Fusion associates the administration of the city will be such that the principle of a business administration will be permanently established."

At Republican County headquarters, in the Metropolitan Life Building, President Herbert Parsons of that committee was busy all day yesterday giving final instructions to the leaders and conferring with members of the Law Committee, who are charged with the duty of preventing frauds at the polls.

Mr. Parsons said that he would stand on the figures he made public yesterday predicting Mr. Bannard's election by 70,000 and placing Mr. Hearst third in the race with about 140,000 votes. When asked to what he attributed this Mr. Parsons said:

"First, to the strong anti-Tammany sentiment—and it is tremendous—throughout the city; secondly, to Mr. Gaynor's own campaign; thirdly, to the campaign made by Mr. Bannard, which has attracted thousands of Democratic votes, and, in the fourth place, to the manner in which Mr. Hearst has cut into the Gaynor vote."

"Mr. Bannard is a strong winner," said Mr. Parsons, in reply to another question. "The campaign is coming out even better than I had expected. Voters should get out early. This will help to prevent fraud and will ease the work of the organization. The arrangements for safeguarding the vote and preventing frauds at the polls this year are more complete than ever."

Mr. Parsons said he would be at county headquarters all day and that he would receive election returns there this evening.

Recalls Nelson's Words.

Chairman E. H. Outerbridge of the Committee of One Hundred made this statement:

"Every school child as well as every citizen must remember Nelson's words: 'To-day England expects every man to do his duty.' Every man did, and we know the result. The Committee of One Hundred expects every man to do his duty to-morrow. We believe a majority of the citizens will do so, and then rejoice with us in the result, the election of Mr. Bannard and the entire Fusion ticket."

The Committee of One Hundred will keep open house this evening. Election results will be received in the large assembly room on the eleventh floor of the Fifth Avenue Building, where most of the committee's meetings and the Fusion conferences were held.

William A. Prendergast will receive election returns at his Brooklyn home. He expressed himself as confident that he would be elected Controller by a majority of all the votes cast. Equal confidence was expressed by John Purroy Mitchel, nominee for President of the Aldermen, and by George McAneny, candidate for Borough President of Manhattan. Mr. Mitchel and Mr. McAneny will receive the returns at their headquarters in the Byrant Arcade Building.

Charles S. Whitman, Fusion nominee for District Attorney, closed his canvass last night. He has offered his services to the Lawyers' Committee, which will deal with election disputes in the courts. He will return to his headquarters this evening and will receive the returns there. Mr. Whitman said:

"I feel very confident at the close of the campaign that the voting public understands the real issue, and the only issue, and that is the continuance of Tammany control in all the departments of the City Government. I believe the overwhelming majority of our citizens are opposed to Tammany Hall, and I am perfectly confident that the vote to-morrow will demonstrate that the people are awake to the gravity of the situation and to their opportunity of putting an end to Tammany's vicious rule, and I cannot appeal too strongly to the public to vote early."

Murphy Is Confident.

Charles F. Murphy, leader of Tammany Hall, again refused yesterday to make public the estimate on the result of the election which he has compiled from the canvasses of the different district leaders which were reported to him on Saturday. He insisted, however, that his declination to name figures should not be taken as meaning that he is at all uneasy, and repeated his previous forecast, that he expects Gaynor to get more votes than Hearst and Bannard together and the rest of the ticket to be elected by a satisfactory plurality.

"Do you still think Hearst will be second?" he was asked.

"I surely do."

"A close second?"

"No, I wouldn't say that. Hearst and Bannard will be close together, though."

"Do you think the injection of the religious issue into the campaign will hurt Judge Gaynor now?"

"I think that it won't help those who raised it."

"Do you know who is responsible?"

"I think I do."

There was a general air of uncertainty among the leaders about the Wigwam during the day which did not bear out Mr. Murphy's confidence with respect to the success of the whole Tammany ticket. While it is believed that the organization generally is convinced that Gaynor will win, it is known that there is no such confidence with respect to the other candidates.

Yesterday was the day when the Treasurers of the district organizations go to Tammany Hall and hold private conferences with Joseph P. Day, Treasurer of the Campaign Committee, carrying away instructions, sample ballots, and money. This year the distribution averaged $75 to the election district. There are 918 in New York County, and it is estimated that Mr. Day gave out in the neighborhood of $75,000 yesterday.

Chairman Charles E. Gehring of the Civic Alliance made a statement last night in which he asserted that despite wholesale frauds, planned by Tammany Hall, William R. Hearst would win.

Mr. Hearst will receive election returns at the Civic Alliance headquarters in the Hermitage Hotel to-night.

GAYNOR WILL STAY AT HOME.

How His Associates on the Ticket Will Hear the Returns.

Judge Gaynor will receive the election returns to-night at his home in Brooklyn. Leader Murphy of Tammany will be at Tammany Hall in Fourteenth Street with the majority of the big men in the organization. A special wire from Police Headquarters was run into the committee room yesterday, and a special ticker installed.

John F. Galvin and Robert R. Moore will be at the headquarters of the Business Men's Campaign Committee at the Hotel Cadillac. The Sullivans and the majority of their followers will receive the returns at the Sullivan headquarters in the Hoffman House. George Gordon Battle and Joseph Haag will have special wires running to their headquarters in the Flatiron Building and the Hotel Bartholdi.

The three candidates for the Supreme Court bench will receive the news at the Manhattan Club, which will also have a special wire. There will doubtless be a large gathering of Tammany men there and at the National Democratic Club to receive the returns with Richard Croker. The majority of the less important candidates will be at Tammany Hall.

BROTHERS ABSOLVE GAYNOR.

Say His Withdrawal from the Christian Order Was Entirely Regular.

Michael J. Drummond, Chairman of the Business Men's Campaign Committee, which has been working for the election of the Tammany city ticket with headquarters at the Hotel Cadillac, has received a letter from Brother Joseph, Provincial of the Order of Christian Brothers, in which he absolves Judge Gaynor of misdeeds in his conection with the order. The letter, which was made public yesterday, reads:

Brothers of the Christian Schools,
Mount De La Salle.
Pocantico Hills, N. Y., Oct. 15, 1909.

My Dear Mr. Drummond:

I am grieved that some parties have thought it necessary to drag into a political campaign the matter about which you have written to me. However, I deem it my duty to answer your questions and to give you the facts asked for.

As a boy, 14 years old, Judge Gaynor applied for admission to our institute, and being highly recommended by the Brothers in Utica, was received as a candidate. After the usual period spent in formation he was sent to teach. In order that our candidates may have a knowledge of the work before them, they are required to teach some time before they are admitted to vows.

Before young Gaynor was old enough to pronounce his vows it was found that the condition of his health did not warrant the belief that he would be able to continue as a teacher. He withdrew from the institute with the approval of his superiors. The statement that he withdrew without having obtained a dispensation from his vows is not true. He had no vows from which to be dispensed.

Only last Sunday our Assistant Superior General told me that during the short time young Mr. Gaynor was with us his record was perfect, and that all his dealings with us were most honorable. The Brother Assistant Superior General, who knew the Gaynor family well in Utica and had taught members of it in the Brothers' School there, assured me that Mr. Gaynor simply exercised his right as a novice or candidate to withdraw.

I hope, my dear Mr. Drummond, that the above covers the points you placed before me.

You may use the information given in this letter as you judge proper in the interest of justice and truth. Very faithfully yours,

BROTHER JOSEPH,
Provincial, Brothers of the Christian Schools.

Mr. M. J. Drummond, 148 West Seventy-sixth Street, New York City.

It was known some time ago that Mr. Drummond had received this letter, but Judge Gaynor would not allow him to make it public, and it was through another source that it became public.

BAIT FOR NEGRO VOTERS.

But Bannard Repudiates a Circular Promising to Make Them Policemen.

A circular which stated that Otto T. Bannard, if elected Mayor, would see to it that negroes are appointed to the New York police force, and which indirectly promises that Charles S. Whitman, if elected District Attorney of New York County, will place colored men in the District Attorney's office to look after the interests of their race, was circulated last night. A copy was given to each person that attended the Bannard meeting in St. Paul's Chuch in West Thirty-fifth Street, where Mr. Bannard was the principal speaker, and where about nine-tenths of those present were negroes.

The circular called upon the colored voters to vote the straight Fusion ticket, and then went on to say that Mr. Bannard and Mr. Whitman would do as the circular stated when they took office. The circular caused a mild sensation, and charges were made afterward that it was a Tammany scheme to get the Southern white vote in line for the Tammany ticket.

Mr. Bannard repudiated the circular, and declared that he had never promised to appoint negroes on the police force, although he admitted that if the question should arise it was one that would deserve consideration. H. W. Mack, campaign manager for Mr. Whitman, said that the statement was absolutely unauthorized so far as Mr. Whitman was concerned.

The circular was signed "Committee of 100," but no one at the headquarters of the Committee of One Hundred knew anything about it.

BANNARD IN CLOSING PREDICTS VICTORY

Ends His Campaign with a Street Talk to Workers and a Church Address to Negroes.

TELLS WHAT HE FOUGHT FOR Public Good Against Tammany Corruption, Waste, and Graft — Predicts Fusion Success in All Boroughs.

Full of confidence that he will be elected Mayor of New York to-day, Otto T. Bannard, the Fusion candidate, closed his campaign with two speeches yesterday. The first was delivered before an enthusiastic audience of men, most of them in overalls, at the corner of Laight and West Streets, at noon, and the last one to the colored voters in St. Paul's Church, in West Thirty-fifth Street, at night.

At both meetings Mr. Bannard said that the campaign had been a fine one, and that the outlook was extremely bright for a Fusion victory for all the offices in all the five boroughs. When Mr. Bannard said that his own election was assured the audiences shouted their approval.

At the noon meeting Mr. Bannard was accompanied by Congressman W. S. Bennet. Mr. Bennet said that the election would explode the "time-worn myth that Tammany cannot be beaten." The result of to-day's election was certain, he said, so far as the defeat of Tammany was concerned. He painted a rosy picture of the good government that New York is to have during the four years Mr. Bannard will be in the Mayor's chair.

What Bannard Has Fought For.

Mr. Bannard followed Congressman Bennet.

"I have fought this campaign," he said, "against Tammany Hall, against corruption, waste, graft, and improper contracts. Public improvements must be solely for the public good and not for plunder. Petty gratt must be stamped out.

"I have advocated prompt building of subways owned by the city, built by eight-hour labor; reorganization of surface railways, with the widest possible transfer privilege for a five-cent fare; better tenement house conditions, more schools, more parks and playgrounds, and relief from tuberculosis. I have demanded honest elections, giving us the right to have our ballots counted as we cast them, only one for each man. I have favored as liberal personal liberty as is consistent with the law and order, on the theory that an extreme oppressive interpretation of the law creates opportunity for graft.

"I have urged the three platoon system for the police force. I have expressed myself as favorable to labor unions. And I beg to remind you that Tammany contractors do not comply with the prevailing rate of wages law. Laws should be enforced within reason.

"I have pointed out many defects in city management, waste of water, lack of open piers, condition of some of our police courts, the hardship of arrests for violation of traffic regulations, and other matters.

"I have urged summonses, subpoenas instead of warrants for minor traffic violations, to save time and expense to drivers and policemen and owners of trucks. I have appealed to no classes, but to all fair-minded men to install honest business management into our City Government.

"Those who let contracts should not be interested in the profits. No man can vote on both sides at once. Give us disinterested sense and experience, and all classes will be benefited. Drop out the idler and reward the diligent. It will make more work for the workman. It will raise the standard of living, and the children will grow up better men and women, with better surroundings and influences. Merit will be rewarded and dishonesty cease to be a subject to laugh about.

"You need a Mayor who will devote all his time to his duties and be interested in all parts of the city and every group of people and every industry. You want a listener rather than a talker, and a man who is not afraid to tell every department of the city government to keep their hands out of the people's pockets. I believe that I can serve you well, and that to-morrow you will choose a business man, a man who will attend to the duties of the office to which he is elected and answer 'present' when the people call the roll."

His Talk to the Negroes.

At the night meeting in St. Paul's Church Mr. Bannard received an ovation that lasted several minutes. That was his last appearance before the election, and there he said:

"A few days ago I was honored by a visit from several of your ministers of the highest standing in this city. They represented to me the condition of many of the colored tenements—the high rents exacted, the neglect of the Tenement House Department in permitting tenements for the colored people to be unclean and unhealthful and improperly lighted and cared for—the immoral conditions which creep into them unchecked, the race prejudice against them in certain parts of the city, and the occasional cruelty of policemen and the lack of consideration for little colored children. Their cause was ably set before me, and I felt that what they asked was fair and right, and at their request I am glad to make my last talk of this hysterical campaign here.

"Government is for the protection of all, rich or poor, black or white. It should know no favorites. It should extend its helping hands to all. It has its duties and you have your rights. It owes you light and air and supervision of your houses, police and fire protection, clean, well-paved streets, good schools for your children, parks, playgrounds, good water, and good light. It can demand from you orderly conduct and consideration for others, that you be honest and industrious and self-respecting. And all that I have said is just as applicable to every class and every race and every color. All are entitled to the same consideration, the same helpful co-operation.

City Fathers Now City Grafters.

There was an old expression—city fathers—long since lost sight of. Now they call them the city grafters. How would it do to restore the idea of city fathers, with a firm, fatherly, friendly care for all? When complaints are made of bad treatment, it is the duty of the Mayor to take them up promptly, investigate them, and, in many cases, make personal inspection.

"It is not necessary to make speeches in public halls in regard to them. It is more effective to quietly correct abuses without advertisement. Work is what tells in this world. Your race is constantly improving itself, and its future lies in education. Make the children go to school. Teach them good habits and self-respect, and respect for others. Try to save something every week and every month. It is the surest road to success, and good citizenship, and is a good example to others.

"This great campaign is over, and you have done your part. It now remains to perform what has been planned. The votes count, and this time the votes will be counted as cast.

"It is a pleasure to me to have had this last meeting, and in closing I am glad to be able to tell you with the greatest confidence that I shall be elected Mayor."

HEARST ELECTED: (INTERMITTENT WHITE FLASH NORTH AND SOUTH)
TAMMANY CARRIES NEW YORK COUNTY: (RED FLASH TO NORTH SWINGING FROM EAST TO WEST)
FUSION CARRIES NEW YORK COUNTY: (RED FLASH TO SOUTH SWINGING FROM EAST TO WEST)

Those who want to get the earliest news of election results to-night should watch the signals that are to be flashed from the tower of the Times Building.

A white flash south, swinging from east to west, will signify a Bannard triumph.

An intermittent flash, north and south, will mean that Hearst has been elected.

A red flash to the south, swinging from east to west, will mean that the Fusion ticket has carried New York County.

A red flash to the north, swinging from east to west, will mean that Tammany has carried New York County.

Bulletins of returns from election districts in this city, and also from elections in other cities and States, will be displayed, as soon as received, at the north end (Forty-third Street) of the Times Building.

GOV. HUGHES WARNS AGAINST POLL FRAUDS

Wires Leary, Baker, and Sheriffs He Will Hold Them Accountable for Their Duty.

WATCHERS OF ALL KINDS

Aliens and Women May Serve If So Authorized, as Well as Voters, Says O'Malley.

Unusual precautions have been taken by Gov. Hughes to safeguard the election in this city to-day. The Governor sent telegrams yesterday to the State Superintendent of Elections for the Metropolitan District, to Police Commissioner Baker, and to the Sheriffs of New York, Kings, Queens, and Richmond Counties, advising them that they will be held strictly accountable for the performance of their duty.

To Superintendent of Elections William Leary and to Police Commissioner Baker, the Governor's telegram was as follows:

You are directed to take all necessary measures and precautions within your authority to see that the election to-morrow is conducted without disorder, intimidation, and fraud, and that the provisions of the election law are fully enforced. You will be held strictly accountable for the performance of your duty.

To the Sheriffs, Gov. Hughes' message read:

You are directed to use all means within your authority to preserve peace and order and to secure the enforcement of the law in connection with the election to-morrow. You will be held strictly accountable for the performance of your duty.

Sheriff Foley, of New York, wired back this answer:

Your telegram received. Shall use all means within my authority to preserve peace and order and see to the enforcement of the law in connection with to-morrow's election.

Objection will not be made to-day to any election watcher by reason of his age, sex, or nationality. The Corporation Counsel recently expressed the opinion that every watcher must be a voter, and that therefore women, aliens, or minors could not be assigned to such positions. He has been overruled, however, by the Attorney General, and, although he still maintains his opinion, he is acquiescing in Mr. O'Malley's view. The matter was brought out by this letter from Herbert Parsons to Police Commissioner Baker:

Republican County Committee,
1 Madison Avenue,
New York, Nov. 1, 1909.

Hon. William F. Baker, Police Commissioner, New York City:

Sir—The Corporation Counsel, without warrant, has given an opinion that only a qualified voter of this city can be a watcher on election day. The Attorney General, whose authority is superior, has given an opinion that "any person, whether a voter or not, who has been duly authorized to act as a watcher, and who has lawful possession of a watcher's certificate, is entitled to exercise all the rights of a watcher on election day."

I demand that you recognize, and that you instruct all members of the police force to recognize, as a duly qualified watcher authorized to act as such, any person, whether man or woman, resident or non-resident, adult or minor, who has lawful possession of a watcher's certificate from me.

Very truly yours,
HERBERT PARSONS,
Chairman Republican County Committee.

The Corporation Counsel's view of the matter was expressed in this letter which was sent last night to President of the Board of Elections Dooling by Assistant Corporation Counsel George L. Sterling:

Hon. John T. Dooling, President, Board of Elections:

Sir—I am informed that the Attorney General has given an opinion that "any person, whether a voter or not, who has been duly authorized to act as a watcher, and who has lawful possession of a watcher's certificate, is entitled to exercise all the rights of a watcher on election day."

This is not in conformity with the views expressed in an opinion rendered to you by me under date of Oct. 29, 1909; in fact, is in direct conflict therewith.

I do not recede from the position taken in my opinion, and am firmly convinced that neither aliens, nor women, nor minors, nor non-residents, are entitled to act as watchers, but believe that only a voter may be a watcher. Which of the two provisions is the correct one can only be determined by the courts. However, in view of the fact that the Attorney General of the State as the legal adviser of the State Superintendent of Elections, has expressed a contrary view, and in the interest of an orderly election, I advise that until otherwise notified by me, or until there is a ruling by the court on the subject, you recognize as a watcher any one presenting a duly authenticated watcher's certificate.

Very respectfully yours,
GEORGE L. STERLING,
Acting Corporation Counsel.

All the parties have arranged for watchers, and hundreds are expected to be on hand when the polls open to-day.

THE VOTER'S RIGHTS.

Judge Swann Says He Should Be Allowed to Vote Before Arrest.

In charging the November Grand Juries as to their responsibilities yesterday, Judge Swann in General Sessions laid special emphasis on Election Day arrests.

"In the heat of an election, when partisanship runs high," he said, "men are arrested as they enter the polling places, and on the day after it is often suddenly discovered that there was not sufficient evidence against them to warrant an arrest which prevented the exercise of their sovereign right. I want to state to you what the law is on that subject.

"When a citizen leaves his home and sets out to visit the polling place to vote, he having properly registered, the sovereignty that that man possesses seems to be in the eyes of the law greater on that particular day and at that particular time in his life, and he must not be deprived of it in any arbitrary manner. Now if it has been discovered or thought that he has improperly registered, it is the duty, of course, of certain officers to have a warrant issued for his arrest, but it is highly improper for those officers to wait until that man enters the polls to arrest him when we find in so many cases, the day after election, that the charge against the man is all in the air and that he had been deprived of an inalienable right on the very day of all days in the year when he has the right to exercise it.

"If he swears in his vote, he should be allowed to vote right then and there, and then if he has transgressed the law the Grand Jury will take up his case and dispose of it as the law provides. The penalty for false registration is very severe. The officers should call it to the man's attention and give him the opportunity of judging as to whether or not he will run the risk, but they should not lock him up for the day to have him turn up in court next morning, only to find that there was no evidence against him.

"Judge Swann said that the city had a District Attorney and had had for three or four years Police Commissioners who were fair.

"At the same time," he continued, "certain general and infamous charges have been made, and those may have been due to the heat of partisanship, in which case they will vanish into thin air after election, like a great many of the election arrests. I do not believe, therefore, that your time will be taken up with any of the general charges that you have heard within the last month."

CLAIM VICTORY FOR DRAPER.

Massachusetts Republicans Say His Plurality Will Be 30,000 to 40,000.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Final campaign arguments in Massachusetts were made to-night, and to-morrow the people will vote on the question whether Gov. Eben S. Draper and the remainder of the Republican State ticket shall continue in office, or give place to James H. Vahey, the Democratic candidate for Governor, and the other nominees of that ticket.

The republicans claim the State by a plurality ranging from 30,000 to 40,000 for Governor, and higher figures for the rest of the candidates, while the Democrats predict Vahey's election by 10,000 to 15,000 and a victory by a narrower margin for Eugene N. Foss over Lieut. Gov. Louis A. Frothingham.

In Boston in addition to the State contests, there is a District Attorneyship in question. The voters of this city will also decide between Plan 1 of the new city charter, which provides for a partisan Mayor, with a two-year term, and a large city council, and Plan 2, in which the Mayor is nominated by petition, elected for four years, with a chance of being recalled in two years, and with a small non-partisan city council.

The last time a Democratic Governor was elected in Massachusetts was in 1904, when William L. Douglas defeated Gov. John L. Bates by 36,000, reversing almost exactly the Republican plurality of the year before. In the following year, 1905, which corresponds to the present one in being "off year," the Republicans carried the State by 22,558.

HENEY TO HAVE CLOSE FIGHT.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—San Francisco's municipal campaign was waged until a late hour to-night, with scores of political meetings in various parts of the city. Political forecasters concede that the issue is in doubt as between William Crocket, Republican nominee for mayor; P. H. McCarthy, Union Labor, and Dr. T. W. B. Leland, Democrat.

The fight for the district attorneyship between Francis J. Heney, Democrat, and Charles M. Fickert, Republican and Union Labor, which overshadows the mayoralty contest, is likewise close.

Both Sides Claim Rhode Island.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Nov. 1.—The campaign conducted by the Democratic candidate for Attorney General, James A. Williams, has aroused considerable interest in to-morrow's election, but an unusually large vote is not expected. Mr. Williams has charged that the laws have not been properly enforced. The Republican Party managers to-night declared that Gov. Aram J. Pothier would easily be re-elected, while the Democratic leaders asserted that Olney Arnold would undoubtedly be the next Governor of Rhode Island.

GAYNOR WINS CHEERS IN HIS FINAL SPEECH

HIS CONFIDENCE UNSHAKEN

Assures His Hearers That the Campaign Hasn't Hurt Him Very Much, After All.

Addressing an audience which numbered close to four thousand persons, William J. Gaynor, the Tammany candidate for Mayor, closed his campaign last night at Sulzer's Harlem River Casino. The candidate received a warm welcome, the cheers lasting nine minutes, but many of the audience left the building with noisy tread before he had finished his hour and a half speech.

Mr. Gaynor said little that was new, but touched upon nearly every subject he has dealt with since his campaign opened. He captured the audience at the start, however, by saying after the first outburst of cheering had subsided:

"It is very evident that you do not need a $10,000 opera up here to get an audience." The allusion to W. R. Hearst's Madison Square Garden rally of Sunday night set the throng howling with delight.

"Some may think that my feelings have been hurt," he said, "but I have come through without getting very much hurt after all."

He discussed at length the traction situation of the city, and said he thought very few children were being kept out of school for lack of room. He appealed to the audience to rebuke those who, he said, had slandered the city.

"Let those who have nothing but reproach for the city get out or shut up," he said. For a full half hour he discoursed upon what he termed "a free city under the law."

Speaking of Gen. Bingham, he declared it was public sentiment that ousted him from office. He said he had received more or less abuse, but he did not bear any one any ill-will.

Referring to the tenements he owns in Brooklyn, he said his property there was assessed for $59,000, and that there was a $40,000 mortgage on it. He said he had received a fair hearing from the people all over the city, but his speeches, he said, had been turned by the newspapers into a mere travesty.

"I will abide with perfect confidence the result of the votes to-morrow," he said.

Galvin Also Spoke.

All the candidates on the Tammany ticket were on the programme to speak. The first was John F. Galvin, candidate for Board of Aldermen, and the second James J. Hagan, candidate for County Clerk. Mr. Hagan told the gathering that, if elected, he would take office with clean hands, and that he wasn't sorry for anything he had done in the past. He stood beside Gaynor Mr. while the latter was waiting for the cheers to subside, and the two smiled and talked in whispers. Suddenly Mr. Hagan left the platform and did not appear again.

Unusual preparations had been made to make the meeting a notable one. The hall was elaborately decorated with flags, and over the speakers' platform was an electric sign with the words "Welcome, W. J. Gaynor." A parade through 125th Street, in which a lot of red fire was burned, led a large crowd to the hall where fireworks were set off in the street. Some excitement which wasn't down on the programme was created by the arrival of fire engines just as the meeting got started to put out a blaze directly behind the Casino. Some boys had set a board fence on fire, but it was extinguished without trouble.

Mr. Galvin, in his speech, said this campaign would go down in history as "the dirtiest ever waged by the Republican Party." "I miss my guess," he added, "if the citizens of the city don't bury them so deep that such another campaign will be impossible."

Rhinelander Waldo, Chairman of the meeting, created some diversion by saying some things about his old chief, Gen. Bingham.

"What Judge Gaynor says about Gen. Bingham," he said, "I know to be true."

"I have heard a great deal of noise," said Mr. Gaynor, when the cheering for him had subsided, "but this is the noisiest place of all. I have not during this whole campaign, nor has any one in our political committee so far as I know, said one single word of any candidate or of any one except in relation to the actual issues before the people at this time."

What a Mayor Should Be.

"This is the most cosmopolitan city in the world," the candidate declared, "and therefore we ought to be ruled in a liberal and cosmopolitan way in regard to the feelings and wishes of the great bulk of the community. It is the duty of the Mayor of this city to know all the people of the city, to know the German mind, the Irish mind, the Hungarian mind, and all the people that go to make up the city—and the American mind, although we are all foreigners if you only scratch deep enough in the back. You have only got to go back two or three generations with the best of us to learn that.

"I have brought these messages and other things that I have discussed all over the city and I have had an attentive hearing, for which I am profoundly thankful. I tried to keep up the discussion in that same way during the whole canvass, but I am sorry to say that instead of being met in the proper spirit I have been met with more or less abuse, some of it of the worst character.

"I cannot speak about the tenement houses and how the law should be enforced about them and how builders should be properly treated, or about the Building Department, without the next day having one of those rag-bag newspapers with a half page saying that I have tenements or that I am speaking in my own interest.

"As a rule, I have had a fair hearing from the people all over the city, although what I have said has been turned by most of the newspapers into a mere travesty, intentionally and on purpose—those newspapers that are owned by the sort of people that I have already told you of, who dread me more than they dread death.

"They would rather see the devil himself, I was about to say, become Mayor than to see me in the Mayor's chair for four years. The reason of that is they know the whole tenor of my life from boyhood up to this hour right here in this city, that I have pursued a steady course with regard to good government."

HARD FIGHT IN PHILADELPHIA.

Contest Over District Attorneyship Overshadows the State Election.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—Pennsylvania to-morrow will elect a State Supreme Court Justice, a State Treasurer, and an Auditor General, and pass on ten constitutional amendments looking toward the abolishment of the annual Spring elections and the substitution of municipal and county elections on alternate years from the State and National elections.

The importance of the State election, however, has been overshadowed by the contest in Philadelphia for the election of a District Attorney. United States Senator Penrose and the other Republican leaders have been bending every effort toward re-electing Samuel P. Rotan over his opponent, D. Clarence Gibboney. Chairman Andrews of the Republican State Committee predicts the election of the Republican State ticket by a majority of 150,000. Chairman Dewalt of the Democratic State Committee says that the nominees of his party will be successful at the polls, but gives no figures.

After a bitterly fought campaign, the leaders of both the Republican organization and their opponents express their confidence in the election of their respective candidates for District Attorney, Register of Wills, and City Treasurer of Philadelphia.

MRS. LUDERS'S SISTER TO SUE

Composer's Wife Accompanies Newark Woman to Reno to Get Divorce.

Special to The New York Times.

RENO, Nev., Nov. 1.—Mrs. Gustave Luders, accompanied by her sister, Mrs. B. Welchman, of Newark, N. J., arrived in Reno yesterday, riding on a switch engine, and shortly after their arrival registered at Riverside Hotel. They had left their train at Sparks, east of Reno, intending to come here by automobile, but the car failed to appear, and they came into Reno riding with the fireman and engineer, in the cab of the engine.

Mrs. Welchman is here to procure a divorce on the grounds of failure to provide.

Mrs. Luders is the wife of the composer of the "Burgomaster," "Prince of Pilsen" and other operas.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Associate Justice William H. It was said to-day at the hospital that the Justice would probably return to his home in Haverhill within two weeks if his improvement continues. Dr. Joel E. Goldthwaite, Justice Moody's physician, issued the following statement to-day: "Justice Moody is suffering from rheumatism, and comes here for special treatment for the relief of the inflammation. Justice Moody is weak, but is as well as could be expected from long illness. He is not critically ill, and no operation is intended."

DO YOUR EARS BUZZ?

Has it ever been explained to you why it is that so many of those persons who have catarrh suffer from head noises and become deaf? I take it for granted that you know that it has been shown that about all the diseases we suffer from, catarrh included, result from the presence of germs which have attacked certain parts of the body. If you have a wound on the body that has been made by an accident or by the surgeon's knife, the question of whether you will recover from the wound will depend very largely on whether certain germs get into the wound or not. When germs enter a wound they produce a condition known as blood poisoning. Now, in blood poisoning the germs themselves do not necessarily enter the blood but the germs while living and multiplying, throw off poisons which are taken into the blood, and these poisons attack the nerves and cause the terrible suffering and other serious manifestations that go to point out blood poisoning.

Most every poison that enters the blood seeks out the ear nerves and attacks them. When the ear nerves are poisoned, they try to tell you of their trouble, and the means they use is to cause unnatural sounds in the ears, that may resemble in the one case the ringing of bells, in another the escaping of steam, in another the rattling of machinery, in another the falling of water, and in still another the chirping of crickets.

The most common form of germ disease that people suffer from is catarrh in the nasal passages and throat. When there is catarrh present in these parts, there are countless numbers of germs at work, not only irritating the membranes, but throwing off poisons from their bodies, which are taken into the blood and carried to the ear nerves. It is for this reason that so many persons with catarrh notice that they have head noises and become deaf. The poisons from the catarrh germs act on the ear nerves like a big dose of quinine does, and every one is familiar with the ear noises and deafness that are caused by quinine.

I have made a discovery in the treatment of head noises and deafness which I consider an important one. My discovery does away with the necessity of passing instruments into the ear tubes, which measures have proved unsatisfactory, are painful, and instead of curing the disease have often forced it further up into the ear tubes.

I know that if deafness is taken in time and the blood is freed of those poisonous substances which irritate the ear nerves, the head noises will usually disappear and the hearing will improve. I know further that even later in the disease, where the head noises and deafness have been present for several years, once the system is freed of the poisons which cause the trouble the hearing will improve.

WAS DEAF NINE YEARS—NOISES IN EARS LIKE A SAW MILL.

Among the first upon whom I tested my new method for head noises and deafness in New York, was Mr. John A. Conniff, who lives at 175 Clendenny Ave., Jersey City, N. J.

The story Mr. Conniff told me when he consulted me was, that nine years ago his hearing began to fail, and his ears kept getting worse, until finally he could not hear what anyone said to him who was two feet off. He could not hear over the telephone, and he had constant noises in his ears that sounded like a saw mill. Mr. Conniff had been treated several times under the old method of passing instruments through his nostrils and into his ear tubes. This treatment caused him considerable pain and soreness, but he got no permanent benefit from the treatment.

Mr. Conniff has been under my method of treatment for three months and now his hearing has nearly all returned to his right ear. He can hear perfectly over the telephone with it and he can hear what a person says to him who is twenty feet off, and the speaker has his back turned, which is one of the hardest tests for the hearing. The noises have disappeared, and the hearing is gradually returning to his left ear.

The case of Mr. Conniff is cited as showing how cases of deafness and head noises that had refused to respond to the old method of passing instruments into the ear tubes often yield to my methods of treatment.

Here is who I am and what I have done: I graduated in medicine in New York in 1879. I was the prize winner of my class. I won in competitive examination the position of Physician to Bellevue Hospital, where I served in 1879 and 1880.

I have made a specialty of diseases of the throat and ear for thirty years. I decided the best way I could tell the people who I was and what I had done was to advertise in the daily papers.

The following interview with Professor Loomis will explain what he thought of me:

(N. Y. World, Sept. 2, 1894.)

"Professor Loomis of the University of New York, the great specialist, said, in alluding to medical men who advertise: 'Dr. McCoy, for instance, is an able man, well educated, a thorough scientist and a first-class physician. He is a graduate of Bellevue Hospital. He advertises, does an immense business and is doing much good.'"

If you think my training and experience should make me a good ear doctor, I should be pleased to have you visit my offices. It will cost you nothing for an examination and advice. If your ears have been so neglected that treatment will not restore your hearing, I have the best insrument ever invented to make deaf people hear. It is called the Baker Microphone. I will be pleased to give you an opportunity to test this little device free.

WEST POINT MOURNS FOR CADET BYRNE

MESSAGES OF CONDOLENCE

Harvard Sends Delegation to Funeral—Navy Willing to Play Annual Game with the Army.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 1.—The Military Academy is mourning to-day the loss of Cadet Eugene A. Byrne, who died yesterday as a result of injuries received Saturday in the football game with Harvard. Many telegrams expressing sympathy and sorrow were received to-day by Col. Hugh L. Scott, Superintendent of the Academy, and James A. Byrne, the dead cadet's father, who with the young man's mother will remain with the body until it is buried to-morrow with full military honors in the West Point Academy Cemetery. The funeral services will be held at 11 A. M.

Messages of condolence contnued to pour in upon the Academy authorities today. One from Harry G. Chase, Chairman of the Directors of Athletics at Tufts College, expressed the sympathy of the Faculty and students of Tufts. A telegram from The Daily Princetonian in behalf of the undergraduates of Princeton University voiced the condolences of Princetonians.

The announcement that football would be suspended for the rest of the season at West Point was taken with comparative equanimity by the cadet body to-day. Last night's announcement by Col. H. L. Scott, the Superintendent of the Academy, was made too late for the news to become known to the corps until to-day. Officers and students alike seem gratified that the decision to call off the game for the season was arrived at and acted upon quickly, even though it involved as it did the excision of the annual game with the Navy.

The dropping of the big game of the year was naturally a severe blow to the Academy's football enthusiasts, but with the classmate, Eugene A. Byrne, the Buffalo boy victim of a fatal accident in Saturday's game with Harvard lying dead on the Academy grounds, there was little heart felt for the game among the team members. The cadet body in general has lost its appetite for the sport, for the time being, at least.

So far as can be gathered to-day, however, there is small sentiment for the abolishment of the game altogether at the Government institution.

Cadet Byrne's body was taken to-day, under escort of his classmates, as guard of honor, from the Cadet Hospital to the Catholic chapel on the post grounds, where it will lie in state until the military funeral to-morrow. The ceremony will be an imposing one. The church service will be attended by the members of Cadet Byrne's class. From the church the body, in flag-draped, flower-banked coffin, on an artillery caisson drawn by six horses, will be escorted to the West Point Cemetery by the entire cadet corps, headed by the Academy band and followed by the family and mourners and all of the officers of the post. The cadet corps will fire three volleys over the grave, and the final tribute will be the sounding of taps by the trumpeter.

Members of the graduating class will serve as the active pall bearers. All exercises except those of necessity are suspended for the day, the half-masted flag proclaiming the reason for the cessation of the academic activities. The suspension of duties and recitations will continue until after the funeral.

Supt. Scott said to-day that he had received no official communications regarding Cadet Byrne's accidental death or upon the football situation. He was emphatic in declaring that he considered football too valuable a sport to be dropped from the Academy's list.

Louis Byrne, brother of the dead cadet, reached here from Buffalo to-day and joined his parents in their mourning.

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 1.—It was announced at Harvard to-night that Capt. Hamilton Fish, Jr., and Coaches C. A. Daly and G. P. Gardner, Jr., would attend the funeral of Cadet Byrne at West Point. There will also be present a party of graduates representing the Harvard Club of New York.

The following letter was sent to Col. H. L. Scott of West Point to-night by the Harvard Student Council:

"The undergraduates of Harvard University wish to express their keen sorrow at the deah of Cadet Byrne and to extend to you and all the members of West Point their deepest sympathy."

The communication was signed by G. P. Gardner, Jr., F. C. Bacon, H. Fish, Jr., and S. A. Sargent.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 1.—The telegram of Col. Scott, Superintendent of the West Point Military Academy, to Supt. Bowyer of the Naval Academy, expressing the desire of West Point to discontinue football for the rest of the season as a result of the fatal accident to Cadet Byrne in the game with Harvard last Saturday, was received by Capt. Bowyer to-day. It was referred by that official to the Executive Committee of the Navy Athletic Association for consideration and a recommendation to the Superintendent.

This action followed a consultation over the telephone between Capt. Bowyer and the Navy Department at Washington. No comment for publication could be obtained beyond the brief announcement of the disposition of Col. Scott's telegram. The Executive Committee of the Athletic Association will not meet until Wednesday.

Should West Point persist in its stand it naturally follows that this year's game between the two academies will be called off, although it may be said that Navy is willing to play. Neither the death of Cadet Byrne, nor the injury to Midshipman Wilson in a game here two weeks ago, will, it is said, have any effect upon the continuance of the game at the Naval Academy.

The Naval Academy authorities made up their minds several days ago that even should death follow Wilson's injuries the remaining games, including that with West Point, would not be canceled.

TO ABOLISH ALL SPORTS.

Students of Medico-Chirurgical College Take Action.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—The students of the Medico-Chirurgical College held a mass meeting this afternoon and decided to abolish all athletics at the institution, because of the death yesterday of Michael Burke, a member of the college football team, who was injured in a game on Saturday.

The Medico-Chirurgical team was playing the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy when Burke received a concussion of the brain. The students will attend the funeral of the dead player at his home in Shenandoah, Penn.

May Stop Football in Pittsburg Schools

PITTSBURG, Nov. 1.—On account of the recent football fatalities, Samuel Andrews, Superintendent of the Public Schools of Pittsburg, took a decided stand against the game to-day and it is probable every influence will be brought to bear for the suppression of football here.

SIDNEY HOMER'S SONGS.

Mme. Louise Homer in a Recital of Them for MacDowell Club's Benefit.

Mme. Louise Homer appeared yesterday afternoon in the Lyceum Theatre in a recital of songs by her husband, Sidney Homer, for the benefit of the students' fund of the MacDowell Club. The theatre was filled quite to its utmost capacity with an audience disposed to admiration and to free expression of enthusiasm and its regard for the concert givers. Mr. J. W. Alexander announced before the concert began that the whole audience was invited to take tea with Mr. and Mrs. Homer at the rooms of the MacDowell Club after the music was done; and the fact that this would crowd the rooms was to his mind an argument in favor of a larger building for the club. But it scarcely needed this free-handed hospitality to make it evident that the relation of the audience to the singer and the composer was not exactly that generally prevailing between listeners and performers at public concerts.

The programme was entirely composed of Mr. Homer's songs, and he himself played the accompaniments. Mme. Homer sang them with whole-hearted devotion, and if she did not penetrate into the core of the composer's meaning and intention, who should? Her voice was never more beautiful, richer, or fuller; and the small size of the theatre, with its excellent acoustics, told strongly in favor of the music, the singer, and a general understanding of the songs and the verses to which they are composed.

There could not have been a more favorable presentation of Mr. Homer's work than there was on this occasion. His songs have become well known in New York of late years; they have appeared on many programmes of local and other singers. They have been justly admired and commended.

There are very few composers, however, who alone could furnish the matter for a whole programme that should not to some extent pall with monotony, and it is no derogation to Mr. Homer's talent that some of the listeners at this concert found something of this before it was time to reassemble for tea. It is not often that he has opened a vein of melodic invention so free as that of his setting of Stevenson's "Sing Me a Song of a Lad That Is Gone," and it is evident that this is not the strongest element of his talent for song composition. He has gained some of his strongest and best effects in the employment of a free declamatory style, or of short or loosely modeled melodic figures for the voice, united to an accompaniment whose independent facture, characteristic expressiveness, and pregnant harmonies, often dissonant and of unconventional progression, is skillfully employed to heighten the emotional coloring given to the poem.

Such verse as that of Browning's "Prospice" and "A Woman's Last Word" Mr. Homer treats in a vividly effective manner. He has done little that is more seizing than his setting of the eight lines of Tennyson, "Thy Voice Is Heard." There is an enhancement of the tense moral of Dobell's "How's My Boy?" through the characteristic and powerful musical expression he has found for it, as has been made known to this public before. There is less distinction in his music to Tennyson's "Sweet and Low," or in that to Holmes's "Last Leaf" and Henley's "From the Brake the Nightingale," and in general of his purely lyric productions.

The lyrics from Christina Rossetti's "Sing Song" (several of which Mme. Gadski sang last Sunday) were what pleased the audience most, though they are the slightest of Mr. Homer's work, and not that which brings his best qualities into play. They are gay and pleasing, they are not lacking in an archness and simplicity that interpret the nature of the verse. Three of them Mme. Horner was at once obliged to repeat—"In the verse. Three of them Mme. Homer was which the music is perhaps most truly humorous, and "A Pocket Handkerchief to Hem."

SEVEN MORE SINGERS HERE.

Hammerstein Meets Mme. Mazarin and Mme. Doria at Pier.

Several more of Mr. Hammerstein's song birds arrived yesterday on the Touraine, and last night at the Manhattan Opera House nearly all the principals who will appear in "Herodiade" on the opening night appeared for rehearsal. The singers who came were Maurice Renaud, Charles Dalmores, Mariette Mazarin, the new dramatic soprano; Jean Vallier, the new French bass; Armand Crabbe, Augusta Doria, the contralto, who was not expected so soon; Polese, the Italian tenor, and Oscar Anselmi, the new Italian conductor.

Mr. Hammerstein went to the pier to meet his singers, as has long been his custom. Mme. Mazarin seemed to be somewhat confused when she first got off the boat, but was finally led in the direction of her impresario, who greeted her warmly. She is a smart-looking woman with tawny hair and hazel eyes.

Mme. Mazarin is to make her debut here in "Aida," but later she is to be heard in "Elektra." She was the first of the French Salomees, having sung the part when the Strauss work was produced at the Theatre de la Monnaie in Brussels.

After Mme. Mazarin had been greeted, Mr. Hammerstein was clasped by Mme. Doria, who in turn handed him over to the new bass, Mr. Vallier. Mr. Vallier is tall, dark, and good looking.

The new conductor, Mr. Anselmi, whose first name also is Oscar, is a young man about 30 years old. He brings his wife with him.

Mr. Renaud has sung about twenty weeks this Summer in Europe. Charles Dalmores, more slender than ever, said he had sung about forty times in several European cities.

Augusta Doria said she had sung in Ostend and Trouville and had offers from Frankfort and Milan, but did not care to stay away so long. She heard "Elektra" in Cologne, and said that there was a thrill in every moment. Mme. Doria will sing Clytemnestra at the Manhattan.

The Touraine had very rough weather. There was only one smooth day, Thursday.

MME. CAVALAZZI RETURNS.

First Visit Since Elopement with Charles Mapleson, 25 Years Ago.

Mme. Malvine Cavalazzi, who is to be in charge of the Metropolitan Opera Company's ballet school, arrived yesterday on the Lapland. This is Mme. Cavalazzi's first return to America since her elopement with Charles Mapleson twenty-five years ago. Charles Mapleson was a son of Col. Mapleson, a famous impresario in Academy of Music days.

Mme. Cavalazzi was a famous premier danseuse of her time, and she was brought to America and danced at the Metropolitan Opera House during its first season. Her success is said to have been great, but she eloped with Mapleson, as Col. Mapleson had forbidden the match.

The Colonel later became reconciled, but Charles Mapleson and his bride never returned to America. The young man died in the early eighties. During recent years Mme. Cavalazzi has conducted a ballet school in London.

Leonora Sparkes, the English soprano, who is to sing at the Metropolitan, also arrived on the Lapland.

To-day on the Kronprinzessin Cecilie, Rachmaninoff, the Russian composer, who is to conduct his own works with symphny orchestras and play others on the piano, is to arrive. On this same boat are Messrs. Caruso, Jorn, Whitehill, and Forsell, Mrs. Dippel and Miss Bella Alten. On the Potsdam, which arrives to-day, are George Regis, Henry Duttiley, Jeanne Maubourg, Lucette de Lievin, Pasquale Amato, Paul Ananian, and Fernando Gianoli-Galletti.

SAYS HE SAW COOK GIVE UP HIS CLIMB

HIS STORY CONTROVERTED

Special to The New York Times.

PORTLAND, Ore., Nov. 1.—"If Dr. Cook claims he climbed to the top of Mount McKinley he tells an untruth," is the curt way that Jacob Suter of Bellingham, Wash., an old, experienced mountaineer and prospector, defined his idea of the explorer's claim to have made an ascent of that mountain, in a recent interview in The Portland Oregonian.

"Dr. Cook never reached the summit of Mount McKinley, and I want to say right here that no other man ever made the top. In the first place it is a physical impossibility, for the peak of that mountain is a pyramid or pinnacle of solid, glaring ice, almost perpendicular, and no man, even if he chopped steps in the ice, could climb up. I have been all around that mountain and know exactly what I am talking about.

"My statement that Dr. Cook did not reach the top of Mount McKinley is not based on mere heresay evidence, for I was there at the time Dr. Cook and his party tried to make the ascent. There were four of us in the party—the McCarty brothers of San Francisco, Sam May, and myself. We were prospecting in the gulches and along the creeks at the base of the mountain when Dr. Cook and his men arrived.

"He went up to the last bench on the mountain, a distance of about 8,000 or 9,000 feet, but did not reach the summit. We saw them on the mountain with our field glasses. They went as high as they could, and when they reached the perpendicular walls of ice they could go no further.

Saw Both Starts Made.

"We saw them start up Yetna River, and they came back because the route was too difficult. Then, they went up the Shushitna River and got up to the wall of ice which is many miles from the top.

"Through the glasses we saw them turn back and come down. I have prospected all over the base of Mount McKinley and have been to the point reached by Cook. Several others have been that high on the mountain; and that is as high as any one will ever get on account of that wall of ever-changing ice which cannot be scaled even though steps were cut in its sides.

"On that trip Cook did one of the most inhuman acts I ever saw in my life. He left four horses in the river valley to starve to death. They were saved until the Winter snows fell and after that there was no chance for them. We never saw the horses after Cook abandoned them. If he had shot them it would have been mercy.

"I have been on all the big mountains of explored Alaska, the Selkirks, the Frazer, Cascade, and Olympics, and I can tell what peaks are impossible of ascent. McKinley will never be scaled, and the top can only be reached by a flying machine. The same applies to Mount Roosevelt and Mount Forakei, both of which stand close to McKinley."

Portland has two loyal supporters of Dr. Cook in Mr. and Mrs. Waitman T. Wade of 447 Sixth Street. Mr. Wade is an expert mountaineer and guide. They, with two others, formed a party of prospectors who were among the last to talk with Dr. Cook before his attempted ascent of the peak on the southwestern side. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wade are firm in their conviction that Dr. Cook and his party made the ascent on the southeastern slope of Mount McKinley after a futile attempt to reach the summit on the west.

Met Cook at Dutch Creek.

Mr. and Mrs. Wade spent the entire Summer of 1906 prospecting along the southern base of Mount McKinley. While searching for "pay dirt" about the foot of the mountain they came upon Dr. Cook and his party camped at Dutch Creek, a branch of the Kahiltna, which drains the southwestern side of the mountain. This was on the afternoon of July 14, 1906, according to entries in a diary kept by Mrs. Wade of her sojourn in the wilds near the base of the mountain. Cook and his party were then camped about twenty miles from Mount McKinley and to the southwest. After a few hours' visit in the Cook camp, during which Dr. Cook expressed his determination to reach the summit of the mountain, the Wade party pressed on eastward.

Nine days later they sighted Cook's party camped on the Tokashitna glacier at the base of Mount McKinley and six miles north of their camp on the bank of the Tokashitna River. From observations made through their glasses Wade and his party were convinced, owing to the steepness of Mount McKinley near the piont where Dr. Cook had camped on the west side, that the ascent would be impossible. Fulfilling their convictions, the Cook party, composed of nine men and eleven horses, was subsequently compelled to abandon the ascent from the west side of the mountain.

According to statements of Mr. and Mrs. Wade, verified by maps and diary notes, the Wade party continued eastward along the foot of the mountain for four weeks, and eventually reached the southeastern base of the mountain after crossing the Chulitna and Shushitna Rivers. From their camp at the foot of the mountain they saw the possibility of reaching the summit of Mount McKinley along its gradual incline.

After abandoning its camp on the Tokashitna River the Wade party neither saw nor heard of Dr. Cook or his party until they reached Knik on Cook's Inlet, Sept. 15. Here they learned that Dr. Cook had abandoned his attempt to ascend Mount McKinley on the southwestern slope, and had gone down the Kahlitna River in canoes with his party. Upon reaching Churchill's Station, at the junction of the Yetna and Shushitna Rivers, Dr. Cook resorted to other tactics.

Ascended Gradual Slope.

Repairing the broken rudder of the launch moored at Churchill Station, Dr. Cook and party boarded the craft and moved up the Shushitna River to the extreme navigable point. From that point they ventured overland, according to reports made to the Wade party, toward the southeastern slope of Mount McKinley in a northwesterly direction from the point where the party had left the launch in the Shushitna River. Dr. Cook and his party then ascended the gradual slope of the mountain which the Wade party had observed a few weeks before.

"As to the statement made by Jacob Suter of Bellingham," said Mr. Wade tonight, "to the effect that he was prospecting in the gulches at the base of Mount McKinley at the time Dr. Cook and his party arrived on Dutch Creek when he attempted to ascend the westerly slope, it is inconceivable to me that Suter could have witnessed Dr. Cook's futile attempt to scale the mountain. In the first place, it would have been necessary for Suter to accompany Dr. Cook and the party in the ascent. In the next place, it would have been necessary for him to travel more than 100 miles about the southern base of the mountain after he first saw the Cook party near the westerly side of Mount McKinley.

"It would have been an utter impossibility for Suter to cover the distance from Dutch Creek to the southeasterly slope of Mount McKinley in time to see the Cook party make its ascent a few weeks after he first say the party. No man could have made such a trip and packed provisions on his back. I was the only man who had horses east of the Tokashitna River that Summer except Dr. Cook, according to the assertions of the natives.

"As for Suter or any one else making the assertion that it was an impossibility to reach the summit of Mount McKinley except in an airship, in my judgment any one making such an assertion cannot have had much experience in mountain climbing, or at least never saw the southeastern slope of Mount McKinley."

ALASKANS TO TRY ASCENT.

Party of Five to Start for Mount McKinley in Two Weeks.

FAIRBANKS, Alaska, Nov. 1.—A party of five Alaskans, all familiar with Mount McKinley, has been organized to climb the peak this Winter and to put an end to the controversy as to whether Dr. Cook reached the summit.

The party will start on Nov. 15. The expedition is being financed here.

PEACE IN RUBENSTEIN CLUB.

Members Atuned Over the Prospect of the Coming Musical Season.

A long season of harmony in the Rubenstein Club, without one minor chord, such as was struck last Spring, when Mrs. Adelaide Wallerstein, the deposed President, got an injunction to prevent the club from electing officers and adopting new by-laws, was promised yesterday by Mrs. William Rogers Chapman, who was elected President of the club unanimously last May after the court had vacated Mrs. Wallerstein's injunction.

According to the prospectus handed out yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria by Mrs. Chapman, the calendar of concerts to be given at the hotel for the ensuing year includes a number of well known artists. Mme. Nordica will appear as soloist at the first evening concert on Dec. 14.

As a forerunner to the formal opening of the season Mrs. Chapman will give a private tea at the Waldorf to-morrow afternoon to the officers and members of the club committees as a sort of peace conference after the battle waged in the courtroom.

Mrs. Chapman was quite enthusiastic yesterday over the end of strife, and the outlook for the harmonized organization.

"There have been only twenty-nine resignations from the club since the court proceedings," she said. "To our delight the membership has been steadily on the increase, and the club now has enrolled 500 ladies."

Mrs. Wallerstein, who started an organization of her own, the Mozart Club, now has it in running order.

ACTORS QUIT CHURCH UNION.

Say It Is Folly to Attempt Alliance of Church and Stage.

n CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Officers and many members of the Actors' Church Alliance of Chicago, deserted that organization at a meeting to-day, asserting that it was folly to attempt an alliance between the church and the stage. The deserters announced the formation of a new organization, "The Playgoers Club of Chicago," the purpose of which will be to "uplift the stage without church interference or advice."

President Nathaniel I. Rubikam, in leading the secession, said that the proposed Playgoers' Club would be organized on lines similar to a great club in London, where much good has been done in elevating the stage.

Many members joined the new movement, while a few declared that the Church Alliance would be reorganized.

Nine Little Geisha Girls In Blue.

Nine little Geisha girls, all in long, light-blue coats trimmed with fur, arrived yesterday on the French Line steamship Touraine. They come here to enliven the vaudeville houses with a fifteen-minute sketch, during which they sing and play Japanese instruments. The troupe has been playing in Paris and London. They expect to open in Baltimore and play through the West. As the vessel came up the bay the nine little women, whose ages range between 19 and 21 years, came on deck. It was the first time they had had a chance to enjoy the deck since the vessel left Havre. Their manager explained that their feet are so small that it was hard for them to get about the vessel in rough weather.

Helpers to Give a Bazaar.

The Helpers is planning a bazaar and sale, to be held at Delmonico's on the afternoons of Friday and Saturday of Nov. 19 and 20. The Helpers is a religious body situated at 112 and 114 East Eighty-sixth Street, which does work among the poor, providing clubs for boys, a free circulating library, and general settlement work. Miss Adele Le Brun is the President and Mrs. William P. Van Wyck Secretary. Mrs. Emile Vatable is Vice President. Among the patronesses are Miss Leary, Mrs. Herbert D. Robbins, Miss Iselin, Mrs. John V. Bouvier, Mrs. T. C. T. Crain, Mrs. Allan W. Ramsey, and Mrs. Henry Hall Forbes.

"Seven Days" Produced in Trenton.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 1.—The first performance of "Seven Days," a new comedy by Mary Roberts Rinehart and Avery Hopwood, was produced at the Taylor Opera House to-night under the direction of Wagenhals & Kemper. The play is in three acts, all of which are laid in a Riverside Drive residence in New York City. In the company are Hope Latham, Florence Reed, Georgia O'Ramey, Lucille La Verne, Herbert Corthell, Allan Pollock, Carl Eckstrom, Jay Wilson, William Eville, and F. C. Butler. The play will be given its metropolitan production at the Astor Theatre on Nov. 10.

"Mrs. Dakon" Produced in Albany.

Special to The New York Times.

METROPOLITAN CASE APPEAL.

Securities Company Carries $5,000,000 Suit to United States Supreme Court.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The petition of the Metropolitan Securities Company of New York for a writ of certiorari in the case of that company against William W. Ladd, receiver of the New York City Railway Company, was presented to the Supreme Court of the United States today. The case involves a judgment of about $5,000,000 for damages alleged to have been suffered by the New York City company on account of a breach of certain agreements in connection with the lease of the railway to that company by the Metropolitan Street Railway Company.

The case was decided in the New York Federal Courts in favor of the railway company, and the Securities Company asks the Supreme Court to review the entire records.

Petitions for writs were also presented in behalf of the Guaranty Trust Company in the case of that company against the Metropolitan Street Railway Company and the Morton Trust Company against the Guaranty Company, involving the foreclosure of the Metropolitan Company's mortgage of 1897 for $12,500,000 to secure its bonds.

VAN AMRINGE TO LEAVE COLUMBIA

Dean of the College Retiring, at His Own Request, After Fifty Years' Service.

For fifty years Prof. J. Howard Van Amringe has been praised in story and song of Columbia College men. All that time he has been one of the Faculty, and students and alumni have been steadfast in loyalty to him. He is the Dean of Columbia and head of the Department of Mathematics. At his own request he will be retired next year. In taking action on his application the Board of Trustees makes account of his life work and gives him the recognition of unusual merit. The board expresses its regret in receiving his resignation and its reluctance to accept it.

These are extracts from yesterday's minutes of the meeting of the Board of Trustees:

The Board of Trustees of Columbia College has received with great regret the resignation of Prof. Van Amringe, Dean of Collumbia College and senior in point of service to any person now in the university, and directs that the following entry be made in the minutes of the Trustees.

John Howard Van Amringe was graduated from Columbia College in the class of 1860. Even before his graduation he had undertaken some part of the work of teaching, and immediately after receiving the degree of Bachelor of Arts, he was appointed a tutor in mathematics. In 1865 he was promoted to be Professor of Mathematics in the college, and was made one of the Faculty of the newly organized School of Mines.

Great Among Mathematicians.

For fifty years, therefore, Prof. Van Amringe has served the university with unwearied diligence and zeal, and with great success as a teacher. He has proved himself a worthy successor and associate of the eminent mathematicians whose names, from Robert Adrain to the present time, have adorned the annals of Columbia.

But it is not alone upon his merits as a mathematician or an instructor that the reputation of Prof. Van Amringe rests. His unique distinction, and the affectionate regard of all his pupils and colleagues, have been won in the field of college administration as well as in that of teaching. For the past twenty years or more he has been in charge—at first unofficially and afterward officially—of the administrative work of Columbia College.

His unexampled success in that field has been due in part to his long experience, in part to his clear grasp of the special problems of this college, in part to his strong sense of justice and fair play; but above all to that love for and sympathy with and understanding of the undergraduates under his charge, which have been the most distinctive and attractive features of his striking personality.

As he has now almost attained the age of three score and fifteen years, his desire to be relieved of the burden of his work—although still in full vigor of mind and body—must be respected by this board, which feels reluctantly compelled to grant his request; and in so doing takes this method of expressing its obligations to Prof. Van Amringe for his long, continued and zealous labors, and its best wishes for his health and happiness.

Resolved, That the application of John Howard Van Amringe, Ph. D., L. H. D., LL. D., Professor of Mathematics and Dean of Columbia College, to be retired from active service on June 30, 1910, when he will have completed a half century of academic service, and have reached the age of 75 years, be granted, and the clerk be requested to make application to the Carnegie Foundation for a retiring allowance for Prof. Van Amringe, based upon age and academic service.

No man is better known or better liked by Columbia men than "Van Am," which is the way they speak and sing of him. Senior in service on the Columbia Faculty, he has been the instructor of practically all of his associates, including President Butler. There are probably few men anywhere who have an ear for rollicking college songs that have not heard the song "Van Am." It goes this way:

D'ye ken Van Am with his snowy hair,
D'ye ken Van Am with his whiskers rare,
D'ye ken Van Am with his martial air,
As he crosses the Quad in the morning.

For the sight of Van Am raised my hat from my head,
And the sound of his voice often filled me with dread,
Oh, I shook in my boots at the things that he said,
When he asked me to call in the morning.

Yes, I kenned Van Am, to my sorrow, too,
When I was a freshman of verdant hue,
First a cut, then a bar, then an interview,
With the Dean in his den in the morning.

But we love Van Am from our heart and soul;
Let's drink to his health, let us finish the bowl,
We'll swear by Van Am, through fair and through foul,
And wish him the top o' the morning.

Dean of Columbia many a day?
Long may he live and long may he stay
Where his voice may be heard in the morning.

Prof. Van Amringe has been known through his long service as the peacemaker of the college. In any dispute, any contention, between the students and the Faculty that was difficult of adjustment, the Dean was invariably called in to settle it, and he invariably settled it to the satisfaction of the students and the great relief of the Faculty.

This was not only after he became Dean, but long before. All the boys would say that it was all right when it became known that "Van Am" would intervene to exercise his good offices.

It is common knowledge that whenever an alumnus gets near the college campus he takes off his hat and cheers "Van Am." This is a usual practice among the students, may be this year, certainly last year, and all the years that have gone before.

WATSON WAS BITTER FOR DAVIDSON'S SAKE

Poet of "The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue" Wrote Two Letters to London Times.

ASQUITH REPLIED TO CRITICS

Watson Charged Scots Poet's Suicide to Neglect—Pointed to Public Interest in Charlesworth Case in Contrast.

William Watson, whose recent poem, "The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue," has stirred literary and social circles in England, wrote two letters to The London Times—not merely the one referred to by the poet's nephew, W. R. Watson, in Montreal—protesting in an indignant manner at the harsh treatment of the Scottish poet, the late John Davidson, famous for his "Fleet Street Eclogues," and the refusal of the Government to assist him with the customary pension. These letters were published April 26 and May 12 last, after Davidson had left his home in London, leaving papers indicating suicidal intent. W. R. Watson asserted that he knew the treatment of Davidson which called forth the letters also inspired the poem, "The Woman with the Serpent's Tongue," and added that his uncle had mentioned to him on a recent visit the name of the woman at whom the verses were aimed and the occasion of writing them.

touch the springs
That move who knows what men and things
That on her will their fates have hung,
The woman with the Serpent's Tongue.

has been assumed in England to be that of a lady so high placed in English society and politics as to be able to influence the granting of poets' pensions and even titles.

It was on March 23 that Davidson disappeared. "The time has come to make an end," he wrote. On Sept. 18 the body of the unfortunate poet was found by fishermen three miles off the coast of Penzance, near Plymouth, and there the body was buried at sea three days later.

William Watson's first letter to The London Times on the Davidson tragedy, published April 26, is, in part, as follows:

To the Editor of The Times:

Sir,—It seems no longer to admit of reasonable doubt that John Davidson has passed beyond

"the painted veil which those who live call Life"

into some other world, if there be one—a world whose existence he denied; and the the fact of his mysterious departure seems to have but slight interest for the English people. When recently an utterly insignificant and uninteresting young woman resorted to the "appearance" of disappearance in order to escape her creditors this great nation went into throes of excitement over the trumpery affair, but when a man who had worn out his fiery heart and brain in his service goes down to some grave as unknown as his who heard the thunder of Sinai—goes down to it in the last bitterness of despair—the British nation is uninterested and unmoved.

That is perhaps the first thing to strike one in connection with the Davidson episode; but the matter has various other aspects. This episode—in the literary history of England—is one more addition to the long list of tragedies which we may consider as beginning with the death of Spenser "for lack of bread," (if Ben Jonson's words are to be trusted,) and which emphatically did not end with the death of Chatterton in his miserable garret, murdered by the editors who had accepted his contributions and paid for them at the rate of eight pence for a poem and one shilling for an article. For let there be no mistake about it: John Davidson died because he could not make a living.

Let it be freely acknowledged that Davidson had exhausted himself long before his last volume saw the light. None the less, this was a man who, notwithstanding all the crudity of his later thinking, all the resentment against society and Fate which made much of his utterance so turbid, was yet a creature with something of the divine fire in him—something of the infernal fire as well, which also we need in a poet—and he passes almost unremarked to his strange and lonely death, as real a singer, when he sang his best, as the great and famous veteran who has just died amid a tempest of praise. What though his "best" can all be gathered up within the compass of a few pages? The same might be said of twenty English poets of the past, any one of whom is as sure of immortality as Shakespeare or Milton.

The Davidson tragedy, it must in candor be admitted, is one of a class in which we English—and also our Scottish neighbors, when one comes to think of Burns—have attained to a somewhat unenviable eminence. When, if ever, are these tragedies to cease? It is to be feared that we shall never be quite without poets; and if the popular apathy regarding them goes on increasing—if the intellectual life of the nation becomes more and more swamped by money-making, athletics, and the devotion of grown men to boys' games—the Poet's Tragedy is likely to happen with increased frequency. One does not wish one's country to become a by-word for that sort of thing.

WILLIAM WATSON.

G 1, The Albany, W.

This letter caused some harsh criticism, and Prime Minister Asquith, presiding at a dinner, in London early in May, of the Artists' Benevolent Fund, defended the State against the charge of parsimony to artists, saying that artists of all kinds, including men of letters, were only subject to the same risks and chances which attend professional men of all kinds, who have no independent means.

This called forth another letter to The London Times on May 12, in which Mr. Watson replies to the criticisms called forth by his first letter. He cites one of these criticisms, namely:

"If the man could not write what people wanted, why didn't he cobble shoes or do something else equally useful for his living?" and says:

"Now, Sir, let me say a word to the gentlemen who advocate shoe cobbling as the ideal occupation for impecunious genius. They ask, with an extraordinary unanimity, why a poet should go on writing what nobody wants. May I point out that the question might have been asked just as pertinently with regard to Wordsworth at any time during the first fifty years of his life; also with regard to Keats, to Shelley, and to nearly every poet of our great neo-romantic group of a century ago, not to mention Blake, who, according to Swinburne, (whose dictum I can only partially accept,) was the founder of the whole modern school, and whom not more than a dozen men in his lifetime ever for a moment thought of as a poet at all? How many people 'wanted' Wordsworth's poems at the time when, according to Matthew Arnold, he was writing his very best—viz., in the first decade of the last century, between his thirtieth and fourtieth years? These appreciators of his genius were so very few that, had it not been for a small legacy on which he and his sister lived very frugally for six years, one shrinks from imagining what might have happened to the man who lived to influence all the finest minds of his later days and to take his place among the truest benefactors of his country. With his austere independence of spirit—the frame of mind that would probably have refused loans and gifts from friends—he would almost certainly have sunk into a paralyzing despair like Davidson's, even if he had not, like Davidson, taken a voluntary farewell of the unheeding world. We have it in his own unforgettable language how he had brooded on the thought that—

"'We poets in our youth begin in gladness,
But thereof comes in the end despondency and madness.'

"The cases of Keats and Shelley are equally instructive in the present connection. Nobody in their lifetime 'wanted' their poems, but the accident of their having (in different degrees) private pecuniary resources enabled these great men to give their less perishable wealth to the world, which otherwise would have been poorer for the lack of it to this day. Coming to a later date, I myself, in May, 1875, heard the present Lord Tennyson, then Mr. Hallam Tennyson, say in the presence of his illustrious father, at Faringford: 'Why, Browning only gets £200 a year from his publisher for all he writes.'

"Up to the date of which I have been speaking, if not beyond it, one may safely say that had he not been well-to-do he could not have lived by his writings—no one but the merest handful of ardent admirers 'wanting' them—and thus he, too, would have been lost to us, as perhaps other potent writers have been lost to us, through our practice of complacently washing our hands of all responsibility for the preservation and encouragement of the men who, with some exceptions, have co-operated with the greatest thinkers, teachers, and divines in helping to conserve the noblest and most spiritual elements of our national life.

"Returning to John Davidson, I am willing to concede to my critics that he was not a great poet. But, though he was not a great poet, he was a greater poet than Otway, he was a greater poet than Chatterton. And here let me remind my assailants that the case of Chatterton (who actually did try to write what people 'wanted,' only to discover that they would not pay for it) attracted scarcely any attention at the time of the event itself. It only slowly took its place as the 'classical instance.' And let me also assure them that the case of John Davidson will one day infallibly be ranked with these and the like cases, and will stand out against the background of English literary history with the same dark and upbraiding salience."

KOREAN OUTBREAK EXPECTED.

Okubo Prepares to Suppress It—Ito's Body Reaches Tokio.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The correspondent of the Star at Kobe, Japan, telegraphs that an outbreak in Korea is expected following a widespread unrest occasioned by the assassination of Prince Ito.

He adds that Gen. Okubo, commander in chief of the Japanese forces in Korea, has abandoned his projected visit to Tokio and is perfecting plans to deal with the threatened uprising.

TOKIO, Nov. 1.—The body of Prince Ito, who was assassinated by a Korean at Harbin, Manchuria, was received here this afternoon with honors consistent with the distinguished career of the Japanese statesman.

The Japan Society of New York, composed of influential Americans and Japanese in New York City, has sent a cablegram of condolence and sympathy to Princess Ito.

HULBERT MARKED FOR DEATH.

Ladd Says American Adviser of ex-Emperor May Be Killed.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Nov. 1.—George Trumbull Ladd, formerly of Yale, and more recently adviser of Prince Ito in Korea, says that Homer B. Bulbert, an American who has been working with the ex-Emperor of Korea, has been marked for assassination by natives. He said to-day:

"An item of news from the Far East that is unintelligible without explanation is the report that certain parties in Seoul hoped by the assassination of Ito to call the attention of foreign nations to the condition of Korea, and thus, if possible, to secure sympathy and perhaps intervention; that in all this their hopes were especially directed toward the United States. Such a hope would be quite incredible were it not for the following facts:

"For four years now Homer B. Hulbert and certain so-called 'foreign friends' have been receiving large sums of money from the ex-Emperor by encouraging this very hope. When I was in Korea this gentleman left for the United States quite suddenly by way of St. Petersburg, where he spent some time in furtherance of his plans.

"What is thought of this in Seoul can be gathered from the report of the Seoul Daily Press of Sept. 23. This report says that a Korean Literatus has hired a band of assassins to make way with Mr. Hulbert himself, who is now in Korea looking after his real estate interests, on the ground that none other than he is the 'arch enemy' of the country, since he brought it to such a pass by suggesting to the retired Emperor the dispatch of the famous secret mission to The Hague.

"So intricate and uncertain are the political methods of the 'Patriots' and their 'foreign friends' in this unhappy and now bereaved land of Korea."

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Nov. 1.—Homer B. Hulbert is a resident of Springfield. He came here from Mount Vernon, N. Y. He is a graduate of Union Theological Seminary and Dartmouth College, and has been prominently identified with Korean education since 1886. He has written many works on Korea, the latest of which, "The Passing of Korea," created considerable comment.

FRANCE PUTS ON TOP RATES.

Due, Government Says, to American Abrogation of Tariff Agreement.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—Beginning to-day the Government is applying maximum rates on American importations covered by the tariff agreement between the two Governments, which expired yesterday. It is asserted in Government circles that there is nothing unusual in this, although the maximum feature of the new American tariff law will not go into effect until March 31. It is pointed out that it was the United States and not France which terminated the commercial agreements, and the restoration of the former French rates was a logical consequence.

The intimation that the United States might seek a method of retaliation if France enforced its maximum rates on American goods pending a new tariff agreement is not credited here, as it is felt that such action would render the situation acute and would embarrass the coming negotiations for a new agreement.

WHITE DECLINES DECORATION.

American Ambassador Refuses Grand Cordon of the Legion of Honor.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—As a mark of its high esteem on the occasion of his retirement from his post here, the French Government offered American Ambassador White the Grand Cordon of the Legion of Honor, the highest decoration within its gift. Mr. White declined the honor, explaining that he had always been opposed on principle to regular members of the American Diplomatic Service accepting distinctions of a character in which the United States could not reciprocate. Furthermore, he considered the acceptance of such decorations contrary to the spirit of the best American traditions.

When Ambassador White left Rome he declined the Grand Cross of St. Maurice and St. Lazarus offered at the King's own hand during the farewell audience.

BROTHER DEFENDS MRS. A. I. DU PONT

He Says Stories About Wilmington Powder Maker's Wife Are Baseless.

DIVORCED MAN TO TESTIFY

Her First Husband Will Refute Statements Which Led to Suit Against Woman for Slander.

Special to The New York Times.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 1.—Developments to-day in the suit of Alfred I. du Pont against Mrs. Elizabeth Bradford du Pont for slander explain in part why the powder manufacturer took this step. He declares he will fight to the end the suit which he has instituted, for the purpose of defending the good name of his wife.

Edward G. Bradford, Jr., brother of Mrs. du Pont, and law partner of ex-Chancellor John R. Nicholson, to-night made an emphatic statement in support of his sister. Mr. Bradford, who is one of the best known attorneys in Delaware, and who was a Republican representative in the last General Assembly, said:

"The people who have circulated the stories about Mrs. du Pont do not even know her. She has not been associated with them for years. At best, they must have these rumors at second hand. They are absolutely without foundation."

Some of the scandalous statements which it is alleged were circulated by the defendant referred to the relations between Mrs. Alfred I. du Pont and her first husband, G. A. Maddox, now in the West. Mrs. du Pont procured a divorce from Maddox on statutory grounds. To-night it was learned that Maddox himself will appear here as a witness for the woman who divorced him. The reports were to the effect that Maddox denounced Alfred I. du Pont for "breaking up his home life." The former husband will refute this.

It was also announced to-day that Maddox, before his separation from his wife, had arranged to bring suit against Elizabeth Bradford du Pont on the same allegations now charged against her by Alfred I. du Pont.

Maddox at no time was secretary to Alfred I. du Pont, as has been stated. He was Western Manager of the du Pont Powder Company. When his wife instituted the suit for divorce his resignation was requested.

Neither Alfred du Pont nor his wife is identified to any great extent with Wilmington society. They are in Europe more than they are in America, and their apartments in Paris are occupied much of the time. Mrs. du Pont returned from Europe last Friday. She had been abroad since August. She spent the Summer at her Summer home at Southampton, L. I. She was also in Europe in the Spring. One of the reports about her was that she was socially ostracized.

She is a niece of the late Admiral S. F. du Pont and owns the home of the Admiral, Louviers, near here, where Lafayette was entertained each time he came to America. She is second cousin of her husband.

The estate of Alfred I. du Pont is the largest in Delaware. It embraces 1,000 acres. He is now building a home two miles from Wilmington. It will cost $1,000,000.

TRACE OF MISSING PASTOR.

Friend of the Rev. Mr. Vanderbeek Saw Him in London Recently.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 1.—No trace of the Rev. Henry C. Vanderbeek, former pastor of the Forest Hill Presbyterian Church at Newark, N. J., has been found, either at the hotels, police registry headquarters, the Theological Faculty University, or elsewhere in Berlin since his disappearance on July 19, when he told his friend, Robert Griesenback, that he was going to London. Mr. Griesenback could not be located to-day.

When friends of the Rev. Henry C. Vanderbeek were told of the above cable dispatch yesterday they expressed grave fears that he had met with foul play. But these were alleviated a short time afterward when it was learned in Newark that Henry Rabke of that city, who is studying music in London, had seen the clergyman there three weeks ago.

Reid Gives Luncheon for Watterson.

LONDON, Nov. 1.—The American Ambassador, Whitelaw Reid, gave a luncheon at Dorchester House to-day for Henry Watterson, editor of The Louisville Courier-Journal. The editors of most of London's principal newspapers were present, as were also the American Minister to Norway, Herbert H. D. Peirce; Dr. William Osler, Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, and Sir Charles Wyndham.

Strikers Refuse to Resume Work.

LUDLOW, Mass., Nov. 1.—The efforts on the part of the Ludlow Manufacturing Associates to reopen their mills, which have been closed for a week by a strike of operatives, were not successful to-day. Of the more than 2,800 operatives who struck last week, only 300 reported at the mills this morning. The company made no effort to import strike breakers. No violence on the part of the strikers was attempted to-day. Following a mass meeting this morning the French and Polish operatives attended religious services in honor of All Saints' Day.

ARRESTED ON WEDDING DAY.

Bridal Pair and Witness Are Held After Purse Disappears.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Nov. 1.—After a chase across country, Deputy Sheriff Mannis overtook a bridal party, consisting of James Mapes and his bride and a witness, Mrs. Mary Spitzer, at Coats Grove, eight miles from here. He arrested them on a charge of stealing a purse containing $9. They were brought back to the scene of their marriage not an hour before.

Earlier in the day Mapes, who lives at Woodland, Mich.; Mrs. Alice Bost of Shelby, and Mrs. Spitzer, whose home is at Sunfield, came to Hastings and went to the private office of County Clerk W. L. Thorp, where Probate Judge Mack married Mapes and Mrs. Bost. Mrs. Lucy Crook, a stenographer, had been in the clerk's private office copying papers, and shortly after the bridal party left she missed her purse.

Mr. and Mrs. Mapes and Mrs. Spitzer obtained bail, after some delay, and a hearing was set for Nov. 8.

ARMY FLYING RECORD WON BY LIEUT. LAHM

GUN TEST FOR BALLOONS

Experiments in Shooting at Aerial Targets Soon to Begin at Sandy Hook Proving Grounds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Lieut. Lahm broke all records this morning for the officer-students of aero-navigation in long-time flying by staying in the air for 58½ minutes. Wilbur Wright was on the field at College Park, Md., when the flight was made, but he did not coach his former pupil, who like the other two officers are now considered graduates in the art of which Mr. Wright is pioneer.

When the flight was over Mr. Wright said that he was sorry Lieut. Lahm had not known how near he was to the hour mark, as another turn around the field, which he could have made without difficulty, would have put his time record at an even sixty minutes. Lahm descended, however, simply because the high speed aloft made him chilly and because the wind was gradually getting stronger.

Lieut. Lahm made one short flight of sixteen minutes before he started for the record. There was no mishap, and the flight was made as smoothly and with as perfect control of the machine as either of the Wright brothers has shown. While Lieut. Lahm's record is the longest for any of the Wright pupils in this country it has been far exceeded by Wright pupils in Wright airships abroad. Wilbur Wright has himself stayed aloft over two and a half hours, while his brother made one flight of three hours' duration.

To-day's proceedings here were closed by a brilliant flight of two minutes by Wilbur Wright, during which he made such steep ascents that many of the spectators feared the machine was about to "turn turtle."

Fails to Rise in Calm.

This was one of Mr. Wright's last flights on this field. He will leave to-morrow, probably not to return, for instruction purposes unless his presence is especially desired by his pupils. One of the chief features of the programme of the evening was the futile attempt on the part of Mr. Wright to rise with the aeroplane in a dead calm with Lieut. Commander Sweet of the navy as a passenger.

Late in the day a persistent wind had interfered with the flights, so that it was almost dark when Mr. Wright undertook to carry Lieut. Commander Sweet on an air voyage. Mr. Sweet, tipping the scales at 185 pounds, proved to be just a little too much for the heavier-than-air machine in the conditions of dead calm prevailing.

To devise some means of defense against aerial invasion the Bureau of Ordnance of the War Department, it was learned to-day, is about to begin a series of experiments in shooting at air craft with cannon at the Sandy Hook proving grounds, in New Jersey. Capt. Charles De F. Chandler, of the Signal Corps, one of the two qualified pilots in the army, left Washington to-day for New York to make arrangements for the balloons to be used in the tests. He will be stationed temporarily at Fort Wood, near New York City, for that purpose.

Three balloons of comparatively small size will be purchased, and it is for the purpose of inspecting and preparing for the care of them that Capt. Chandler was ordered to New York. At the beginning of the work only gas bags will be used, but as information is obtained the field of operation may be expanded. No one will occupy the baskets of the balloons when firing is in process.

No tests of this nature have ever been made in America, and, as far as is known here, the only experiments of the character have been carried on by gun manufacturers in Germany. The knowledge gained thereby has resulted in the manufacture of balloon cannon. The present tests at Sandy Hook will be made with cannon now in use, and such new designs will be drafted as the experiments seem to call for.

To Muffle Airship Motors.

Meantime the Signal Corps will be engaged in the problem of navigating the air with the greater assurance against successful attack from the land. Experiments will shortly be conducted in muffling the motors of the Wright aeroplane owned by the Government, so that the flight of an aeroplane may be made comparatively noiseless. Attempts to communicate by wireless telegraphy from an aeroplane will also be made.

The experiments of firing upon a balloon in flight with cannon, made in Germany, have resulted in three types of balloon cannon, it was stated at the War Department. One is mounted on wheels, another on a pedestal, and the third on an automobile. The work in Germany has demonstrated, it is said, that ordinary field artillery is ineffective against airships. It has been found that a gun, to shoot balloons successfully, must impart a very high velocity to the shot, so as to allow as brief an interval as possible for the target to change in location. The mechanism of the gun, too, must be such as to allow it to move swiftly and easily in all directions, so as to follow the lateral movements of the target.

The chances of piercing a balloon with shrapnel by directing thousands of balls and splinters against the gas bag, so as to cause its ultimate collapse, makes shells preferable to solid projectiles, it is said. On the other hand, it has been argued that a projectile carrying an inflammable substance would be more effective, because the rain of balls and fragments might result only in gradual sinking, thus making it possible for the enemy to escape.

AIR PILOTS ORGANIZE.

International Association for Licensed Aeronauts Is Formed in Boston.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—The first Association of International Aeronautic Pilots was organized in Boston to-night, marking the 110th anniversary of the first ascension of man in a balloon. The association is for persons who have qualified and hold balloon pilots' licenses issued by an aero club in the International Aeronautic Federation, and is to be devoted to the encouragement of members of aero clubs to become navigators of air craft.

Throughout the world there are but 259 persons entitled to membership, France leading with 114 aeronautical pilots. The United States and Great Britain have thirty-five each. Ten ascensions in a balloon, two of them alone, and one at night, are required to become a pilot.

The following officers were elected: President—Charles J. Glidden, Boston; Vice Presidents—A. Holland Forbes, New York; J. H. Wade, Jr., Cleveland; Secretary—Jay B. Benton, Boston; Treasurer—J. Walter Flagg, Worcester.

Long Flight in Curtiss Aeroplane.

HAMMONDSPORT, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Charles K. Hamilton, a pupil of Glenn H. Curtiss, flew 25 minutes and 25 seconds to-day in the Curtiss Hudson-Fulton aeroplane. His first attempt was made on Friday, and after further practice yesterday and to-day he encircled the Aerodrome nineteen times. This is within a few minutes of equaling the longest flight that Mr. Curtiss has made. Hamilton is an experienced dirigible balloon operator.

TAFT IN MISSISSIPPI LAUDS FARMER'S LIFE

Hopes Negroes May Grow to be Good Citizens and Useful to Community.

SPEAKS AT THE STATE FAIR

Jackson in One Day Sees the President, a Three-Ring Circus, and a Daring Descent in a Parachute.

JACKSON, Miss., Nov. 1.—President Taft, a three-ring circus, a gala day at the State fair, a balloon ascension, and a thrilling parachute leap gave Jackson to-day a share of honors unparalleled in the history of the city.

The President visited the State fair and the State fair gave return checks to all who wanted to see the circus across the street. In this way a combination of the three great attractions was formed. The balloon ascension was free for all.

Speaker Cannon, who was to have been in the city to-night, was summoned home on business and passed through Jackson this afternoon without stopping, but Secretary of War Dickinson rejoined the President's party this afternoon. Mr. Taft left after midnight for Columbus, Miss., Mr. Dickinson's birthplace. He will spend three hours there, and will reach Birdmingham, Ala., to-morrow evening.

President Taft arrived here from New Orleans at 8:45 o'clock this morning. When the train stopped a Reception Committee headed by R. H. Henry took Mr. Taft in hand and escorted him to the parlors of the Edwards Hotel, where a general Reception Committee, composed of 200 Mississippians, were awaiting him.

He spent an hour going through the various exhibits at the fair, and was particularly interested in the agricultural displays. These displays so impressed the President that he devoted most of his address to the importance of farming and to a deprecation of the tendency of young men to drift to cities, where "they think they can be where the wheels go round."

In the later afternoon Mr. Taft spent an hour in an automobile ride about the city, and then took a brief rest before attending a banquet in his honor, the viands, the cooks, the tableware, and the beverages for which were all brought on a special car from Chicago. There had been some discussion in Jackson on the point whether the banquet served to the President should include wine, Mississippi being a prohibition State. It was finally decided, however, that the $25 assessment per plate could not be spent unless liquor was served to the diners, so wine went upon the menu cards and was imported for the occasion.

The President's Speech.

At the fair grounds the President was introduced by Gov. Noel.

"I am glad to be in a State," said Mr. Taft, "in which agriculture is your chief trade and occupation. We must admit that the occupation of the farmer is among the most important occupations that go to make this country great, and a State which is great because of it is entitled to recognition as typifying Americanism in the highest degree.

"Your State has the tradition that most of your great men were both lawyers and farmers. I am not altogether certain that that combination makes for good agriculture. I am afraid that some of the distinguished members of your bar find, or did find before you gave up everything of that sort, that a glass of milk was about as expensive as a glass of champagne. But the tendency toward the country and country life is a tendency that we ought to encourage. It tends toward sane, philosophical, and quiet consideration of the problems of life. It takes out that nervous exhaustion of energy, it takes out the gambling spirit; it takes out of the life of the citizen that hurry and rapidity that carry men quickly to their graves, and it makes for the happiness of individuals and families far more than any trade or profession that brings you into the great maelstrom of city life.

Talks of the Negro.

"There is much to be done in the way of education of your laborers. I am glad to think your large negro population is well adapted to the cultivation of provident methods. They may grow to be good citizens and useful to the community by acquiring land, as they have acquired it in the past, and become strong farmers and useful citizens to the entire State.

"The question of river and water transportation is now being agitated in a way that commands, as never before, the attention of the whole United States. I am sure that I speak for the whole people in saying that they do not propose to be niggardly in either the issuing of bonds or the appropriation of money out of the Treasury to make improvements that really will be improvements in the matter of transportation and rates. But we have to be certain what it is we are doing and that we are not going to pour money down a rat hole when we put millions into the improvements that are contemplated."

Ex-Gov. Vardaman of Mississippi, whose controversy with President Roosevelt made him known throughout the country and who has carried the animosities of that controversy into criticism of President Taft, called on Mr. Taft this afternoon after hearing the President speak at the Fair Grounds. Mr. Vardaman explained that he could not be at the banquet to-night and wanted very much to meet the President. Word was conveyed to Mr. Taft, who sent word that he would see the ex-Governor at once. The President greeted Mr. Vardaman cordially, and the two were closeted for several minutes. Both were smiling when the interview ended.

$50,000 for Union College.

SCHENECTADY, N. Y., Nov. 1.—By the will of the late John Wallace, a New York broker who died a few weeks ago, Union College receives $50,000 toward a new gymnasium. Mr. Wallace graduated from Union College in 1865, and was active in athletics.

Brandenburg Trial Postponed.

ST. LOUIS, Nov. 1.—The trial of Broughton Brandenburg of New York on a charge of enticing away his stepson, James Shepard Cabanne, 3d, from St. Louis on April 15, was called to-day in the Criminal Court. His attorneys told the court that their client was "unavoidably detained by the police" in New York, and a continuance was granted until Nov. 10. Brandenburg is held in New York on another charge arising from the disruption of his domestic affairs.

SEND LOBBY OF 500 TO PUSH WATERWAYS

MUST HAVE FEDERAL ACTION

Government Will Provide Money for Lakes-to-Gulf System If We Make It, Says David R. Francis.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Nov. 1.—Adopting President Taft's suggestion that the time for oratory was past, the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterways Convention, to the accompaniment of cheers, to-night decided to send 500 lobbyists to Washington to demand that Congress deepen the Mississippi River. This action followed a whole day devoted to oratory. But when the climax came it came quickly; and all doubt as to the temper of the delegates was dispelled.

Charles Scott of Mississippi, Chairman of the Committee on Resolutions, had just completed the reading of his report when former Gov. David Francis of Missouri rose and declared:

"In one thing at least I agree with President Taft, and that is the time for speeches has passed. The way to dig this channel is to dig it. And the people who must dig it are the Federal officers. The Mississippi River is under the control of the Federal Government. We of the States cannot improve it if we would.

"I am sick and tired of delays and excuses. On the trip down the river I listened to questions innumerable as to the feasibility and practicability of the fourteen-foot plan. The plan has been declared practical and feasible by a board composed largely of army engineers. All we need is the money. The Federal Government must provide that, and the Federal Government will, if we make it. Therefore, Sir, I move the adoption of the following resolution:

Resolved, That the President of the Lakes-to-the-Gulf Deep Waterways Association be requested to appoint 500 delegates from our organization to visit Washington and to present to the proper committee of Congress and to the heads of our Government the resolutions adopted by this convention, and at the same time to act as delegates to the Rivers and Harbors Congress to be held in that city Dec. 8, 9, and 10.

There was silence for a moment. Then some one turned loose an old-fashioned rebel yell, and the resolution was adopted with a whoop. In the confusion it is doubtful whether ten delegates of all those present knew that the regular report of the Resolution Committee had been adopted.

These resolutions were long. They declared that the Federal Government "should and shall without needless delay enter upon a definite policy and plan of waterway development, beginning with the improvement of the Mississippi and Illinois Rivers, as the main trunk of a great waterways system, in such a way as to open effective navigation between the Gulf of Mexico and the Great Lakes; such main trunk line to be developed with no disparagement of and constant reference to the concurrent development of the tributaries, lakes, bayous, and sounds of all sections of the country and the canals and connecting passages required in and for a comprehensive system of inland navigation adapted to our great and rapidly growing commercial needs."

The resolutions next recited the reasons for these demands, one of which was that the Mississippi Valley contains more than one-half of the population of the United States.

The reports of the Engineering Board appointed by Congress were discussed at length, the arguments of the opponents were condemned, and a demand was made for further information as to the use of waters in all ways affecting navigation.

Popular bonds in small denominations for popular issue were urged on Congress, and "the development of the waterways as an investment rather than as a succession of piecemeal experiments" was demanded.

But above all it was insisted that a minimum depth of fourteen feet at low water was the cardinal principle of the association.

The convention adjourned for the day in a whirlwind of enthusiasm. President Kavanaugh will appoint the committee of 500 later, and the methods to be adopted by this delegation will be decided on before the date of the National Rivers and Harbors Congress.

In the preliminary oratorical stage of the proceedings the features to-day were the addresses of Secretary of War Jacob M. Dickinson and Gifford Pinchot, chief of the United States Forestry Service. Speaker Cannon was expected to speak, but when the convention opened President Kavanaugh read the following letter from the Speaker:

I am called to Illinois by a mandatory telegram. Will you present my regrets to the convention when announcing my inability to be present at the session to-day? I desire to assure the convention that I am in harmony with the earliest solution practicable of the engineering problems connected with the construction of the lakes-to-the-gulf deep waterway.

With the adoption of the plan therefor I am ready as a citizen and a Representative to support a plan for an ample appropriation for the speedy, effective, and continuous prosecution of the work upon such a waterway until it shall have been completed.

The time which would have been given to Speaker Cannon was allowed to Senator Lorimer of Illinois, who described the birth of the idea, the troubles of its infancy, the objections, and obstacles that its creators had to face.

SUES THE KNABES FOR STOCK.

American Piano Co. Demands the Surrender of $262,000 Worth.

The American Piano Company has brought two suits against Ernest J. Knabe, Jr., and William Knabe, in which it is alleged that when the plaintiff company was formed the two defendants received stock, the amount of which was fixed by a nappraisal of the assets. This appraisal was inaccurate, and has since been corrected, say the plaintiffs, the consequence of the correction of the appraisal showing that the two defendants received stock to the amount of over $131,000 par value preferred, and $131,000 par value common which they should not have received and should be returned to the company for cancellation.

The bill also asks that the defendants be compelled to restore dividends on the stock thus alleged to have been improperly issued to them, the amount of such dividends being about $19,000.

The piano company has brought suit also for money to the amount of $85,000, which it says is due from the Knabes. An attachment has been levied on the property of the two defendants in the State of New Jersey.

CRANE WON'T ATTEND DINNER.

Declines Chicagoans' Invitation Because of Approaching Trip to Europe.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Charles P. Crane, who recently was recalled as Minister designate to China, will leave in a few days for Europe, according to a telegram received here to-day from New York. Mr. Crane assigned the trip abroad as his reason for declining a public banquet proposed in his honor.

Mr. Crane's telegram was addressed to David R. Forgan, President of the National City Bank, and one of fifty prominent Chicagoans who signed the invitation to the banquet, which was intended as an expression of belief in the correctness of the former Minister designate's attitude just prior to his recall.

WON LEGACY BY NEW NAME.

Beversten, Brother's Heir, Drops the "t" After a Trip to Germany.

After a trip to Germany last Summer, the sole purpose of which was to determine how his name was spelled on the stone portal over the door of the house in which he was born, Nicholas Beversten on his return applied to Supreme Court Justice Bischoff to grant him permission to change his name to Nikolaus Beversen. Yesterday the Justice granted his application, and Beversen went to his home, at 208 West 120th Street, in a happy mood.

According to the petition, Beversten was born in Wadel, Hanover, Germany, in 1848, and came to this country in 1854. He left behind him his brother, John. For years the two had disputed over the spelling of the name, John maintaining that it should be spelled without a "t" and Nicholas contending that "t" belonged rightfully in the name. John died last Winter, and his brother, not satisfied to live without settling the dispute, took a trip to his old home, to decide the matter once and for all. When he arrived he found that his memory was not at fault. There it was—"Beversten"—carved over the doorway.

It was not in a spirit of triumph, however, that he then sought the family church, but in justice to the dead brother, whose claim, he felt, should be thoroughly sifted. Great was his surprise when the old minister showed him the family records, and there in black and white was the name "Beversen" without the letter "t." This proof overcame his scruples, and he returned to this country and officially changed the spelling of his name.

Incidentally, now that the change has been accomplished, Nikolaus Beversen will come in for the sum of 6,000 marks which John left him under that appellation.

CUSTOMS WEIGHER ARRESTED.

Makes Confession of Fraud In Sugar Which May Open Up New Cases.

On the complaint of Assistant Attorney General Dennison, who is engaged with former United States Attorney Henry L. Stimson in the prosecution of the sugar-weighing frauds, Joseph D. Donelson, an assistant customs weigher, was arrested yesterday afternoon on a charge of defrauding the Government through the underweighing of sugar. Donelson admitted the entry of a cargo of sugar from Java at less than the actual weight, according to the complaint.

This cargo of sugar was consigned to the Sugar Trust, and the date of entry was March 4, 1908. This brings the connection of the trust with weighing frauds down to a date considerably later than any of the evidence upon which the pending prosecutions have been based. Donelson having confessed his own guilt, is believed to have told the prosecutors all he knew about bribe givers and bribe takers.

The trial of Oliver Spitza and other former employes of the Sugar Trust who were indicted for complicity in the sugar-weighing frauds in Brooklyn, which cost the trust $2,000,000 in its settlement with the Government in lieu of back duties, was to have gone on yesterday in the United States Circuit Court. It was postponed until Nov. 23, when it will proceed before Judge Martin. According to recent information, some of the defendants in this action have made full confessions.

LINER HANDICAPPED IN RACE.

Storms and Accident Beset Touraine, Going Against Time to Save Customs.

Under what difficulties the French liner Touraine, which arrived from Havre late Sunday night, got here in time to allow her skipper to reach the Battery and clear his vessel at the Custom House became known yesterday morning when the liner reached her pier. The vessel was beset with storms, gales, and head seas nearly all the way to port. This made her a day late, and, withal, her machinery broke down in mid-ocean. Something went wrong with the low pressure cylinder and it took eight hours to make repairs.

After the Touraine got within the wireless zone and messages were received urging haste in getting here, Capt. Mourand did not spare coal. As it was the liner just came through in time to take advantage of the low duty on French wines under the commercial treaty which expired at midnight Sunday night.

Three other transatlantic steamships arrived yesterday. They were the Lapland from Antwerp, the Cretic from Naples, and the Minnehaha from London. All report successive days of monotonous bad weather which retarded their progress.

TO TAP OKLAHOMA OIL FIELD.

Standard Compromises Controversy with State and Will Build Pipe Line.

BARTLESVILLE, Okla., Nov. 1.—The Standard Oil Company has compromised its controversy with the State of Oklahoma by organizing the Oklahoma Pipe Line Company, to build an eight-inch pipe line to carry oil to the Standard refinery at Baton Rouge, La., according to an announcement to-day. Construction work will begin at once and it is expected that oil will be running through the line by Feb. 1.

This will relieve the oil situation in Oklahoma field where low prices, caused by the inability of the producers to market their oil, had entailed considerable loss.

The new company will be an Oklahoma corporation directly under the supervision of the State Corporation Commission which has authority to regulate rates. The company will be exclusively a common carrier and will not buy oil or own property of any kind in Oklahoma, save for the purpose of operating its pipe lines.

ILL FROM LOSS OF HUSBAND.

Woman Who Sued Miss Gazzam Goes to Sanitarium.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Nov. 1.—Mrs. Marie Dodge Dorsey Clark, who brought suit against Miss Elizabeth Gazzam, an heiress of Cornwall-on-the-Hudson, for $150,000 damages for alleged alienation of her husband's affections, was taken to a sanitarium at Battle Creek yesterday. At the home of her father, William A. Crane, it was said that Mrs. Clark is suffering from nervous breakdown and is in a serious condition. Her illness is said to be the result of worry over the loss of her husband.

Mrs. Clark has been at her father's house since her return from New York City a few weeks ago, when she went East to look after her suit against Miss Gazzam.

SCHOOL CALLS "RAT" CRUSADE A HOAX

No Restrictions Placed on the Hairdressing Style of Pupils at Erasmus.

GIRLS WERE IN A FLUTTER

It Was Said That the Authorities Would Remake Coiffures and Burn Objectionable Decorations.

The sacrificial bonfire of "rats" that were to be abstracted from the pompadour of obdurate pupils of Erasmus Hall High School, scheduled for yesterday afternoon, was not lighted. There was a big football rally for the election day game and an orchestra rehearsal, with dancing, in the rear of the chapel, and six fraternity meetings, but no "rat" burning. Dr. Walter B. Gunnison, the Principal, and Miss Kate E. Turner, his assistant, gave the reason. It was simple. They knew nothing of it.

"When the story first came out in some papers," said Dr. Gunnison, "we just laughed about it ourselves. Whoever wrote the yarns didn't think it necessary to ask me whether there was anything in them or not. But the thing has gone far enough. We are getting letters from all over the country, either complimenting or criticising Miss Turner for what she never did. Deputations of parents are coming in to see me, and it's about time the truth was told. There was a new and rather disgusting variation of the 'rat' story in one paper this morning, and we simply can't stand for that."

What is most amusing to the school authorities is that the parents who have called at the school since the "rat campaign" began in the newspapers have, without exception, applauded the suppositious crusade.

Meek little mothers who had been reduced by spirited daughters to something akin to submission have stolen quietly into the office to express gratitude to Miss Turner for her condemnation of "puffs" and unseemly head decorations. One busy father dropped in on the way to his office and said: "I'm with you. More power to you," or something like that.

Few of the letters criticising Miss Turner for the campaign she was credited with inaugurating, but really knew nothing about, were signed, while the commendatory writers signed their names in full.

A specimen attack was this:

"Are you so crabbed and bad looking that you don't want to see younger girls looking as pretty as possible? I hope the girls win."

"All this would be very well if I had done anything unusual or more than I have done for the last thirteen years. I have always told the girls here that school girls ought to dress simply, but beyond that I have said nothing. When I go into a classroom now the girls look uncomfortable. They seem to think I am searching for 'rats.'"

One girl, coming from a "frat" meeting, said she knew all about it. "Mabel" had just been telling her what Miss Turner was going to do, and "Mabel" told her also what she would do if Miss Turner dared. "Mabel" belongs to the Dramatic Club, and was presumed to have "temperament."

"Mabel's" friend couldn't say that any girl's hair had been taken down yet and, come to think of it, she could not remember that Miss Turner had delivered any lectures on the subject.

Downstairs in the locker rooms the boys were exchanging the gossip and talking bravely. One boy announced that the boys would stand by the girls to the last. "Erasmus girls are the swellest looking girls on the grand stand," put in a football hero. Pressed for facts by the "crusade" the athlete had to admit that he didn't know of a girl who had any complaint to make.

"This same story," said Dr. Gunnison, "was put on a small Western college about two months ago and some enterprising journalist worked it over for local consumption. There isn't a word of truth in it."

PITTSBURG HAS CELEBRATION.

Downtown Section Turned Over to Crowds for Hallowe'en Merrymaking.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 1.—Greater Pittsburg celebrated official Hallowe'en to-night. Within the radius of a square mile of the downtown centres street car traffic was suspended and cars were diverted from regular routes so as to give the fun-makers full possession of the streets and sidewalks. Parades judged by city officials, confetti throwing, and maskers by the thousands kept the downtown portions of the city in a din for the greater part of the night.

Only one thing was barred by the Superintendent of Safety, and that was the "tickler," which last year injured the eyes of more than a score of merry-makers.

FIRE CHIEF BINNS HURT.

Truck in Way of His Speeding Horse Gave Him a Heavy Fall.

Deputy Fire Chief John Binns was thrown from his buggy at Twenty-eighth Street and Broadway yesterday and knocked unconscious. He was making a run to a fire. Under the treatment of an ambulance surgeon he revived, and refused to let the police arrest the driver of a truck which ran into his buggy and caused his fall.

John Cushing was driving the Fire Chief's big bay at top speed when his path was cut off by a heavy truck. Alongside a street car stood, waiting for the buggy to pass. Cushing swung to the other side of the street when a truck, driven by George Breslin got in the way.

The front wheels of the buggy locked with the truck wheels, and Binns was thrown bodily from his seat and landed heavily in the street. The horse attached to the truck started to run, but was instantly stopped by a passer by.

A policeman got Breslin and asked Mr. Binns if he would appear against the truck driver.

"No," replied Binns. "It was my fault. I was on the wrong side of the street."

PORTER SEEKS LOST WAGES.

Offers a Reward in The Times—First He Had Earned in Eight Months.

George Moore, who lives at 255 West Twenty-sixth Street, got a job as a porter at the Hotel Clendenning, Amsterdam Avenue and 103d Street, last week, the first work he had been able to obtain for eight months. Saturday night came, and Moore received his wages, which, with the tips of the week, amounted to $37. He carefully folded the bills and placed them in the fob pocket of his trousers, so he thought.

He left the hotel and started for his old boarding house, at 213 East Fifty-second Street, to pay his landlady a debt of long standing. Entering the house, the landlady congratulated Moore on getting work after his long period of idleness, and Moore reached into his pocket to pay his account. To his amazement, he found that his money was not in his pocket.

On thinking the matter over, Moore came to the conclusion that, instead of placing his money in his fob pocket, he had stuck it down his trousers' leg and that it had slipped out on his walk from the hotel. He came to THE TIMES office yesterday afternoon and told of his loss, advertising a liberal reward, even to half the sum lost, for the return of his wages.

Out of the $37 Moore said he intended to send his wife a postal order to bring her to New York City from Ocean City, where she had been at work for the last year. So grieved was he over his loss that he did not have the courage to write to her until last nigt, when he told her that she would have to postpone her coming here until next week, when he would draw his next pay.

ARREST SUFFRAGE TAUNTERS.

Youths Jeer Mrs. Loeburger for Telling What She'd Do If Mayor.

While an open air suffragette meeting was in progress at 121st Street and Seventh Avenue last night two young men were arrested, charged with trying to break it up. Mrs. Sophie Loebinger, "The Harlem Suffragette," did most of the speaking. There was a good sized crowd and when the speaker told what she would do if she were elected Mayor there were many cheers mingled with cat calls and jeers.

Mrs. Loebinger declared that if she were mayor, she would appoint women as heads of most of the city departments. She would do away with the present Board of Aldermen, she declared, and also discontinue the Night Police Court. It was at this point that Policeman Frank was called to quiet some of the disturbers.

He arrested Morris Goldberg, a salesman of 51 West 112th Street, and Joseph Sheer of 241 West 122d Street. They were taken to the Night Court. The complainant against them was Miss Sara A. Murtaugh, who gave her address as the Hoffman House.

EX-BANK CASHIER GUILTY.

Convicted of Having Juggled Funds of Defunct Pittsburg Concern.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 1.—The Federal jury in the trial of David J. Richardson, former cashier of the now defunct Cosmopolitan National Bank, to-day brought in a verdict of guilty on twenty-four out of twenty-six counts in the indictment.

Richardson was charged with misapplication of bank funds, the making of false reports to the Controller of the Currency, and the making of false entries in the bank books. Ten years in each of the twenty-four counts is the maximum sentence which can be imposed by Federal statute for guilt in cases similar to that of Richardson.

Richardson said he would have his case appealed.

HOPE FOR R. L. THOMAS.

Wounded Turfman Expected to Recover—Shilling Arrested.

R. L. Thomas, a lumberman and turfman of Paris, Ky., who is in a critical condition from a stab wound inflicted by one of his jockeys, Carroll H. Shilling, at the Sheepshead Bay race track on Sunday afternoon, will probably recover, according to his physician. It wil be three or four days, however, before any attempt can be made to remove the injured man from Shilling's cot in the grooms' quarters adjoining the stable near where the stabbing occurred.

In an altercation over a renewal of contract sought by the turfman and refused by the jockey, Thomas is said to have slapped Shilling in the face. Quick as a flash Shilling, who is 20 years old and from Texas, drew his pocketknife and stabbed his employer just under the heart. Thomas staggered into the grooms' quarters near by. Shilling lounged around for the rest of the afternoon and at night went to a theatre in Brooklyn. The police were notified of the stabbing only at 8:30 o'clock, when Mr. Thomas's condition grew alarming. Shilling was arrested at the Sheepshead Bay elevated station when he returned from the city at midnight. He declared that his act was committed in self-defense.

SILK-LADEN TRAINS RACE.

Carrying $750,000 Worth of Goods, They Speed Across Continent.

TACOMA, Wash., Nov. 1.—With right of way over all other trains, a Chicago, Milwaukee & Puget Sound special train left last night with $390,000 worth of silk for New York delivery. The railroad officers hope to beat to the East a Northern Pacific train which left Seattle twenty-one hours earlier with silk worth $360,000.

WOMAN FOUND SLAIN; BOARDER IS MISSING

The Two Were Last Seen Together, Engaged in a Game of Cards.

HER DIAMONDS ALL STOLEN

Slayer Supposed to Have Strangled Her and Then Used a Hammer on Her Head.

Mrs. Annie Kessler, who occupied a five-room apartment on the top floor of 319 East 121st Street, where she took lodgers, sat up late on Sunday evening playing cards with a boarder known sometimes as John Newman and sometimes as John Norman. They were the only ones in the apartment after 8 o'clock that night.

Mrs. Kessler was found murdered yesterday in the room where the card game had been played. A pair of diamond earrings had been wrenched from her ears, two diamond rings and a wedding ring had been pulled off her fingers, and all were missing, together with a small sum of money. Newman had disappeared and a general police alarm was sent out for his capture.

Mrs. Kessler was struck over the head with a heavy hammer, her face and breast were slashed with a knife of some kind, and a towel was tied tightly around her throat. Another towel was stuffed into her mouth. Over her body, which was found on a couch in the dining room of her apartment, a feather mattress had been thrown. The mattress had been taken from Newman's room.

Mrs. Kessler was 40 years old, the wife of David Kessler, who left her about a year ago and went to Allentown, Penn., where he is now employed as foreman in a cigar factory. After he left her Mrs. Kessler began taking boarders. Usually her rooms were full, but most of the boarders left last week, and there remained only Rose Supenstein and Newman. But on Thursday the Supenstein girl went to visit a friend in the neighborhood and did not return until yesterday afternoon, when word reached her that Mrs. Kessler had been murdered.

There were no signs of a struggle. Coroner Shrady, who visited the scene soon after the body was found, said that the woman had probably been strangled with the towels, then struck on the head with a hammer, which was found later under a tub in the kitchen. There was no sign of the knife used in slashing the woman's face and breast.

Ahearn May Soon Be Ousted.

Assistant Attorney General Ezra P. Prentice has received from Albany the decision of the Court of Appeals declaring the re-election of Borough President Ahearn to office illegal. On Thursday afternoon he will make application to the Appellate Division for the filing of judgment. If it is granted he will take immediate steps to file judgment with the County Clerk, so that unless the court grants a stay Ahearn may be out of office before the end of the week.

PINKNEY PARTITION SUIT.

Proceedings Begun Affecting Harlem Property Worth Many Millions.

Proceedings have been instituted in the Supreme Court as a result of which the real estate holdings of the late Mary G. Pinkney in this city, valued at many millions, are likely to come on the market for sale. A lis pendens was filed yesterday in the County Clerk's office telling of a partition suit begun by Grace W. Thomas against Thomas L. Watt and others. The plaintiff is represented by J. F. Stier as attorney.

The more important of the properties involved are the following: A large part of the block bounded by 110th and 111th Streets, Fifth and Lenox Avenues; the southwest corner of Fifth Avenue and 141st Street, the greater part of the block bounded by Fifth and Lenox Avenues, 141st and 142d Streets; the north sire of 143d Street, between Fifth and Lenox Avenues, together with an abutting plot on the south side of 141st Street; the three entire blocks bounded by 145th and 148th Streets, Lenox Avenue and the Harlem River; the entire block bounded by Morningside and Amsterdam Avenues, 119th and 120th Streets; the entire block bounded by Lenox and Seventh Avenues, 147th and 148th Streets; 605 Fifth Avenue, and scattered parcels in various sections of the city. A complete list of the properties was covered by the lis pendens.

Mary G. Pinkney inherited from her stepfather, Archibald Watt, the holdings in city property which at her death last Winter were estimated to be worth at least $10,000,000. In leaving his property to Miss Pinkney, Archibald Watt made a his son, Thomas Watt, and his four children. This she did, conveying to the latter property worth large sums, and upon her death they became her heirs. The plaintiff in the present suit, Grace Watt Thomas, is a daughter of Thomas Watt, and the defendant is his eldest son, Thomas L. Watt.

Overcoat Sale

9,000 Overcoats at a Saving of One-Third or More

Judge the importance of this sale by the high-grade TAILORING, which was done by five of the best overcoat makers in America.

By the high standard FABRICS, which are from the world's best mills.

By the ADVANCE STYLE MODELS, that even at regular prices are more in demand than usual ready-to-wear garments.

By the tremendous ASSORTMENT of over 500 fabric styles and 60 different models.

By the DESIRABILITY of every garment. So great is the demand for smart model, smart fabric overcoats, that garments like these are selling in most stores at a premium, instead of underprice.

Then, finally, judge by the most important point of all—value.

Because of various trade conditions, underprice fabric purchases and dull season no-expense tailoring, you save one-third or more on overcoats that, at full regular prices, would be extreme value garments.

$9.50 for Overcoats that should sell for $13.50

$13.50 for Overcoats that should sell for $18

High grade fabrics from standard mills are in the hundreds of garments you will find in this range.

Here are meltons from one of the best mills anywhere, in a quality that has stood as a standard for years for garments of more than 1-3 more in cost.

Here are fine faced, full weight jerseys of equal quality, velours that have never been used in garments anywhere at as low a price as this, fancy cheviots of excellent quality and of the most desirable and popular shades and designs.

Here are semi-box, semi-form and form-fitting coats, with full worked out chests and high shoulders, in a dozen new gray and olive shades.

Then here is one of the big surprises of this sale—MILITARY BUTTON TO THE CHIN COATS, that, because of the tremendous demand for these garments, would sell quickly wholesale at this price. New olive grays and brown shades, cut full 52 inches long; tailoring, trimmings and fabrics are considered full $13.50 wholesale standard.

The excellent values in this range are so apparent that the most inexperienced clothes judge will quickly note here a saving of fully one-third or more.

$19.00 for Overcoats that should sell for $25

$11.50 for Overcoats that should sell for $15

$17.00 for Overcoats that should sell for $22.50

Here are semi-dress and sensible business coats, in velours and worsted cheviots, in serviceable, stylish Cambridge, steel and stone grays and handsome dark olive and nut browns. These are in plain weaves and self stripes.

Here are smart, classy garments, cut on chesty models, form-fitting and full box styles; colors from lightest grays to darkest olives, from plainest weaves to the broadest stripes that come within the limits of good taste.

Here are also military button to the chin and button to the neck coats, in worsteds, velours and worsted cheviots, in grays of various shades, in plain and stripe weaves; worsted cheviots in gray, brown and olive shades.

Many of these garments are satin and worsted lined. For general utility wear one of these button to the chin or neck garments should be in every man's wardrobe.

Let your imagination go to extremes in the values, assortments and styles that you expect to find in this range and you will be agreeably surprised.

AERO CLUB KEEPS BISHOP PRESIDENT

Fight on the Present Executive and Board Members Lost by a Vote of 205 to 13.

FAIL TO GET AN INJUNCTION

Court Denies Opposition's Plea to Prevent Voting by Proxy — Members Come from Afar.

The fight in the Aero Club of America at the annual election of the Board of Directors last night at the club rooms, 12 East Forty-second Street, resulted in an overwhelming victory for the present administration, which was re-elected by the vote of 205 to 13. The result was foreshadowed by the refusal of Justice McCall of the Supreme Court to issue an injunction restraining the voting by proxy.

The biggest attendance in the history of the organization marked the actute stage of the club. Fully 150 members were on hand, and among those present were six members from Philadelphia, three from Boston, three from Washington, four from Rhode Island, and one from St. Louis to evidence their confidence in the present Board of Directors. The refusal of Alfred Wagstaff, Jr., to run on the opposition ticket was the signal for a landslide, and William J. Hammer, the head of the opposition, found himself practically unsupported in the voting.

For the first time in the history of the Aero Club there was an opposition ticket in the field. The rival ticketts were: Administration—Cortlandt Field Bishop, Charles Jerome Edwards, A. Holland Forbes, J. C. McCoy, and Samuel H. Valentine; Opposition—Alfred Wagstaff, Jr., Gutzon L. M. Borglum, William J. Hammer, James M. Beck, and Thomas A. Hill. The result showed that the present governing body could have won by a big majority without proxies, as less than 60 proxy votes were cast out of a total of 218 votes.

After the announcement of the election, the members voted on increase the dues to $25 for resident and $10 for non-resident members, and decided to appoint a committee to amend and revise the certificate of incorporation, by-laws and constitution, which will be presented to the members for ratification.

The result of the election leaves the management of the two international races to be held in this country next year in the hands of the present Board of Directors of the Aero Club, and is taken as an expression of confidence in the administration of affairs in the club. President Cortlandt Field Bishop after the election said:

"I regard the action of the Supreme Court in refusing the injunction to prohibit the use of proxey votes of great importance, as it sets at rest for all time any argument against the action of the Board of Directors."

The attempt to enjoin the club from voting proxies resulted in failure for the opposition. The case was called yesterday morning before Justice McCall in the Supreme Court. William J. Hanmer appeared as plaintiff "for himself and all others similarly situated members of the Aero Club of America." In presenting the argument for an injunction, Attorney Francis X. Carmody advanced the plea that the Aero Club of America was conducted in the interests of a few members, and that the objects of the organization, in the development of aeronautics was thereby defeated, and further that the present officers had secured the admission to membership of a number of persons whose election was in direct violation to the by-laws and constitution of the organization.

In answer to the application for the injunction President Cortlandt Field Bishop denied the allegations, through Attorney W. H. Page. He said he had not misused his power as President of the club, and that the club had voted by proxy, not only by reason of corporate right, but also by custom. Mr. Page gave a list of the more prominent members of the Aero Club, who, he declared, did not oppose voting by proxy. Included in the list were: E. H. Gary, William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., Harry Payne Whitney, Peter Cooper Hewitt, Herbert Parsons, Herman Metz, Frank A. Munsey, Dave Hemen Morris, Col. Samuel Reber, Gen. George Moore Smith, Prof. Lawrence Rotch, Archer R. Huntingdon, Colgate Hoyt, Glenn A. Curtiss, Wilbur Wright, and Edgar W. Mix.

Justice McCall told Mr. Hamner's lawyer that he did not think his application had much merit, but consented to hear full argument, after which he dismissed the application and refused to issue the injunction.

Several names on the opposition ticket were afterward withdrawn, and the members used their influence to re-elect last year's Board of Directors. This was particularly the case with Alfred Wagstaff, Jr., who was named as President on the insurgent ticket. He at once declined, and solicited votes for President Bishop and his associates.

Orthodox Jewess Who Abstained from Food on Long Voyage Dies Here.

Loyalty to her religion is primarily responsible for the death yesterday on Ellis Island of Gisella Breiner of Komistat, Hungary. The young woman came to this country a few days ago on the Holland-America Line steamship Ryndam. She was strictly orthodox, and when she found that kosher food could not be obtained on board, she determined to fast the entire trip.

She ate but little, food brought on board by her fellow-travelers, during the nine days the steamship was crossing the Atlantic. When she was taken to the immigration station on Ellis Island she was very weak. She failed to recover her strength, and died yesterday of inanition. Her body will be taken in charge by her two brothers, who live at Bridgeport, Conn.

Woman Throws Baby to Safety, Leaps from Auto and Is Run Down.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Believing the automobile in which she was riding to-day with her husband was about to collide with a taxicab, Mrs. Mary Blakeley jumped to the pavement and was run over and killed by the taxicab. Before she made the leap Mrs. Blakeley threw her baby boy, who was in her arms, to the side of the street and the little one escaped injury.

Mr. Blakeley avoided the collision by a quick turn to the side of the street.

WISE MASON WINS GLEN COVE STAKES

NIMBUS TAKES HANDICAP

The fastest race of the meeting and a succession of close finishes were pleasing features of the sport at the Aqueduct track yesterday, but they fell far short of causing the general gratification that the best record of the meeting for winning favorites aroused. It helped to the success of the public choices that the fields were small, but at that the winners were at prices that tempted general support, and when four first choices got home in front, only one of the number at odds-on—a new record for the Queens County meeeting—was made. The fair weather, more than the promise of the card offered, brought out a good attendance.

One stake, the Glen Cove, selling, for three-year-olds, at one mile, was decided, with a field of five runners, made a remarkable open contest in the betting estimates and a singularly close finish, with the winner in doubt until the Newcastle Stable's Wise Mason actually was past the post first. Light-weight jockeys had the riding practically to themselves through the day, and apprentices were up on all the horses of the Glen Cove field, this serving to put more doubt in the prospects of the contest, though Wise Mason finally started favorite with Mary Davis second choice and the others so well supported that the outsider was the 8 to 1 chance, Hoffman, a few days before at odds of 60 to 1.

Wise Mason, ridden by Guy Garner, was back in the middle of the crowd when the barrier was raised, but went to the front with a rush, and followed by Mary Davis, second, led into the beginning of the last furlong, May River, on which the light boy Nicolai was caught asleep at the post, being left, but going on after his field, when nearly a sixteenth of a mile out of the race. Hill Top closed on the long stretch and steadily picked up Wise Mason and Mary Davis into the last furlong, where both the leaders were stopping, Hill Top for a few strides showing in front, with the three horses then so close together that any one of them might have won, and My River, which had closed an immense gap coming on with a great rush from behind. The pressure told on Mary Davis in the last eighth of a mile, however, and as she shortened her stride, Wise Mason and Hill Top drew away, and, both ridden out, fought to the winning post, Wise Mason winning by a head from Hill Top, while Mary Davis was two lengths back, with May River fourth.

Nimbus, as the post favorite, ran the best mile of the meeting in the handicap, and finished first cleverly in 1:39 3-5, his race being the second of the day for the stable of G. M. Odom. There were five starters in the contest, and Sir Cleges and The Squire going away together in front, carried a terrific pace as far as they could live at it, both stopping, however, after three-quarters, while Nimbus, which waited last to that point then began his winning run. Racquet and Far West joined in the struggle on the stretch and Nimbus was straightened out until almost on the post to get away from Racquet, which might have won but for interference that caused Glass to pull up close on the post, Nimbus then winning by a length and a half.

Capt. Swanson, running alone out in front all the way, easily won the mile for two-year-olds, beating Bang just about as Bang beat him in their previous meeting. Rose Queen, first in a canter for the sprint handicap, was the fourth winning favorite. Bonnie Kelso, coming with a rattle at the end, beat a strong favorite in Lad of Langden for the third race, and O. Em, ridden out, beat a moderate field in the sprint for maiden two-year-olds. The summaries:

NEW YORK, TUESDAY, NOV. 2, 1909.

CAST YOUR VOTE EARLY, AND VOTE FOR BANNARD.

Everything is over but the voting. The election of Mr. BANNARD as Mayor of New York depends only on his receipt of the votes that are normally his. If he gets the usual Republican vote of New York City he will be elected. He is sure of a large number of independent votes.

He is the logical candidate of all citizens who believe that the office of Mayor in the next four years should be filled by a man of sound business training and large executive skill, broad-minded, industrious, and honest; a man who can command himself, who has no political heresies, no overweening ambition. Neither of the other candidates compares with BANNARD in positive fitness for the office. Vote for BANNARD early this morning.

VOTE "NO."

We remarked the other day that the reduction of the budget was such a concession to the conservative financial opinion of the city that it was a hopeful election augury. The same may be said regarding the obvious change of of opinion regarding Constitutional Amendment No. 4, authorizing the extension of the debt limit. Almost alone THE TIMES opposed the amendment when it was proposed, and now those supporting it are almost equally alone. Only one or two newspapers are actively urging it. For the most part those who supported it originally are either silent, or are content to state the case, and leave it to the readers' judgment, without advice to support it.

The case against the amendment ought not to be allowed to go by default in this manner. Few realize how serious the prospect is. The gross debt approaches a billion, and the expenditure under the next Mayor will be nearly another billion. This is a huge burden upon the taxpayers. There are already exempt from the Constitutional debt limit county bonds and water bonds which, when the system is complete, will aggregate another quarter billion. The present debt capacity is over a hundred millions, and it increases each year. The city neither could nor should spend all the money it is now able to borrow. To remove the debt limit would be to invite an orgy of expenditure, for no better reason than that it could be borrowed. Public Service Commissioner WILLCOX urges the adoption of the amendment because rapid-transit routes now contemplated would absorb $120,000,000. This makes no allowance for other lines, nor for docks. If the amendment is adopted there is no limit to the amount which can be borrowed, except restrictions not yet framed. This fact alone shows the hardihood of those supporting the amendment. They care only for the enlargement of the debt limit, not for safeguarding the borrowing before the debt is authorized.

The record shows that opinion is always lax regarding Constitutional amendments in New York. Only the interested vote comes out, and the amendments pass for lack of opposition. There is special reason to expect this result this year, because the amendment applies to other cities which are not now enjoying New York's ample borrowing exemptions, and which are not in so bad a financial condition. It would be a pity that their situation should not be relieved because our situation is so much worse than theirs. But there is this difference. It would be possible to pass an amendment to suit their needs another year, but it would be impossible within any reasonable anticipation to cancel an unwise amendment now passed. A debt limit which does not limit is farcical. When our financial obligations are reckoned in thousands of millions it is time to stop. The marked change of sentiment in recognition of this simple truth affords hope that the negative vote in this city will be large. It ought to be large enough to defeat the favorable vote which is likely "up the State."

THE "CHEAP GAS" TICKET.

There is no way of cutting or scratching the "cheap gas" ticket, whose emblem is among the score upon this year's preposterous ballot. Those who want to vote for cheap gas will not look for a portrait of either of two eminent municipal statesmen under which to make their cross. They will look for a gas meter, and will find that they have the opportunity to vote for only two candidates, neither of whom is known to fame sufficiently to be recognized if his name was printed here.

But although there is no way to vote for cheap gas on a Mayoralty ticket, there is an easy way to vote against it. A vote for BANNARD is a vote against the cheapest sort of gas. Anything cheaper than the rambling deliverances of GAYNOR and the irresponsible promises of the millennium by HEARST has never been made an excuse for enticing voters to their own betrayal. A vote for BANNARD would check that sort of gas in this campaign or any other.

THE AMENDMENTS.

Before you go to the polls to-day cut from this morning's TIMES the text of the Constitutional amendments and the canal referendum, with the accompanying instructions to voters, and put them in your pocket to use as a guide in marking your ballot. Vote "No" on the first, third, and fourth amendments, and "Yes" on the second amendment and the referendum.

The manner of voting is precisely the same as in voting for candidates. Blank spaces marked "Yes" and "No" are to contain the cross by which the voter signifies either acceptance or rejection.

ISLAM AND THE CONSTITUTION.

It was a very remarkable document in the current history of the Turkish Empire and its people that was published in THE TIMES of Sunday. The most trying problem the new Government of Turkey has had to face is that of the savage hatred of different sects within its jurisdiction for each other. Naturally the greatest difficulty has been with the Moslems. They are far the most numerous. They have been in possession of the throne and of all the chief offices. They have commanded and for the most part composed the army. They have the tax gatherers, have administered the courts, have controlled all public doings. They have been bred and nurtured in the belief that they are in religion and in race superior to all others, and within the Empire, whenever not restrained by Europe, they have asserted their superiority in the most confident and often in the cruelest fashion. Add to these facts the further one that the mass of the people are as ignorant of modern life as they are fanatical in their adherence to ancient ideas, and it will be seen how hard it must be for the Turks as a people to accept completely and to apply fairly the principle of the equal rights of all living within the Empire. They inevitably received the Constitution based on that principle as contrary to the precepts and traditions of their religion and insulting to their pride.

On the other hand, the behavior of the Christian sects has been far from uniformly in harmony with the teachings of the founder of their religion. To them the arrogant crusader rather than the mild and just minister of a religion of peace and brotherhood has often been the model. Their Moslem neighbors have too often been in their eyes the despised "unbelievers," who were to be regarded, if they could not be treated, after the mood and fashion of the Middle Ages. On both sides there has been not a universal but an important and baleful sentiment of mutual hatred, of scorn and resentment on the part of each toward the other. In this situation the new Government would be almost powerless without the support of the authorities of the Moslem religion. That was obtained so far as concerned the deposition of the former Sultan and the Sheikh-ul-Islam, the acknowledged of the followers of MOHAMMED, gave his sanction both to the deposition and to the succession of the present Sultan. Until recently, however, it was not known how this great officer and his associates stood with reference to the recognition of equal rights for all religionists in conducting the affairs of the Empire, and specially in service in the army.

All doubt is set at rest by the document published by THE TIMES on Sunday. This is a report of an address made in the Mosque of St. Sophia by a member of the Turkish Parliament, OUBEYDOULLAH EFFENDI, speaking for and in the name of the Sheikh-ul-Islam. The orator quoted the words of a declaration made by the head of the Mohammedans. Its argument was strikingly simple:

> In this declaration the first point which claims our attention is the question of supremacy. To whom does judgeship belong in the government? The object of government being the welfare and prosperity of the people, it is clear that the supreme authority does not lie in the King, but in the people. The King is the servant of the people.

And again:

> When the Mohammedan law commands "Conduct of the affairs of government in this manner," "Order marriage and inheritance by such rule," it does not give these commands to the King, or to the sons of the Prophet, or to the Khalifa, but to the people. While the word Parliament is not found in the sacred law, the system of Parliament is there.

Remark, too, this unqualified statement of the orator as to the right of individual judgment:

> It is GOD who leads men into truth; who are you that you judge another because he does not think as you do, and subject him to compulsion? Tell him what you know, but you have no right to oppress him. A man is not the judge even of his own mind; his mind rules and governs him. It is GOD who rules minds. The Mohammedan law affirms this, and it is this freedom which constitutional government demands. Every man who freely declares his opinion serves the entire public, and the benefits of it are very great.

That such doctrines as these should be upheld in the chief temple of the Mohammedah religion, that an orator "with his face turned toward Mecca," should so persuade a Moslem multitude, seems almost incredible. But it was one of the worst sins of the old Sultan that he suppressed all action and all speech that interfered with his own purposes. Behind the veil of silence he imposed the change in the spirit of a large part of the Mohammedans of Turkey has been going on. The process must have been a slow one, however sudden and striking the disclosure of its results. It is full of promise for the future of Turkey.

THE DEADLY MASS PLAY.

"Crushed in a Harvard-West Point Mass Play," the veracious headlines read concerning Cadet BYRNE, dead of his injuries at the Military Academy. "Should football be abolished?" is asked at every university in the country.

Football should not be abolished, but the mass play must go. From Annapolis and from West Point comes the perfectly defensible statement that football at these institutions is not merely a sport, but a useful developer of manly and soldierly qualities. It is a useful game at Harvard, at Yale, at Princeton, and at Chicago. President LOWELL, who cannot be accused of ignoring the cultural purpose of these institutions, has declared that he would be loath to dispense with football as a spur to competitive effort. But the game is not yet emancipated from the deadly close formation.

The "five-yard rule," which compelled a side to advance the ball five yards in three attempts or surrender it to the opposing team, was intended to "open up" the play, and to change the game from a slugging, hammering contest into one in which gentlemen might engage and which spectators might behold with some degree of insight. This rule failed of the desired effect. Then the required distance to be gained in three "downs" was doubled, and with the new ten-yard rule the "forward pass" and the "on-side kick" were invented, putting a premium upon open formations and vastly adding to the spectators' interest and to the gate receipts. We quoted the other day Mr. WALTER CAMP'S statement in the current Century Magazine on the efficacy of making the mass play unprofitable by this method, and we reproduce his prediction:

> Even under the ten-yard rule, should the play take on again, through any possible devices of offense, the character of mass play, the rulemakers will be forced once more to increase the distance to be gained. It is an infallible remedy, and the public knows it.

But this is not all. The rules of the on-side kick and the forward pass demand that the game be no longer brutal, and dependent upon sheer weight and strength. It must be skillful. Skill requires that the players of the champion team be uninjured during the season. In the October number of Recreation Mr. CAMP makes this clear:

> The game under the new rules is far more difficult than under the old rules, for it requires a great deal of development of tactics and more finishing up of individual skill, especially in the point of the placing of kicks and the quick, accurate handling of the ball. And the hardest feature of this to the team is that the very fact of the longer time necessarily expended in developing a play containing one of these features means the greater seriousness of the loss incurred when some one man who was a feature in that play perhaps meets with an injury which lays him up for a few days. Suppose a full back, half back, and end work out a play with considerable precision, it can easily be seen that the substitution of another man for one of these three may, and probably will, make it impossible to use that play until after it has been worked over again and adapted to the new man. It is this feature more than anything else which has delayed the further perfecting of sensational plays under the on-side kick and forward-pass rules.

That is, the character of football has so changed that not only considerations of public sentiment and of humanity, but of the science of football demand that the mass play be eliminated altogether. The death of Cadet BYRNE testifies to the fact that the objectionable play survives. A new rule adding five yards to the ten now required to be gained would prevent such deaths, and would make certain the "further perfecting of sensational plays."

The Public Service Commission just aches to see the city go deeper in debt. As soon as the Board of Estimate had approved Brooklyn's Fourth Avenue Subway the Commission cried out to the contractors: "Hurry up, get to work, so that the city may be fully committed to the undertaking." Now Mr. WILLCOX, the Chairman of the Commission, appeals to every citizen to vote for the Debt Limit amendment. The city must put out bonds beyond the present limit and increase its debt by tens of millions, otherwise "it will be forced to do without needed transportation facilities, or accept what private companies are willing to offer." Private companies will not put in bids to build and operate a subway that would show a deficit of two millions a year, even though it did enrich a greedy gang of real estate speculators. The present debt limit is ample for any sound and justifiable ventures in which the city is likely to engage.

The Weather Bureau predicts rain for to-day. If it comes down in torrents, or if it merely drizzles, or if the skies are bright and the air balmy there will be no difference in the voting. About 600,000 votes will be cast in the entire city. The old traditions about election day weather only concerned the rural districts where voters were compelled to travel long distances to the polls. They were never based on ascertainable facts. The vote to-day will be normal, and if OTTO BANNARD gets his normal share of it he will be elected Mayor.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Prejudice at Its Culmination.

If Bishop WARREN A. CANDLER of the Southern Methodist Church is to be believed, or, rather, if he were to be believed on this particular matter, Mr. ROCKEFELLER'S gift of $1,000,000 to be used by a carefully selected board of scientists in conducting a campaign for the cure and prevention of a disease from which 2,000,000 American citizens are suffering, and not a few thousands dying, is an insult to the South that should be hotly resented by all its people. In some fear, apparently, lest the Southerners fail to appreciate the wrong that has been done them, the Bishop has taken the trouble to explain the nature and gravity of their grievance against this slanderous plotter against the fair fame of the sunny Southland and its inhabitants.

Slander it is, he tells them, to say that the hookworm exists in the Southern States, and is to be conquered only by teaching its victims to observe a few of the fundamental rules of sanitation and hygiene. Statements to that effect—made, by the way, on the authority of Southern doctors who have investigated the subject and been appalled by the difficulty of the task which confronts them—are viewed by Bishop CANDLER as new proof that "for some reason self-appointed philanthropists have taken it upon themselves to discover and proclaim conditions in the South calculated to create further prejudice against the States and people of the South, to divert immigration, and to alarm the resident population." He hates the very idea of what he calls "the vermifuge fund," and he vehemently denounces the man who "would take charge of both our heads and our stomach, and purge our brains of ignorance and our bowels of worms." He rejoices that a like abominable attempt to convict the Southern States of suffering from something or other named "pellagra" has miserably failed!

What shall one say of a man who talks like this, who sees malevolence where only good-will exists, whose sectional pride has turned into a baleful insanity of suspicion and hatred directed against the rest of his own country? He, too, and all of his kind in both North and South are suffering from a psychical disease of the very gravest kind. Whatever else may be said about or against Mr. ROCKEFELLER, he is doing, not harm, but incalculable good, in devoting certain millions to the promotion of just the kind of medical research which the United States needs most, and in which it has hitherto been weakest. It is a sensitiveness strange, indeed, that is hurt because one of the appeals to which he has listened came from the South, and it is about as reasonable to object to the creation of the Uncinariasis Commission as it would be for New York to resent the establishment here of the Rockefeller Institute. Of course, the South does not dream of doing it, and Bishop CANDLER will bellow to deaf ears.

Entertainers from the Slums.

Wealth and fashion seem to be equally lacking in discretion and good taste when their representatives of both sexes, when gathered at a house party in the country, can find no more elevated or elevating amusement for a Saturday night than that of watching six obscure pugilists, collected from east side slums, while they pummel each other with their fists in more or less sincere and convincing imitation of prize-ring battles.

Interest in boxing as a means of self-defense, or even as an art, is not disgraceful to any man, in or out of "society," and guarded exhibitions of its innocent strenuosities and vivacities need not necessarily be shocking to women, but the hiring of professional fighters to give, or to pretend to give, the spectacle of real battle in the presence of men and women supposed to be of intelligence and refinement is a wholly different matter, and is not too harshly described by calling it scandalous and disgusting.

That strange "function" down in the Meadow Brook country is sure to be the subject of endless adverse comment. Such of it as is direct and limited to the particular event and those responsible for it will be well deserved, but unfortunately the promoters of this sorry show will be credited with being the representatives of a whole class, and thence will come much of injustice—much silly and harmful talk from those whose purposes it serves to create social antagonisms.

It is said that the stories in circulation about the fights in the Ladenburg coach house give an exaggerated idea of the ferocity displayed. Even if true, the palliation of the offense against taste and prudence is slight, and it is hardly to be doubted that the young ruffians earned their money by giving an exhibition that at least appeared to be as brutal as they knew was expected by their employers. That they hurt each other much will not be feared by anybody who knows the habits of gladiators of their kind, but, of course, they seemed to do so, and therein lies the atrocity of the episode.

Ghosts Talk Nonsense.

For a well-intentioned man far from destitute of ability, W. T. STEAD does a little too often things that try the patience of those who would like to remember the not infrequent public services which he has rendered in the past.

Now he comes forward with a mass of "communications" from the dead GLADSTONE, obtained through his queer Bureau of Mediums and dealing with the political questions which are interesting the British public so deeply. They are described as rather worse than the nonsense which the "spirits" usually provide, but to Mr. STEAD they seem to be of grave importance. There is no accounting for such delusions as his.

Of course he is no more insane than any other haunter of séances, but his credulity—and theirs—is certainly amazing to those of us who do not happen to have that particular hiatus in our brains. We all have enough of them, of one kind or another, and therefore we should be charitable to Mr. STEAD. Mr. GLADSTONE will not mind, and his surviving relatives can afford to smile.

An Objectionable Church Bell.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Let me shake hands sympathetically through your columns with "H. H. H." on the subject of profanity-provoking church bells.

I live on the east side. There is an old church in the midst of an alien population. Its bell is harsh. Its audience small. Its sexton has rung the bell for fifty years twice a day. Each session at the bell is fifteen minutes in length. As a result of his efforts I counted six people in the pews a few weeks ago. Whatever excuse for the bell once existed departed with the worshippers years ago. It is now a nuisance. If "H. H. H." will introduce an ordinance it will receive a large chorus of AYE AYE.

New York, Oct. 29, 1909.

ANOTHER BISHOP NEEDED.

Episcopal Diocese of New York Lacks a Coadjutor.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

That which vitally concerns the welfare of one of the largest Christian bodies in New York City should have a claim upon public attention, I refer to what is popularly known as the Episcopal Church.

Since the death of Bishop Potter in July of last year the great Diocese of New York has been shepherded by Bishop Greer, formerly coadjutor. Few wish to criticise what Bishop Greer has done, for his faithfulness and sincerity are recognized by all. He has won the hearts of loyal church people, and we trust that he will be spared to us for many years. When it is realized that the Diocese of New York includes the Counties of Dutchess, Orange, Putnam, Richmond, Rockland, Ulster, Sullivan, Westchester, and New York, making, in all, over 5,500 square miles that have a right to claim his attention, any one can see that it is physically impossible for one man with the very best of intentions to attend to it all. The Diocese of New York has almost twice the number of clergy, parishes, and communicants of any other diocese, yet those dioceses which are next in size to New York, excepting Massachusetts, have two Bishops. In New York alone there were 4,688 confirmations last year. As one goes about there is clearly seen a universal need of another Bishop, who may be able to assist in meeting the growing demands, and to give attention to the new hopes and aspirations of the rapidly extending church life in our very midst.

Another suggestion for relief that is likely to be more acceptable to Bishop Greer is the division of the diocese, but that will take at least two years to accomplish, as it is necessary to refer the matter to the general convention that will meet in the year 1910 before it can be decided here.

Two years, think of the opportunities lost! Think of what might be done!

Two years, with a division of the diocese—yes, and at the end of that time we shall need a coadjutor in what remains as the Diocese of New York.

Wanted a Bishop now—but it might be said, if so, ask for it. But who? There are few who wish to gain the ill-will of their Bishop, or to appear as though dictating what should be his duty.

The only way to satisfy this sadly felt need is for the present diocesan to request relief at the coming convention in November of this year.

The general feeling is that Bishop Greer does not intend to ask for a coadjutor. If this is so, we are helpless. Having nothing to say in the convention, I make my plea by this means, knowing that the general sentiment of clergy and laity is with me.

Can we not appeal to the press and render a public service by giving this matter consideration? And it may be that in this way the judgment of Bishop Greer may be influenced.

It is not too late. The diocesan convention meets Nov. 10. It is only necessary to recall the grand work that has been done in the Bronx under the direction of Bishop Greer to appreciate what could not have been so effectively accomplished if we had not then a coadjutor.

There is to-day much to be developed for the good of the church and the upbuilding of Christianity that is only waiting for a coadjutor. ROBERT LAWRENCE.

"HEREDITARY" CRIMINALS.

However Explained, They Tend to Perpetuate the Ancestral Type.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

THE TIMES of October 29th comments editorially on Judge Foster's article advocating a cure for crime which appears in the November number of Pearson's Magazine. The remedy proposed by Judge Foster is a measure of treatment "to free the State from the infliction of children born to confirmed criminals." Your argument against this measure may be stated succinctly as follows: Crime is not propagated through heredity but is the product of bad environment, hence the proposed treatment is unecessary.

It is certainly true that environment exerts a most potent influence in the extension of crime, but it is difficult to believe that blood counts for nothing. The contrast between the descendants of Max Jukes and of Jonathan Edwards cited in Judge Foster's article is a remarkable one. The facts are stated in Boise's "Science of Penology," (Putnam's, 1901,) Page 327. A research traced the descendants of these two individuals through a period exceeding 150 years. Both stocks were prolific, for the investigation accounted for 1,200 descendants of Jukes and over 1,300 descendants of Edwards. Both records show a persistence of the family type; the descendants of Jukes, who was a worthless drunkard, continued from generation to generation to be criminals, paupers, and degenerates; the descendants of Jonathan Edwards were uniformly useful citizens, hundreds of them filling the highest positions in the church, the State, and the nation.

These instances, many examples of which on a more limited scale are matters of common experience, are accounted for by Judge Foster as due to hereditary transmission. They are accounted for by you as the results of a vicious and of a beneficent environment. Which theory is correct, or whether both heredity and environment combine to produce the result are academic questions, the answers to which are not really essential in determining the value of the proposed measure. The fact remains that the descendants of confirmed and incorrigible criminals tend to perpetuate the ancestral type. The environment into which they are born, and in which they are bred, is, and always will be, vicious and fraught with danger to society. Leave heredity outside the question and say that the danger lies in the continued environment. Why should the community suffer this danger? What humane reason can be urged for permitting Jukes families to extend their line, bringing woe to the offspring and peril to the public? The transmission of the environment from generation to generation is an offense against humanity and against the State. The object of all criminal law and of all penal measures in the treatment of convicts is public protection against crime. If crime is perpetuated by transmission, whether through heredity or through environment, is it not the duty of the State to stop the transmission? EUGENE SMITH.

Conditions Not Ripe for Courtship.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with interest the comment in The Topics of the Times on the spinster's article in Independent as well as earlier writings to your columns on the same subject. Now I am an "unplucked rose," but rather than bewail my fate, harsh as it is, I accept it as other things I've longed for and failed to get. Maybe I could get a desirable husband if I could devote more time to the search, but I am a breadwinner now, and time grows less, while desire to wed increases. At the bottom of this failure of many of us to mate is society's rule governing introductions, requisite, but delaying. Society's ordinary routine has failed to bring the want to the wanter. Who can invent some more and safe methods?

New York, Oct. 30, 1909. WAITING.

NEAR-WINTER SONG.

What is the thing that grows a grouch
Upon a nature bland
That pours the money from your pouch
Into your doctor's hand?
What is the thing that makes you sneeze
And temper badly ruffles?
That interfering,
Undesired,
Pleasure-queering,
Unrequired
Buccaneering
And all-fired
Nuisance known as Snuffles!

What makes acquaintances regard
Your nose and murmur "Rum!"
What, prithee, makes the present bard
So venomously glum?
What makes him wear that fur-thing which
His Adam's apple muffles?
'Tis that intrusion
Nostrum-hounded,
'Mid allusion
Curse-surrounded
And confusion
Worse confounded
Known to man as Snuffles!

THOMAS B. IBARRA.

THE CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENTS.

The substance of the amendments to the State Constitution and of the canal referendum, to be voted on next Tuesday, together with THE TIMES'S advice to voters on these propositions, is printed below:

AMENDMENT NO. 1—VOTE "NO."

This amends Article VI., Section 12, of the Constitution by inserting this provision:

"Each Justice of the Supreme Court shall receive from the State the sum of $10,000 per year."

It further provides that Justices assigned to the Appellate Divisions in the Third and Fourth Departments shall receive extra compensation, and that the Justices of the First and Second Departments shall receive what they now receive.

This amendment is objectionable in principle, because salaries should be fixed by law, not by the Constitution. The increase of $2,500 in the salaries of up-the-State Justices is reasonable and deserved, but it should be made by act of the Legislature, although, of course, no Judge's salary could then be increased during the term for which he was elected. It is necessary to change and readjust salaries from time to time, but it takes always two and sometimes three years to amend the Constitution. Matters subject to comparatively frequent change should be excluded from the organic law.

AMENDMENT NO. 2—VOTE "YES."

This amendment relates to debts of the State and provides that:

"The Legislature may from time to time alter the rate of interest to be paid upon any State debt which has been or may be authorized pursuant to the provisions of this section, or upon any part of such debt, provided, however, that the rate of interest shall not be altered upon any part of such debt, or upon any bond or other evidence thereof which has been or shall be created or issued before such alteration."

This amendment would permit the State Legislature to meet the varying conditions of the money market, just as private borrowers meet it. It was found impossible to sell the 3 per cent. State Canal bonds in the months following the disturbances in 1906. Delay in public works undertaken by the State is very costly, far exceeding any increased interest charge due to the exercise of the proposed legislative authority to fix rates which would sell the bonds. The ratification of this amendment would be simple business prudence on the part of the people.

AMENDMENT NO. 3—VOTE "NO."

This amendment provides that the Legislature may confer certain powers now exercised by County Supervisors upon "county auditors or other fiscal officers authorized to audit bills, accounts, charges, claims, or demands against the county." Little or no information is forthcoming as to the reason for this amendment. It is reported that State officers at Albany know nothing about it. Unless some convincing statement of its motive and purpose is made, the people of the State would be well justified in voting against it.

AMENDMENT NO. 4—VOTE "NO."

This amendment relates to the constitutional debt limit of cities. Its intended and chief effect will be to permit the City of New York to exclude from the debt limit calculation bonds issued "for the acquisition or construction of properties to be used for rapid transit or dock purposes." Under the recent decision of the Court of Appeals it appears that New York City now has a borrowing power of approximately $100,000,000. In the present condition of the city's credit, and having in view its already excessive debt, this is quite as much as the municipal authorities under any administration should have the power to spend. If the amendment should be ratified, nobody can say in what volume bonds could be or might be issued for the construction of docks and subways. The amendment requires that the new undertaking should be self-sustaining, but a subway at first operated at a profit sufficient to pay the interest and sinking fund charges might later on be operated at a loss. The bonds then would have to be included in the 10 per cent. limit, and, if we were already near that limit, the inclusion of tens of millions of additional bonds would cause it to be exceeded. This amendment is a dangerous departure from the policy which set up the safeguard of the 10 per cent. limit, and it should be rejected by the people.

CANAL REFERENDUM—VOTE "YES."

The referendum provision sanctioning the issue of $7,000,000 of State bonds for the Seneca and Cayuga Canal improvement, should be approved, as that is a necessary part of the barge canal construction.

"WHITE SLAVES."

Reports Tammany Attempt to Bribe and Threaten Rescue Worker.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I have just had a message by telephone which I think ought to be told to those who have followed the white slave discussion as it bears on the present political campaign.

There is at work in the slums of New York, and more particularly in Chinatown, a little missionary from whom I have for some months past received much information concerning the white slave traffic, and for whom I have bespoken the aid of the Sage Foundation Funds, Dr. Aked, Dr. Wasson of St. Thomas's, and others. She has rescued many girls, some as young as 12 and 14 years of age, and is well known to the court officials in the Night Court and members of the police force.

She has just telephoned to me that she has been approached by a leader of Tammany, who offered to pay her well to write an article saying that the McClure's article regarding the white slave traffic is not true. She was also told that if Tammany won they would make it impossible for her to continue with her work.

I asked her if the article was true, and she said "In God's name, it is. No matter what they paid me I could never say it was not true. But they say that Tammany will be elected and they will harm me if I do not say it is not true."

I said, "Don't worry, Tammany will not be elected," and quickly and simply she replied, "Thank God!" If you will tell this story it may show something of the difficulties under which people labor who try to help this city to throw off this curse.

Artists, Register Your Votes!

To the Editor of The New York Times:

We earnestly beg that every artist, painter, architect, and sculptor in this great city make it his sacred duty as a man and citizen to go to the polls next Tuesday and vote for an honest, fearless, capable Mayor. To vote for a man who will have the courage to stand against the politicians who have robbed and degraded this city.

We cannot have a beautiful city with corruption at the core and canker at the heart. All our efforts to uplift and beautify are in vain so long as the fountainhead is fouled by those to whom beauty and truth and purity are words of an unknown tongue. The Greeks said that "Men, not walls, make a city." Let us prove it to be so to-day.

Put off golf, tennis, and whatever diversion allures you for the sterner business of life and manhood. To what purpose have our ancestors and kindred given their lives—if we wait supinely while the thief and the thug take from us the right of franchise—the one thing left in times of peace by which we may show our manhood?

If you remember your homes and children on election day, you will vote for the man whose honor has never been impeached, whose integrity is unassailable, and who understands his work better than any candidate ever put up for this high office—his name is Otto Bannard.

Your manhood, as well as your art, is in the balance. If you shirk your duty as a man it is inevitable that your art will show it later. "Men, not walls, make a city."

BOYS TELL OF BLOWS IN TRAINING SCHOOL

One Says Superintendent Beat Him on the Head with Bamboo Cane.

THEN SENT TO HOSPITAL

Former Stenographer Testified That Supt. Farrell Was Drunk and He Helped Him In.

Juvenile vice was "corrected" in the Brooklyn Disciplinary Training School with beatings with heavy walking sticks, and suspected thefts were punished with a six weeks' diet of bread and water and floggings, during which the helpless victims begged on their knees for mercy, according to the thin, white-faced children who testified before the School's Board of Managers yesterday. Fifteen-year-old Tommy Butler was one of the witnesses.

"I have been here six years and ten months," he said, "I was sent here for vagrancy. My father and mother were dead. A policeman found me sleeping under some horse blankets in a moving van, when I was nine years old. I got the scars on my head before I came here.

"Supt. Farrell only beat me once. It was three weeks ago. He punched me in the mouth. I bled a lot, but the doctor says my mouth bleeds very easy. Mr. Harwood was a witness. Supt. Farrell also beat Slumkowski and Batchellor and Schreder and Bennett. He struck one of them six times. I could hear the sound of the blows through the window.

"Supt. Farrell struck Bennett across the head with a cane. Supt. Farrell told us not to talk, without his permission, to Mr. Byk."

Mr. Byk is the member of the School's Board of Managers, who seems to have been particularly active in bringing the charges against Supt. Farrell to light.

Charles Batchellor, who is about 14 years old, is one of the boys who was punished in connection with alleged "immorality."

"Caretaker Pat McCarren took me into the office," he testified. "Supt. Farrell was there. Farrell struck me across the head with a bamboo walking stick. I fell against the desk. I don't know whether he struck me again or not. My head was all bleeding. I picked myself up. While I was waiting to be carried to the hospital Caretaker McCarren went and got a mop, and as I was being helped upstairs to the hospital I saw him mopping the blood from the floor. Yes, I have seen Supt. Farrell under the influence of liquor. A year ago he came back to the school so drunk that he fell into the bushes. Yes, I know of other boys whom he has struck. He struck Slumkowski on the head and face."

A city physician who was present examined the scar on Batchellor's forehead, which the boy said Farrell's blow had caused. The doctor affirmed that the scar was the result of an "incised wound" which might have been inflicted with a stick or cane.

"But the Superintendent," the physician said, "would have had to get around by the side of the boy, instead of in front of him, to have inflicted such a wound."

The principal witness who appeared against Supt. Farrell yesterday was Abraham N. Fauer, who up to a month ago was the school's stenographer, bookkeeper, and general clerk. He described the alleged beating of the Batchellor boy by the Superintendent.

"Supt. Farrell," he testified, "also gave another boy inmate a terrible beating in my presence, raising lumps all over his head. Still another boy, named Taylor, was once accused of having stolen the cook's watch. He denied it, but Supt. Farrell beat him with a stick to make him admit it. The boy got down on his knees and begged for mercy. Then the boy said that the watch would be found in the cook's room. The watch wasn't found there, and the boy got 'the stars and stripes' and was put on a bread-and-water diet. Farrell used a heavy walking stick in beating Taylor. The cook's watch has never been found, and it was never proved that the boys took it. Another boy, William Roberts, who was also accused of having taken the watch, received a beating in my presence so that there were lumps raised all over his head. He was put on the 'block line' and fed on bread and water for six weeks. I know this because the slip on which Supt. Farrell wrote the order of punishment passed through my hands. I also saw him on the block line and saw him fed on bread and water.

"A boy named Charles Hendrickson escaped from the school several months ago, but was brought back. Supt. Farrell beat him across the head with a rattan cane. Hendrickson's hair was close cropped. After the beating there were a lot of red marks all over it, as though it had been painted with a red paint brush. It was a common thing for Supt. Farrell to beat the boys."

Questioned by Mr. Byk as to the allegations concerning Supt. Farrell's use of stimulents, Fauer said:

"Farrell left the school one evening near last New Year's. He returned at 7 o'clock the next morning staggering down the road. Some of the boys saw him. He couldn't walk upstairs, so I helped him up. He almost fell over my desk. There were other occasions on which he smelled of liquor."

P. J. Carlin, a member of the Board of Managers, cross-examined Fauer and brought out that the young stenographer, before resigning last September, had had some disagreement over his vacation salary with Supt. Farrell. Mr. Carlin did not, however, shake Fauer's testimony materially.

Throughout the examination of the witnesses Supt. Farrell sat at the end of the board table, passing his hands over his starched white waistcoat and fingering a jeweled ring.

There was some talk yesterday morning before the Board of Management's investigation began of his resigning and in that way obviating the necessity of an investigation. He has already been investigated by the State Board of Charities, and the Grand Jury has issued subpoenas in connection with the rumors concerning the school. He is 65 years old. He was placed in this $3,000-a-year post nine years ago, through Hugh McLaughlin's influence among others, according to the statement of Richard Bennett, President of the Board of Managers of the school. President Bennett yesterday announced that he intended to remain a friend of the accused Superintendent after the investigation was over.

The appropriation which the city has been asked to make for the maintenance of the school in 1910 is $59,290, which is, according to the present number of its inmates, about $270 a year for the support of each child.

The relation of the school to the city is very unusual. It was created by a special act of the State Legislature in 1896 before the consolidation of the boroughs. The Mayor appoints its Board of Managers, and the Board of Managers, which is unsalaried, appoints the Superintendent. The managers alone can discharge the Superintendent.

Richard Bennett is President, William J. Dixon is Vice President, and M. T. Lewis is Secretary. The present investigation is being conducted by the board's Law Committee. Mayor McClellan sent E. F. Boyle, one of the assistants of Commissioner of Accounts Mitchel, to represent him at the hearing. Mr. Boyle would not say what he thought of the facts which have been brought out.

It is intimated, however, that if the charges against Farrell are substantiated the institution may possibly be taken out of the hands of its present Board of Managers and placed directly under the Charities Department.

FAIRY-LIKE GENEE SEEN IN NEW DANCES

ACTS SLIGHT ROLE PRETTILY

Viola The Christmas Fairy The Spirit of Champagne Queen of the Floral Fete	Mlle. Genee

A huge Christmas tree, glittering in varicolored lights, rich in its adornment of dolls and drums and other toys, but richest of all in its human fruitage, the fairy of Christmas, an elfin creature in white and spangles, tiptoeing down a long incline, gliding to right and left, pirouetting, wheeling, whirling, turning, seeming to dance on air, to float in space, then displaying the strength of hard, firm, well-trained muscles as she tiptoes up the inclined runway—a feat that seemed almost incredibly difficult even for Adeline Genee.

The little fairy of dancers was warmly welcomed at the New Amsterdam last night, as she deserved to be. For her own exquisite share in the performance is not to be admired the less because it is part of one of those "shows" which by some inscrutable decision of her managers are believed to be necessary for an American success.

It is not enough, it appears, for her to merely dance; here she must act, too, and she does her little role prettily and daintily, and takes her part in the childish sort of plot which is woven about a silver star worn by a foundling whose parents by adoption are the alleged comedians of the show. The audience has its first glimpse of Genee, minus the ballet skirts, in a trim little walking suit, very chic, indeed, for the supposed daughter of two poverty-stricken street musicians, with whom she comes to dance at a fashionable cotillion—the kind of fashionable cotillion in which silk hose are quite lavishly displayed and where everybody "whoops it up" with as much noise as lung power will permit. Having become part of the plot to the extent of passing as the rich house owner's long lost daughter—and, by the way, Genee is quite charming in her air of mystification at the discovery that she has now three fathers instead of two—the little dancer must take part in the Christmas festivities. Thus she becomes the fairoy of the tree.

When the gifts aer distributed one tiny girl rebels. Her present does not please her; she wants a doll. A few pantomimic passes and the fairy understands. And, being a fairy, it is easy enough for her to put life into a little painted figure standing underneath the tree, to make of her a lively dancing doll. About her Genee dances her own fairy joy and admiration. So, too, when the boy, with his toy, protests another group is brought to life—brave, red-coated military dolls, little soldiers with gayly tripping vivandieres, but gayest of all the sunshiny, langhing little Genee herself, in that marvelous march militaire, all spirit and dash—a sort of visualizing of the effect which a drum and fife produces up and down a patriotic spine. Then a change to sailor's blouse, and a hornpipe, with the ballet slipper changed to pumps, so tiny that they seem almost like little black beads as the dancer heels and toes it to and fro across the stage.

People who have an idea that all dancing is alike, that there are at most only a few changes in the steps and movements of the toe dancer, should not miss this lesson in variety. The worst of Genee is that she defies description. Say that her champagne dance, in which represents the fairy of the vintage, is all bubble and froth, the essence of liquid grace, and what will it mean to any one who has not seen her do it? It will probably sound only like the exaggerated rhetoric of an enthusiast. However, that is one of the joys of seeing Genee; one is willing to be abused for his enthusiasm, if only she will go on dancing.

The wine dance comes in the second act of "The Silver Star," and the scene, a grape arbor, a massed effect of silver tinsel, forming a background for handsome girls—and there are really many handsome ones in this chorus—and a group of ballet girls, whose dancing can only appear moderately effective in comparison with the star's. Again the ballet appear, this time somewhat more attractively, in the Springtime dance, in which the airy Genee, like a Sprite, flutters in and out among pictured apple trees bursting into blossom, and providing a charming color scheme under a glow of rosy light. Here it is a pity that she is made to speak, that the words of a pantomime fairy are put into her mouth, for the illusion would be better otherwise.

Fortunately, there is enough of Genee in the entertainment to atone for the rest. Much of it needs atonement, especially Bickel and Watson, the two lumbering "comedians" without comedy, whose idea of fun is mostly mugging, and who, if by any chance they had a funny situation, would surely spoil it by their insistent overdoing. They speak broken English without a dialect, which certainly is not funny. Apart from Genee there is Emma Janvier, who has a sense of comedy, but who has had much better songs at other times, and Nellie McCoy, who does acrobatic dancing as though she enjoyed it, and who deserves the applause she gets. But she should not sing. Barney Bernard is fortunately more restrained than he has been heretofore, and Lee Harrison represents a familiar type with plenty of easy assurance. The others are merely fillers-in. Often the chorus is kept on the run so steadily that the effect of its handsome trappings goes for nothing in a general wild scramble. This is especially true in the opening scene of the second act, a really gorgeous picture of the grand staircase at the Paris Opera, with a host of masqueraders all aglitter. With less wild flinging about of hands and arms the effect would be infinitely more impressive.

It would be quite safe to offer a large reward for any one who can find humor in the book, while the music, apart from that which is employed with Genee's dances, is distinguished more for speed than melody.

It still remains to be proved that a series of ballets such as the dancer appears in in London would not appeal to the American public, but in any case there is certainly no good reason why she should not have a place in an entertainment more in harmony with her daintiness and charm.

NEW BRONX THEATRE OPENS.

Vaudeville Managers at Inauguration of Percy G. Williams's House.

Percy G. Williams's new Bronx Theatre opened last night with ceremony and enthusiasm. The lobby and aisles of the new vaudeville playhouse were lined with floral pieces, sent by the friends of the manager and by the employes of Mr. Williams's other theatres.

Grape-Nuts

FOR THOSE WHO LIVE BY BRAIN WORK.

NOT TO WED ITALIAN COUNT.

Countess Spottiswood-Mackin Says Engagement Was Broken.

Among the passengers who arrived yesterday on the White Star Line steamship was the Countess Spottiswood-Mackin who, according to a cable report, was to marry an Italian, Count del Monte. The Countess frankly admitted that there had been an engagement, but said that it had been broken off by mutual consent. When asked for the reason the Countess said:

"The truth is, I wanted to marry an American. Can you blame me?" The Countess has been stopping at Oberammergau, and said the Passion Play there this year would be one of the most successful ever given.

The Countess was Miss Susan Britton, a St. Louis belle. Her father was James Britton, once Mayor of St. Louis. She was married to James S. Mackin, a New York Senator, and upon his death went abroad, where she has spent much of her time since. She was ennobled by Pope Leo XIII. for her charities in the Roman Catholic Church, and became a well-known figure in Paris, London, and Rome. Her book, "A Society Woman on Two Continents," attracted attention.

In 1907 it was cabled that the Countess was to marry a French nobleman, a year later it was reported that she would become the bride of Count Colonna Walewiski of Poland, and still later it was said that she had accepted Gen. Spiridovitch, whom Mrs. Chapman, it is said, is to wed.

WEDS MARQUIS FAUCANCOURT.

Miss Durlacher Recovers from Illness and Ceremony Is Held at Home.

Miss Adah Durlacher, whose sudden and somewhat mysterious illness caused a complete change of plans in the arrangements for her wedding to the Marquis de Faucancourt, Comte d'Ollone, which was to have been held at the City Hall yesterday, recovered sufficiently to be married to the French Marquis at her home, 12 Jumel Terrace, during the day. Miss Durlacher is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jonas F. Durlacher. Owing to the publicity that the prospective wedding occasioned the ceremony was a private one and the family manifested a reticence in giving any particulars.

The Marquis, whose full name appears in the marriage notice as sent to THE TIMES last night, is Henri Marie Gustave Guy, Marquis de Faucancourt, Comte d'Ollone of Besancon, France, has been staying at the Hotel Astor for the last month. It was said there last night that he left the hotel early in the day, taking his baggage with him and leaving no word as to where he was going.

A. Durlacher, chief steward of the Hotel St. Regis, is a first cousin of the Marquis's father-in-law. When asked last night if he had been at the wedding, he expressed surprise.

"No," he said, "I was not invited. It must have been very sudden."

BARTLETT—PLATT.

Miss Henrietta Platt, daughter of the late Henry B. Platt, was married yesterday afternoon in the South Church, Madison Avenue, to Donald L. Bartlett, of New York. Raymond Platt gave his sister in marriage and Miss Platt's attendants were Mrs. William R. Loomis, matron of honor, and Miss Alletta Platt, cousin of the bride. The ushers were all classmates of the bridegroom at Amherst College.

PEABODY—CLEWS.

At the wedding of Miss Nathalie Clews, daughter of Mrs. John Henry Clews, of New York, to Russell Peabody, on Tuesday, Nov. 16, at St. Thomas's Church, the best man will be William A. Stewart, 2d, and the ushers, William Baylis, Jr., Henry Goddard, C. Douglas Green, and Cornelius von Erden Mitchell. Mrs. Clews will give a dinner at the Plaza on Wednesday, Nov. 10, for her daughter's attendants. They will include Miss Alice Anderton, daughter of Dr. William Anderton and Mrs. Anderton, of New York, and Miss Ella Bueck, daughter of Mrs. Charles Bueck, of Richmond, Va.

PRINCESS TROUBETSKOY HERE.

Former Amelie Rives Arrives with Her Husband, the Prince.

The Princess Troubetskoy, the novelist, formerly Amelie Rives, arrived yesterday on the steamship Cretic, and with her was Prince Pierre Troubetskoy. They will remain in this country all Winter, spending part of the time at their home, 53 West Thirty-ninth Street, and a part at Castle Hill, Virginia.

The Princess brought with her the manuscript for her new novel "Pan's Mountain," the scene of which, she said, is laid at her husband's home, Villa Ada, on Lake Maggiero, Italy.

The Prince will establish a studio here. He said that he had recently finished some paintings. He brought them with him. He commented on the fact that the last time he brought any of his work here he had to pay duty on it, but now he can bring it in free.

Social Notes.

Mr. and Mrs. Stuyvesant Fish will leave Garrison's on Nov. 29 to open their town house. Mrs. Fish has a box at the Metropolitan, which she was unable to use last year owing to mourning.

Mr. and Mrs. George G. Heye have just returned from a visit to Philadelphia, where several luncheons and dinners were given for them.

The first meeting of the New Assembly dances will be held at Delmonico's on Dec. 3. The Saturday Evening Dancing Class and the Cotillion of Eighty will meet there on Dec. 4, and the first of the four cotillions on Dec. 15.

Mrs. Gustav Amsinck has returned from Lenox and is at her residence, 25 East Forty-seventh Street, for the Winter.

William Ayrault Hazard will give a dinner at Delmonico's on Nov. 6 to the Polo Association.

Mr. and Mrs. A. Stewart Barney arrived in town yesterday from Newport.

Mr. and Mrs. Newbold Edgar have returned to town from Southampton and opened their residence, 28 East Thirty-ninth Street.

"Idols" Produced at Bijou Theatre.

Roy Horniman's dramatization of William J. Locke's novel, "Idols," was produced at the Bijou Theatre last night, under the management of Walter N. Lawrence. The play will be reviewed in to-morrow's TIMES.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Topping the bill at the Colonial Theatre this week is George Beban in "The Sign of the Rose," and others in the bill are Nella Bergen, Albert Whelan, Peter, the monkey; Charles and Fannie Van Jones and Deely, and the Daleys.

The Alhambra bill this week includes Yvette Guilbert, Lottie Williams and company, Raymond and Caverly, Barrows, Lancaster and company, the Carmos, the Italian Trio, and Liane de Dyle.

The American Music Hall has Severin, the pantomimist, as headliner this week, with Maud Odell, George Fuller Golden, Sam Curtis and company, Lafayette's Dogs, W. E. Whittle, Josie McIntyre, the Ishakawa Japs, McCarthy and Major, and Wood and Lawson.

At Keith & Proctor's Fifth Avenue Theatre yesterday the bill was headed by Howard and North in "Back to Wellington," and others were the Great Leslie, Ray Cox, the Eight Palace Girls, Macart and Bradford, Warren and Blanchard, Bert Shepard, and Mareena, Navaro and Mareena.

Anna Held in "Miss Innocence" is the current attraction at the Grand Opera House, opening last night.

"Two Women and That Man" is this week's offering at the Metropolis Theatre, the last dramatic attraction to play there. Next week the house will be devoted to burlesque.

Leona Watson and Effingham Pinto returned to the cast of "The Climax" at Weber's Theatre last night after an absence of three months, spent with the Chicago company. Howard Lange also returned in the role of Luigi, replacing Albert Bruning, who is a member of the New Theatre company.

Charles Frohman has almost completed the cast of a company to play "Arsene Lupin" in Australia in January. The tour will be directed by J. C. Williamson.

BERT WILLIAMS IN "LODE OF KOAL"

MLLE. DAZIE IN VAUDEVILLE

MR. LODE OF KOAL, a musical play in three acts, by J. A. Shipp and Alexander Rogers; music by J. Rosamond Johnson. Majestic Theatre.

Chestor A. Lode	Bert A. Williams
Buggsy	Alex. Rogers
Gimlet	Tom Brown
Gluten, Gimlet's silent partner	Siren Nevarro
Buttram	J. Leubrie Hill
Weedhead	Charles H. Moore
"Cap"	Henry Troy
Singlink, Court messenger	Charles McKenzie
"Slug"	J. E. Lightfoot
First "Lieut"	Sterling Rex
Second "Lieut"	J. M. Thomas
Third "Lieut"	Clarence Redd
Blootch	Matt Housley
Wooxy	Hattie McIntosh
Whirlina	Siren Nevarro
Mysteria	Lottie ..Grady
A. Saylor	Ada Banks
Hoola	Hattie Hopkins
Kinklets	Georgia Gomez

Any plot there may be in Bert Williams's new play is effectually disguised in a jumble of nonsense and music, though one is led to suspect the presence of such a commodity from the beginning of the first act. As a wild guess, it seems to be like this: The ruler of an unidentified country is kidnapped and a certain Chestor A. Load, of the Island of Koal, is engaged to fill the vacancy. This he does to his own satisfaction until the return of the real "Big Smoke," known familiarly as Blootch. It took some ingenuity for last night's audience to discover this much.

Bert A. Williams is fully as amusing by himself as he was as a part of the partnership of Williams and Walker. He has two songs, sung in his awkward way, called "That is Plenty" and "Believe Me." The audience, and particularly the gallery, liked both of them.

There are several other comedians in the company, Alexander Rogers as a sort of Major Domo called Buggsy; Tom Brown as a conspirator named Gimlet, Charles McKenzie as a monkey, and J. L. Hill as a dark colored tramp. The chorus has the vocal vigor and quality to be expected of negro singers, and its members seem to enjoy their work.

The soloists, too, are proficient in voice and expression. Georgia Gomez, a soprano, has a ballad called "The Harbor of Lost Dreams," and Ada Banks sings "In Far Off Mandalay." A feature is the dancing of Siren Nevarro, a toe dancer.

DAZIE IN DANCE PANTOMIME.

Presents a Sketch, "L'Amour de l'Artist," Artistically at Hammerstein's

Three characters appear in the two scenes of the dance—an artist, his sweetheart, and a flower girl, who wins his love. The first scene shows a restaurant and the second the artist's studio. The dance concludes with the death of the flower girl, stabbed by her jealous rival.

The success of the sketch depended upon Mlle. Danzie's dancing and her pantomime in both she succeeded in giving the spirit of the character—that of the flower girl. Her assistants were thoroughly capable of doing their share of the interpretation.

Daniel Church McEwen.

Daniel Church McEwen, who was William H. Seward's private secretary while Mr. Seward was Secretary of State in President Lincoln's Cabinet, died yesterday at his home, 160 Sterling Place, Brooklyn. Mr. McEwen was in his sixty-seventh year. He was born in 1843 at Lawrenceville, N. Y., and prepared for college at the Lawrenceville Academy, and later was graduated from the Columbia College Law School and was admitted to the bar, but never practiced his profession. In 1869 he was appointed official stenographer of the Supreme Court, Second Judicial District, outside of Kings County, and for the thirty-six years that he held the position had complete charge of all the Supreme Court official reporting in nine counties. Mr. McEwen was a member of the Montauk and Crescent Athletic Clubs, the Thousand Island Yacht and the Thousand Island Golf Clubs. He leaves a widow.

Rev. Brother Aelred.

The Rev. Brother Aelred, a prominent Roman Catholic educator, who was President of Manhattan College for several years, died yesterday at the Clason Point Military Academy, in the Bronx. His funeral will be held from the Academy, where he had been a member of the teaching staff for some time, to-morrow.

New Rochelle Postmaster Drops Dead.

Winifred Spencer, Postmaster of New Rochelle, dropped dead of apoplexy at his home yesterday morning. He was about 50 years old and was a Republican, appointed to succeed the late Charles Earwicker, who also died in office. He was extensively interested in real estate in New Rochelle.

Swift & Company's sales of Fresh Beef in New York City for the week ending Saturday, Oct. 30, averaged 7.58 cents per pound.—Adv.

DENOUNCE CLASSIC DANCE.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 1.—The classic dance of Isadora Duncan to the accompaniment of Walter Damrosch's orchestra prompted the Methodist Episcopal ministers of St. Louis and East St. Louis to adopt resolutions denouncing the dance as immodest. The resolutions say in part:

"It is to us a matter of exceeding regret that in the name of Charity and before an audience of character and culture at the Coliseum, the people's building, and excused only by being high art, a performance was given that is a gross violation of the proprieties of life, and we trust it may never be repeated in our fair city."

Financiers to Attend Kennedy Funeral.

President J. Edward Simmons of the Chamber of Commerce yesterday appointed eleven financiers, formerly Vice Presidents of the Chamber of Commerce with John S. Kennedy, the financier and philanthropist, who died at his home, 6 West Fifty-seventh Street, Sunday afternoon, to attend the funeral of their former associate to-morrow as a special committee from the Chamber of Commerce. The men appointed are J. Pierpont Morgan, Jacob H. Schiff, James J. Hill, George F. Baer, Gustav H. Schwab, Cleveland H. Dodge, Joseph H. Choate, George F. Seward, William Bayard Cutting, Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, and John Claflin.

Obituary Notes.

Mrs. OPHELIA W. DARLING, widow of the Rev. Dr. Henry Darling, ex-Moderator of the General Assembly and President of Hamilton College, died on Sunday at her home in Brooklyn after a brief illness. She was the daughter of Richard A. Wells of Hudson, N. Y. Mrs. Darling after her husband's death was identified with the work of the Memorial Presbyterian Church in Brooklyn and many philanthropic institutions.

LEWIS B. HOHMEYER of 26 North Maple Avenue, East Orange, a well-known choir soloist, died yesterday at his home after a long illness. Two weeks ago he attempted suicide by slashing his wrist while out walking in South Orange. He was taken to the Orange Memorial Hospital and soon recovered, the wounds not being serious. Hohmeyer, who was 28 years old, was a native of Bordeaux, France. He had lived in this country since early childhood. He sang in the choirs of Christ Church, East Orange, and St. Mark's, West Orange. His mother and one brother survive him.

Mrs. AMELIA RENDT, mother of Alderman David Rendt, who is the Democratic candidate for Sheriff of Richmond County, died at her home in Tompkinsville yesterday. She was 70 years of age. She had lived on Staten Island most of her life.

Mrs. BETSY EPSTEIN, widow of Jacob H. Epstein, died yesterday at her home, 110 East Eighty-third Street, from pneumonia. She was 70 years old and came to this country from Kovna, Russia, fifty-five years ago, most of which time has been spent in this city. She left three sons, Bernard, Julius, and C. Joshua, all of whom are in business in New York, and one daughter, Ray Epstein.

Ex-Alderman PETER HIRSCHFIELD, who about twenty years ago was the Republican leader in the old Nineteenth Ward of Brooklyn, died early yesterday morning of typhoid fever at his home, 411 Kent Avenue, Williamsburg. He was born in Buffalo 62 years ago, and when five years old his parents moved to Williamsburg. He afterward became a cigar manufacturer. From 1885 to 1887 he was an Alderman, and from 1896 to 1898 he was a messenger for the Board of Aldermen. He was also at one time a cattle inspector. He belonged to Marsh Lodge No. 188, F. and A. M., and Dan Lodge, No. 9, I. O. F. S. of L. He also belonged to Abel Smith Post. He is survived by his widow and five children.

Mrs. ELIZA A. WILLIAMS, widow of the late William Williams, died yesterday at her home, 73 Brinkerhoff Street, Jersey City, at the age of 93 years. She was born in Mamaroneck, N. Y. Her father was Robert Hilton of Philadelphia. She was the mother of the late Thomas H. Williams, President of the Griffin Iron Company, and was one of the charter members of the Bergen Baptist Church. A son, Charles C. Williams, retired, survives her.

FRANKLIN DELANO ROOSEVELT, Jr., the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt of 49 East Sixty-fifth Street, died yesterday of heart trouble. The boy, who was 9 months old, was a great nephew of ex-President Theodore Roosevelt and cousin of the Roosevelts in New York.

"SOCCER" FOOTBALL MAY BE NEW GAME

EXPERTS SUGGEST REMEDIES

Up to Rules Committee to Save Game or Abolish It—Expressions from College Centres.

The unfortunate and untimely death of Cadet Byrne has focussed attention on American fotball as it is played to-day and given to it the worst black eye it has had in many a year. For coupled with the West Point fatality is the case of Midshipman Earl Wilson, the Navy quarter back, who was probably mortally injured in a flying tackle in the Annapolis-Villanova game. It has been said that the greatest of injuries come from the bruising mass plays, but it is pointed out in a very significant manner by those opposed to even the so-called new game, that Villanova has a lighter team than the Navy, and that the weight question, therefore, can hardly enter into the present discussion.

The opinion was general among all the ex-college players seen yesterday that the trouble lies not in the differences of weight, not in the differences in methods of training—for it is pointed out that the best conditioned under-graduate bodies in the world are the corps of cadets at West Point, and the brigade of midshipmen at Annapolis—not in inferior football knowledge, not in any of the usually accepted theories, but in the rules themselves.

There never was a harder player, a more difficult man to stop, or one who knew more of the ins and outs of mass playing under the old rules than Robert P. Kernan of Harvard. In discussing the new game, as opposed to the old, with particular regard as to whether the rules had been really revised, he said:

"They say they've opened the game. Maybe they think they have. But just look carefully at the penalties that surround an incompleted forward pass. On the first and second downs an incompleted forward pass entails the loss of fifteen yards. Well, a team's hardly going to take a chance on that play; then, when it has, it is backed up somewhere near its own goal line or even in its own territory anywhere when it's playing against an opponent of nearly equal strength. It would be too hazardous.

"Again, on the third down, if a team tries to pull off the forward pass and it fails to the ground, the ball goes to the opponents on the spot where the ball was put in play for that third down. Who's going to try a forward pass under such conditions? Naturally enough, since they are hampered by such a rule, a team in its own territory has simply got to stick to line bucking on the first two downs and punting on the third."

Asked how he would remedy this difficulty, Mr. Kernan said:

"Easy and simple. Let them remove these penalties, or else modify them.

"There's one rule that ought to be amended right away. They ought to prohibit dragging a man after he has been tackled or tumbled over. That's where most of the injuries occur. If ten men are pulling one, something's got to give, and it's going to be the defense. It's the players then on the defense who are hurt. It's true we've got to keep scoring plays, but we can have them without the dragging play."

Another man seen was an old football star of the first magnitude in his day at college. He is now a well-known and popular official and, incidentally, a member of the Rules Committee.

That there is stagnation in that committee—which he did not by any means admit in so many words—as has been charged very frequently, may be deduced from an anecdote he related. At the committee meeting last Spring, a two-days' session, no fewer than twelve amendments were offered to the laws governing forward passes. THE TIMES's informant then ingenuously said: "When they were being debated—and that debate showed a very considerable amount of thought having been given the proposed changes—they were ardently advocated. But when it came to voting they were unanimously turned down."

And right there is the crux of the situation. It is a fact of more or less common knowledge that until very recently one man has dominated that rules committee. No change for the better or for a more open and advanced game could be invogued, unless that man's scrub team showed an aptitude for the new order of things, so that the next year, when it, in turn, became the 'varsity and the new rules would also be in force, its alma mater would not be a sufferer. There are teams without number from that institution which prove the fact, and it was that team which first successfully coped with the forward pass. It has been openly admitted by members of the rules committee that this man held up the forward pass and onside kick for a whole year, during which time he instructed the men who would be the 'varsity players of the ensuing season in the details of the new game. Then the rules were changed the following Spring, and lo, that man's team cleaned the boards!

Whatever progress has been made in changing the rules and providing what little there is of revised football is due to the Army. The officers in charge of athletics at West Point started a rebellion there five years ago under the leadership of Capt. Palmer E. Pierce, and it soon developed into a revolution. A number of the smaller colleges joined with Capt. Pierce, and they changed the rules drastically, and thereby compelled the newer game among the "big four," willy nilly. It is literally true that every improvement made in the last five years in the playing rules of football is directly traceable to these officers' efforts.

A recent article by Lieut. G. A. Taylor, U. S. A., on "Soccer Football," is most timely. Advocating its adoption in the army and for smaller colleges generally, he said, in part:

"The conditions and requirements of the Army are very different from those of the colleges. To 'make' one of the leading football teams is too often the object of a college man's life. You may say this is a perverted ambition, but nevertheless it is an existing condition, not a mere theory. After having for a few seasons enjoyed the 'bubble reputation,' how many an all-American player sinks into obscurity for the rest of his life. After he leaves college, unless he coaches for a while, he probably never again handles a football, but spends the rest of his life in a swivel chair with an occasional game of tennis, golf, or squash to keep him from entirely deteriorating physically.

"A game of soccer rarely requires a substitute, and the spectacle of a new and fresh eleven being run in for the second half against a team not so rich in substitutes is unknown. The individuality of the American is strong, and the opportunity for individual work offered by soccer would appeal more strongly to his nature than the studied technique of our college game. Do not gather the impression that the game (soccer) is not one of skill. Take in a game some day and watch an expert 'dribble' the ball.

"In conclusion, let me quote the opinion of Capt. Bryan, the trainer of the athletic teams of the Colorado School of Mines. He said to me recently:

"'I like the open game. It does not injure so many of our young men. That game (soccer) would be the best in the world for soldiers.'

"We have delayed too long in taking up the game, and I trust that in the near future it will be widely played throughout our army and put on the basis it so well deserves."

SOCCER GAINING AT YALE.

No Indication at Present of Supplanting Regular College Game.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—Football men see need for radical changes in the playing rules, and there is no move on foot to change the style of play in the three remaining matches on the Yale card or to plan for a revision in the code when the Rules Committee meets during the Winter. None of Yale's football Executive Staff, including Walter Camp, Howard Jones, and Capt. Ted Coy, would to-day discuss probable rule changes, although all admitted they might make some statement later.

Jones and Coy said that if changes were made they need not be sweeping, in their opinion, although both favor some slight modifications of the rules, which they are not yet willing to announce.

There has been no movement among the members of the Yale Faculty who are known to be hostile to football looking toward an abolition of the game. It is taken for granted that the deaths on the gridiron which have been reported the past few days will result in a protracted discussion of the same by the university Faculty, but no radical action is likely.

The Faculty have in past years expressed themselves as willing to leave the matter of framing the code to Walter Camp, Yale's representative on the Rules Committee. It is years since there have been any serious accidents at Yale, and the present season has been remarkably free from them. The sentiment among members of the Yale Faculty is to allow the remaining games on the Yale schedule, which are the principal matches of the season, to be played and to determine future action on the sport largely upon the players injured in the games. It is safe to assert that Yale's players will not be found making any diving tackles in any of the games. Another feature of the Yale play will be that Trainer John Mack will keep the closest of watch on the Yale players, and any one who seems exhausted will be pulled from the game without warning.

Soccer foot ball is enjoying a boom on its own hook just now. Dr. Herbert, the former Oxford University crack, has been selected coach of the team, and it is being developed on a most business-like basis. The team plays at Staten Island to-morrow in its first out-of-town game this Fall, and meets Princeton here next week as a curtain raiser to the annual Yale-Princeton football game. If soccer is to supplant the older football game here, there is no indication of it, although soccer is gaining constantly in popularity at Yale.

NO CHANGE AT HARVARD.

Soccer Finds Little Encouragement from Coaches at Cambridge.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 1.—The suggestion of soccer as a good substitute for football brought forth smiles from the Harvard eleven to-day. Coach Haughton would have nothing to say and his men followed his example. One of the half backs observed "It will be time enough to talk of a game in place of football when the Athletic Committee puts its foot down on the gridiron game, but that will, we all believe, be many years to come." While the high schools of New England are trying to boost up soccer as a pastime for their students, it will never rank with the regular game. There is little or no interest in it here, although the acquisition of promised Swiss stars of the game may boom it next season.

The consensus of opinion among coaches of other sports in the university is that only the injection of new rules which will do away with, or lighten, the heavy line plunge will be the salvation of the game. At present sheer brute strength beats down a less favored opponent, exhausts him, making him easy prey to injury. The players stand strong in their belief that Byrne should have been led to the side lines at least five minutes before the fatal play was directed at him. "He was playing on his grit," they assert.

Concerning the Byrne incident and the future of football this year at Harvard, Dean Le Baron Briggs, Chairman of the Athletic Association, said: "We feel very badly over the occurrence at the West Point game, and we sympathize sincerely with his folks and the academy of which he was a member. Of course, there are other sports in which there is great risk of injury and death, for example horseback riding. Not having been at the game at West Point I am unable to say anything on this particular occurrence. As for the effect of this incident on sports and athletics, particularly on football, in the future I would not dare to prohesy."

PARENTS TO STOP GAME.

Commercial High's Head Hopes to Have Team Disbanded.

In an attempt to discourage football at the Commercial High School, in Brooklyn, Dr. William Farley, the Acting Principal, has written letters to the parents of the boys on the school team, stating his views on the game. He declared yesterday that he will not bear the responsibility of any accident to the football players in his school, and has insisted in his letter that the family physician of each candidate shall certify to the boy's physical condition before he is allowed to play.

Dr. Farley's sentiments on football, it was said, have been less favorable toward the sport since the fatal accident to Cadet Byrne in the game at West Point on Saturday. He hopes to receive the objections of enough parents of the boys in his school to bring about the disbandment of the team.

"I am not in favor of football," he said yesterday. "I wish I could put a stop to it. It is rough and brutal. If the parents of the boys to whom I have written approve of the game, they must bear the responsibility."

WILDER ATTACKS FOOTBALL.

Cornell Scientist Compares Sport to Bull-Baiting and Prizefighting.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Burt G. Wilder, the Cornell scientist, to-day attacked football again, advocating its abolishment. While he declared that the recent casualty had no partcular influence on his mind, he hoped the views of other men might be changed.

He said he would rather encourage bull baiting and prizefighting than football on the ground that resultant deaths would help the community. He used again one of his favorite terms, calling football a relic of barbarism.

No action was taken at Cornell to-day in regard to the death of Cadet Byrne, and it is very unlikely that anything will be done. President Schurman is a champion of the game.

President Schurman is ill and has expressed no opinion on the matter, but it is safe to say that Byrne's death will lead to no action on football at Cornell.

Chancellor MacCracken Wants Change.

Chancellor MacCracken of New York University, when asked yesterday to make a statement regarding the death of Cadet Byrne, said: "Four years ago Mr. Moore of Union was fatally injured while playing football against our team on Ohio Field. At that time I called a meeting of college football authorities with a view to making improvements which would render the players more safe. I did not feel justified in demanding an evolution in the game, but asked for and obtained a modification of the rules, which have improved the game greatly.

"I think, however, that the game is still open for improvements and while New York University will not initiate any new movement to alter the rules of the game, we shall be very glad to see changes made. I hope that all colleges will enter the Intercollegiate Association and do their utmost to make the game more safe. New York University will abide by any action taken by the association."

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 1.—The gates of Yale Field were closed to-day. There was only a ten-minute playing period in public, but the 'Varsity and scrubs practiced half an hour in secret, and the scrimmage drill was preceded by nearly an hour's signal work. Ed Savage, the Bridgeport boy, whose showing against Amherst on Saturday was so spectacular, furnished the star features of the afternoon play, both in the secret and open drill. He made the only touchdown in the secret work.

On the regular rush line Hobbs and Andrus were prevented by reciations from reporting. Tomkinson and Spencer of the scrubs played in their places. Howe, whose work Saturday exhausted him, did not report, and Johnson was used at quarter back. Capt. Coy showed such speed in end running Saturday that it was decided to keep him at left half back to-day, and he will remain there for the present. Francis was used at right half back and Savage at full back. Philbin, Daly, and Murphy did not scrimmage.

Hard Scrimmage for Princeton.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Nov. 1.—Notwithstanding the hard game with the Naval Academy on Saturday, the coaches sent the 'Varsity out against the scrubs this afternoon for a long scrimmage period. With the exception of Frantz, who is out of the game for the remainder of the season, all of the regulars reported, but a number of them were not in the practice, the coaches giving them a rest. Cunningham played in the backfield and made a touchdown, as well as making some long gains. Sparks scored another touchdown, and Van Dyke, at end, made the third touchdown on a beautiful forward pass. Walker kicked all three goals. The scrubs, however, pierced the 'Varsity line almost at will, and scored two touchdowns from line plays. Christie was put in Bergen's place to-day, but played so listlessly that th ecoaches sent in Bard. The latter was a decided improvement, and ran the team with good judgment. The problem now is to find a good sub-quarter back, and a number of men will be tried out for that position, with a view to replacing Bergen, should anything happen to him.

Navy Has a Longer Drill.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 1.—Football practice progressed this afternoon at the Naval Academy as if there was no doubt that the season would be continued as expected. Indeed, a full afternoon was given to it, the fottball men having been excused from drill. However, the practice was confined almost altogether to signal work and formations both on the offense and defense. The coaches present were Wheaton and Cates of Yale and Berrien, Howard, and Ingram of the navy. Byrd was not in the practice, as he hurt his ankle in Saturday's game, and Bartle took his place. Richardson and Brand were back in their places at full back and centre, respectively. It is thought that Reifsnider, the fastest end at the academy, will soon be back in the game, but it is doubtful if Capt. Meyer and Reinicke, the regular guards, will play again this season.

Light Work for Harvard Men.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 1.—If there was any feeling that the Harvard Athletic Committee would cancel the remaining games on the football schedule, it was dispelled this afternoon when the eleven reported as usual for practice. Their work was of the usual Monday variety, consisting of rudimentary tactics, signal drill, and punting, the men showing no trace of injury or nervousness from the West Point game, but when asked to discuss the Byrne case had nothing to say. They were evidently acting under instruction.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL GAMES HERE TO-DAY

SCHOLASTIC STRUGGLES ON

Most Important Schoolboy Match Between "Poly Prep" and Boys' High at Washington Park, Brooklyn.

Two important football matches are scheduled for this city this afternoon. At the American League Park the fast Fordham eleven will clash with the men from Georgetown, and at Ohio Field New York University and Wesleyan will line up against each other. Both struggles promise some interesting football.

In view of the remarkable showing by the Fordham team this season, the contest with Georgetown is looked upon with the greatest interest. The Maroon players have displayed their ability to humble some of the large colleges and created a favorable impression among the enthusiasts of the city by their plucky work. As far as the actual game is concerned it is likely that Fordham will win by a comfortable margin, as the men from Washington have not shown any remarkable aptitude in their work on the gridiron this season.

Fordham indulged in a light work yesterday on Fordham Field with the full 'Varsity strength in the line-up, and every man, with the exception of White, in the best condition. White's arm still troubles him considerably, and it is unlikely that he will play, unless Georgetown shows unexpected strength. McCaffrey and McCarthy practiced the forward pass with Gargan, and Walsh showed his ability as a punter, getting away kicks that averaged fifty yards, and several went considerably more.

The old time rivals, Wesleyan and New York University, should put up an interesting struggle on University Heights. The elevens are considered to be about evenly matched, with Wesleyan the slight favorite. In the opening game of the season, with Yale, the Methodists accomplished the best performance that has been credited to them thus far, holding the New Havenites to an 11 to 0 score. The Hall of Fame men, too, have played consistently, not having been scored against thus far, and having tacked to their belt victories over Rhode Island, Haverford, and Stevens.

Several of the larger of the scholastic football contests are also due for this afternoon. Morris and Commerce will line up at the Polo Grounds, and previous to the Georgetown-Fordham game at American League Park, Fordham Prep will contest with Brooklyn Prep. In Brooklyn, Boys' High School and Poly Prep, two of the strongest of the scholastic teams of the city, will clash in their annual game at Washington Park, and Manual Training High School plays Erasmus Hall at Saratoga Park.

Gates Closed at Cornell Drill.

Special to The New York Times.

ITHACA, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Cornell opened up the last few days of practice before the Harvard game this afternoon by an hour's drill in football fundamentals followed by a drill in the best of the old plays and several new ones to be worked against the crimson. The coaches ordered secret practice and will probably keep it up all week. Hurlburt, who suffered a turned ankle in the Williams game, will probably be unable to play Saturday.

St. Nicholas Rink Opens.

A large number of invited guests last night inaugurated the skating season for this city at St. Nicholas Rink, Broadway and Sixty-sixth Street, the ice being crowded to its limit. All of the devotees of the ice-skating game were in evidence, many of whom have been patrons of the rank for many years. Speed skaters, lovers of the hockey game, and many women circled the ice in one of the liveliest sessions the rink has ever seen. The general public will have its first turn this morning, with afternoon and evening sessions, continuing through the Winter.

ALCO GETS AUTO CUP.

American Locomotive Co.'s Car Declared Winner of Vanderbilt Race.

The Vanderbilt Cup race was officially closed yesterday when the Motor Cups Holding Company awarded the Vanderbilt Cup to the American Locomotive Company's Alco. The meeting was held at the office of William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., at the Grand Central Station. There was no protest to the awarding of the cup, and the report of Chief Timer Charles J. Dieges was accepted as final. Mr. Vanderbilt, as President of the Motor Cup Holding Company, congratulated the timers for their efficient work in connection with the race. The error in the recording of the laps was due to the mistake of one man, but by the double checking system adopted the scoring sheets showed the correct score. The American Locomotive Company will hold the Vanderbilt Cup until it is won by another car in the next race held. In addition the company received a special trophy.

The Wheatley Hills Trophy, with $1,000 in cash, was awarded to the Marmon, driven by R. W. Harroun, which covered the 189.60 miles in 3:10:21 2-3, and the Massapequa trophy went to the Chalmers Detroit, driven by oJe Matson. The time for the distance, 126.40 miles, was 2:09:52 3-5.

The official announcement made by the officials at the race that the Atlas car ran off the course and was withdrawn was an error, as the car was on the course and still running when the race was declared off. It was also announced that the Marmon, driven by R. W. Harroun, lost a wheel. This also was inaccurate, as the car did not change a tire during the contest and was returned the winner of the Wheatley Hills Sweepstakes.

Harry F. Grant, who drove the Alco car to victory in the Vanderbilt Cup race, was the guest of honor last night at a dinner given by the officers of the American Locomotive Company, at the Engineers' Club. Grant was presented with a check from the company for a substantial sum. F. H. Lee, Grant's mechanic; W. J. Harris and George Babcock, who were his training attendants and pit assistants, were also rewarded with cash presents.

Results of Billiard Games.

Calvin Demarest, who ranks as one of the best of the professional billiardists, yesterday began a series of exhibition 18.2 balk line games at Maurice Daly's Billiard Academy, Broadway and Forty-ninth Street. He played both in the afternoon and evening, and each time was the winner by a comfortable margin from his opponents. In the first match he contested with Small and defeated him by a total of 300 to 72. His high run was 56 and his average 9 21-31. Small gathered a best inning of 10 and averaged 2 12-30. St. John was the opponent of Demarest in the evening game, and the score was 300 to 53 in favor of Demarest. His average was better than in the afternoon game, being 16 12-18, but his best turn at the table netted him only 41. St. John gathered in a high run of 13 and average 3 2-17.

John W. Daly of Chicago, challenger for the three-cushion carom billiard championship match to be played here beginning to-morrow, won two exhibition games of fifty points each in McGraw's Billiard Hall, Broadway and Thirty-fifth Street, yesterday. The afternoon match, with J. B. Magneus, resulted with the score: Daly, 50; high run, 4; Magneus, 24; high run, 3, in forty-eight innings. In the evening match, with Henry Mills, the score was: Daly, 50; high run, 4; Mills, 33; high run, 3, in sixty innings.

In the three-cushion carom handicap tournament in progress in Doyle's Billiard Room, Broadway and Forty-second Street, last night Alec Smith won from M. F. Tepper by a score of 25 to 23 in forty-nine innings, the highest run being 5 by Smith.

Lake Out of Boston Club.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Fred Lake will not manage the Boston American team next season. An announcement to this effect was made by President John I. Taylor after he had had a conference with Lake at the Boston club's headquarters this afternoon. President Taylor stated that he considered that Manager Lake had "made good" as leader of his team, but that he could not meet the figures that Lake had demanded for his salary. The manager had named $6,500, and had made that sum his ultimatum.

President Taylor made no announcement of his selection for a successor to Lake, as he said he had not completed arrangements, but it is generally believed that Patsy Donovan, who was scout for the Red Sox last season, and who had had wide experience as a major league manager, will be selected.

Baltimore Baseball Deal On.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—John I. Taylor, President of the Boston American League team, is after a financial interest in the Baltimore Club of the Eastern League, according to a story printed here to-day. That Mr. Taylor is trying to get some of the local holdings was admitted to-day by Edward Hanlon, President of the Baltimore Club, who added that Mr. Taylor wanted the interest as an investment, and he (Hanlon) scouted the idea that Baltimore would be made a "farm" for the Boston Americans.

BRITISH HORSES ARRIVE.

Lieut. Walwyn of English Army Brings Jumpers for Horse Show.

On the Minnehaha of the Atlantic Transport Line yesterday was Lieut. C. F. Walwyn, Royal Horse Artillery, England, the advance kuard of the quintet of British officers who will compete at the National Horse Show next week. He was met by J. T. Hyde, the Secretary of the association, and escorted to the Holland House. On the Minnehaha also were the horses to be used by the entire party.

The other four British officers will arrive to-day on the Carmania. They are Major the Hon. J. G. Beresford, D. S. O., Seventh Hussars, Aldershot, England; Lieut. T. Gerard Hetherington, Eighteenth Hussars, Curragh of Kildare, Ireland; Lieut. P. G. Yorke, Royal Horse Artillery, England, and Lieut. T. H. Bagge-Montifiore, Royal Field Artillery, England. Major Beresford is heir presumptive to William Marcus de la Poer Hershey-Beresford, a peer of England. He is a relative of Lord Charles Beresford and a nephew of the Marquis of Waterford.

The British officers include some of the crack riders of the International Horse Show at London, who will compete in the Garden ring with picked men of Uncle Sam's cavalry, who are coming from Fort Riley, Kansas, and with dashing experts in the saddle of our National Guard.

Big Basket Ball Squad at Columbia.

A squad of fifty freshman and 'Varsity candidates reported in the Columbia "gym." yesterday for the first basketball practice of the season. Twenty of these were out for the 'Varsity, but had to work with no special coach, it being impossible to obtain the services of A. Fisher as coach this year. It is still undecided as to who will act in that capacity, as C. O'Connell, '06, who was asked to take up the work, has declined.

WOMEN GOLFERS AS GUESTS.

William Fellowes Morgan Entertains British Party at Baltusrol.

English and Scotch women visiting in this country figured in informal play at the Baltusrol Golf Club yesterday. They were the guests of William Fellowes Morgan, who, in the evening, entertained the party at his home in Short Hills. So as to make things interesting handicap mixed foursomes were arranged in the afternoon, Miss Frances Teacher, the former Scottish champion, and the veteran James A. Tyng playing from scratch. Aggregate scores counted and the pair in question returned 191.

The lowest net total was 183, on the part of Miss J. Spurling and Reginald Ward, who were aided by a 13-stroke allowance. Miss Dorothy Campbell, the champion of two continents, teamed up with Mr. Morgan and they returned a card of 197, 8—189. Miss Stella Temple and H. W. Hatch had 200, 8—192.

Suits and Overcoats

For Men and Young Men

At

$20.00 & $25.00

Invite us to demonstrate why our garments more than justify our prices.

We can demonstrate it, and beyond all contention — especially in our suits and overcoats at twenty and twenty-five dollars.

We can demonstrate that the fabrics are wool, every thread, good, serviceable weaves and in patterns that are exclusive.

We can demonstrate that the models are abreast with if not ahead of the hour and that they find distinction without resorting to distortion.

We can demonstrate that the tailoring goes as far as head-and-hand can go—that it is expressive and that it holds permanent every line and curve of the garment.

We can demonstrate that our suits and overcoats offer more in the vital essentials than you have ever found in a garment at twenty or twenty-five dollars.

Invite us.

BANK CLEARINGS CLIMBING.

October's Total $15,666,044,711, or 29.5 Per Cent. Above Last Year.

Although there was one less business day in October and holidays in several important cities interfered with the volume of business, the bank clearings in that month continued the steady increase which has marked these statistics for several months. According to the figures compiled by Dun's Review, which covers 116 cities in the United States, the figures for October totaled $15,666,044,711, an increase of 29.5 per cent. compared with last year, and of 7.6 per cent. as compared with 1906, when business was very active. Dun's says:

> There are still losses at a few points compared with 1906, notably at New Orleans and San Francisco, at the former because of the phenomenally active cotton market in that year and at the latter because of conditions following the great fire. The difference or one business day will more than account for the trifling losses at Boston, Philadelphia, Pittsburg, and some smaller cities, compared with 1906. Exchanges at New York City were very large, and though stock market operations were active, the increase is principally due to the enormous volume of business transactions. Cities in New England make substantial increases, especially Providence, Worcester, Fall River, and Springfield, and at nearly all there are gains compared with 1906. In the Middle States Philadelphia and Pittsburg make larger returns than in last year, reflecting improvement in iron and kindred trades, and practically every other city reports an increase over all preceding years.

FOREIGN TRADE OPPORTUNITIES.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—The Daily Consular and Trade Report for to-morrow notes the following trade opportunities abroad. Further information regarding these may be obtained by addressing the Bureau of Manufactures, care of Department of Commerce and Labor, Washington, D. C., giving the number of the item referred to:

4,056. PANAMA CANAL SUPPLIES.—Sealed proposals in triplicate will be received at the office of the general purchasing officer of the Isthmian Canal Commission, Washington, for furnishing the following supplies: 1. Bids will be received till Nov. 5 to supply beds, chairs, refrigerators, mats, clothes, hampers, laundry bags, ticking, muslin, waiters' coats, napkins, thread, tent flies, rubber boots, leather belting, hose, hose nozzles, rubber valves, and gaskets, sheet brass, muntz metal, wire cable, open links, screws, bolt dies, diaphragm pumps, steam trap, portable forges, saws, tap wrenches, lawn mowers, sprinkling cans, station lamps, door catches, batteries &c. (Circular No. 541.) 2. Tenders are invited until Nov. 12 for furnishing pumping plant, anchors, pipe cutting machine, steel tubing, transformer oil, lumber, &c., (Circular No. 542.)

4,057. PULP WOOD.—A communication received from a Canadian business man states that he would like to get in touch with some American pulp manufacturers situated along the borders of Lake Ontario or Lake Erie, with a view of selling pulp wood standing on crown lands in Ontario.

4,058. SAFES AND VAULTS.—An American Consular officer in the United Kingdom reports that there is an attractive field in that country for the sale of American safes and vaults, but to obtain a foothold would require patience and a rather large preliminary expenditure in the way of rental, advertising, &c. The greatest demand by the average purchaser is for a small-sized safe, as vaults are usually built to meet the demands of the large corporations. He furnishes the names of an organization specially interested in finding openings for the sale of American manufactures, and suggests that correspondence on this subject be addressed to the same.

4,059. AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS AND MACHINERY.—A business man in Latin America advises one of the special agents of the Department of Commerce and Labor that he would like to correspond with American manufacturers of agricultural implements and machinery wishing to establish a general agency in that region for the sale of their products.

4,060. STATIONERY AND SCHOOL SUPPLIES.—A report has been received from an American Consular officer in the Far East, in which he states that the local Government and certain missions are rapidly extending their educational systems to all parts of the Kingdom, so that there is a demand for all classes of stationery and school supplies. As the English language is in general use, prices quoted, cost, insurance, and freight, in English terms, would serve the best purpose.

4,061. HAND GRINDING MILLS.—An American firm of import and export freight agents writes that it has an inquiry from Africa for family grist mills for export, and would like to get in touch with manufacturers of the same.

4,062. PINE TAR.—An American Consular officer in Africa reports that considerable business is done in his district in pine tar, and that the supply comes principally from Sweden. It is stated by importers that the most satisfactory manner of packing tar for export to that region is in large iron drums of about thirty gallons' capacity, as wooden casks do not prevent evaporation of the tar. One of the largest importers of this class of goods is very much interested in having quotations from American exporters.

4,063. FILING SYSTEMS AND OFFICE SUPPLIES.—An American Consular officer in a European country reports that there is an extensive field in his district for filing systems and office supplies, owing to the great number of offices of every description which are located there. He states however, that it would be preferable for firms contemplating building up a large business to send a personal representative to demonstrate the superiority of the goods in question.

Jersey Stays Diversion of Water.

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 1.—By the filing of a bill in the Court of Chancery to-day to stop the diversion of water in Hudson County to Staten Island all danger of a special session of the Legislature passed away. Even. Gov. Fort announced that he would not talk about a special session until after Wednesday. The Governor and Attorney General Wilson got an injunction restraining the work of piping in Hudson County, and the Hudson Water Company was required to show cause why it should not be perpetually enjoined from diverting water out of this State to Staten Island.

B. & O. COMBINES OFFICES.

Charles S. Wight Placed in Charge of Both Passenger and Freight Traffic.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 1.—Charles S. Wight has been made General Traffic Manager of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad Company. His former position, that of Freight Traffic Manager, and also the position filled by the late D. B. Martin as Passenger Traffic Manager, have been abolished, and all traffic management, both freight and passenger, placed under Mr. Wight. C. W. Bassett, General Passenger Agent East, and B. N. Austin, General Passenger Agent West, reporting direct to him.

Mr. Wight began his railroad career as a messenger boy in the service of the Little Miami, in Cincinnati. Subsequently going as a clerk with the People's Despatch in the same city, he thence passed in 1876 virtually to the Baltimore & Ohio service, becoming the west-bound agent for the Continental Line. Early in 1880 he was appointed Assistant General Freight Agent of the Trans-Ohio Divisions of the Baltimore & Ohio, with headquarters at Baltimore. Early in 1885 he was promoted to General Freight Agent, Trans-Ohio Divisions, and eleven years afterward was made Freight Traffic Manager of the Baltimore & Ohio system.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New High Records on Scanty News—Closes 1 to 20 Points Up.

Cotton developed sensational strength after a lower opening yesterday, and made new high records late in the day on a big general buying movement. Authorities could uncover no news factor to explain the further advance.

The opening was 7 to 12 points lower, and the active months sold 11 to 13 points net lower right after the call. From this there was at first a gradual rally. The close was firm at a net advance of 1 to 20 points. Memphis and Chicago houses were good buyers. New Orleans was closed yesterday, but will remain open to-day.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

WHEAT—Prices, after opening easy, moved within a narrow range, in absence of any aggressive operations yesterday. The opening decline followed easier Liverpool cables, larger world's exports than anticipated, especially from Russia, and favorable news regarding the growing crop in Argentina and Australia. The milling demand has fallen off recently, with a tendency to decrease premiums in the cash markets. American wheat is still above an export basis, and the business doing is principally in Manitoba, sales of about 18 loads being reported. The American visible supply, including Canada and the United States, showed an increase of 2,874,000 bushels for the week. Exports from American points amounted to 587,000 bushels, compared with 444,000 bushels last week and 562,000 bushels last year. Cash wheat in New York closed easy; No. 2 red, $1.27¾ asked, elevator, and $1.25¾ asked, free on board, to arrive; No. 1 Northern, Duluth, $1.14¼, and No. 2 hard Winter, $1.20¾, free on board, afloat, both nominal.

CORN—Values showed early yesterday, as the Western storm had spread over a large part of the belt, with heavy rains, unfavorable for the curing and moving of the new crop. Receipts of old and new corn continue moderate, and in the afternoon the market softened in sympathy with wheat. Cash corn in New York was easy, with No. 2 60¼c. nominal, elevator, domestic, 70c delivered, and 70c. free on board, afloat, all nominal; No. 2 yellow, 70¾c, nominal.

LATEST CUSTOMS RULINGS.

Wire Cloth Made from Bronze Wire Is Dutiable at 45 Per Cent.

Wire cloth made from bronze wire is held by the Board of United States General Appraisers to be entitled to enter this country under the tariff at the rate of 45 per cent. under the provision for manufactures of metal not specially provided for. The issue came before the board in the shape of a protest filed by James F. McCoy & Co., who objected to the assessment of 45 per cent. and 11¼ cents per pound as articles made from brass wire.

The decision finding in favor of the importer states that it appears from the official record in the case that the bronze wire cloth is not directly dutiable under the provisions of Paragraph 137. It is not apparent to the board how recourse can be had to Section 7, which is the similitude clause of the tariff, in order to make it dutiable, since the cloth is made of metal. The board says: "We hold the merchandise is dutiable under Paragraph 193 as claimed. The decision of the Collector is modified."

The board has reduced the duty imposed by the Customs House authorities on steel wedge bolts imported by the Michelin Tire Company, New York. Duty was assessed at 45 per cent. under the metal schedule, whereas the contention of the importer was that the merchandise should be admitted at 1½ cents a pound as "bolts of iron or steel."

Metal football boxes, which were returned for duty at 45 per cent. as manufactures in chief value of metal, are held by the board to be "toys," with a tax of 35 per cent. Knauth, Nachod & Kuhne are the importers.

BUSINESS TROUBLES.

MARGARETHA KOLB.—Schedules in the assignment of Margaretha Kolb, restaurant, 164 Pearl Street, show liabilities of $49,985, nominal assets of $74,198, and actual assets of $46,396.

P. L. FAVALE & CO.—P. L. Favale & Co., (Corporation,) importer of Italian wines, oils, and groceries 464 West Broadway, has made a settlement with creditors at 25 cents on the dollar cash, and Judge Holt has confirmed the composition. The liabilities were $22,345, and the assets $17,546.

ENTERPRISE HARDWARE CO.—The Enterprise Hardware Company, jobber in hardware at 71 West Broadway, has made an assignment to Isaac B. Reinhardt, the deed having been signed by Elias Kullman, President. The company was incorporated on May 20, 1908, with a capital stock of $5,000.

GAS POWER COMPANY.—Judge Hand has appointed Emil Goldmark receiver in bankruptcy for the Gas Power Company, 2 Rector Street, with a bond of $2,500, and he may in his discretion continue the business, as there are many contracts and pieces of work uncompleted. The liabilities are $15,000 and the assets $5,000.

SAMUEL HYMAN.—The petition in bankruptcy filed on Oct. 29 against Samuel Hyman, cap manufacturer, 83 Bleecker Street, has been amended so as to make it read Samuel Hyman, trading as T. Hyman, and also to include Tillie Hyman. It was stated that they had both disappeared from their place of business and their whereabouts were unknown. Very few assets are left.

MARTIN BURCKEL.—Martin Burckel, a saloon keeper at 35 East Eighth Street, has filed a petition in bankruptcy with liabilities of $10,212, and nominal assets of $4,480, consisting of fixtures, $4,000, covered by a chattel mortgage of $4,000; wines and liquors, $400; checks, $30, and deposit for gas, $50. The largest creditor is George Ehret, $5,450, partly secured by a chattel mortgage.

BRADFORD PUBLISHING COMPANY.—Schedules in bankruptcy of the Bradford Publishing Company, 154 Nassau Street, show liabilities of $30,999, and nominal assets of $3,520, consisting of stock, $401; accounts, $9,355, and notes, $64. Among the creditors are the Buyers' Index Publishing Company, $18,885; Roy Press, $4,644, secured; George F. Bradford, $1,004; William C. Wulp, $1,000, and Harry R. Hillard, $1,000.

COHN & LEHMAN.—Hyman Cohn, William Cohn, and Sam Lehman, who composed the firm of Cohn & Lehman, poultry dealers of 428 East 105th Street, have filed a petition in bankruptcy, with liabilities of $36,800, contracted in 1906, mostly for borrowed money, and no assets. Among the creditors are Victor H. Levene, $10,000; Bertha Cohn, $1,500; Adeline Cohn, $1,000; Henrietta Lehman, $2,000; Sam Levy, $3,500; Aaron Newmark, $3,000; Charles Adelson, $3,000, and Harry Goldberg, $10,000, damages for personal injuries.

ADAMS REPAIR COMPANY.—Judge Holt has appointed John V. Irwin receiver in bankruptcy for the Adams Repair Company, auto repairs, 244 West Forty-ninth Street, with a bond of $2,500, on application of the Peter A. Frasse Company, a creditor. It was stated that the company was under the direction and control of Morris C. Menges, who claims to be a large creditor, but who has no official connection with the company, and has been continuously receiving preferences on his indebtedness, and it was absolutely necessary to have a receiver appointed at once to protect the assets, as two judgments were obtained against the company yesterday.

SIGMUND LEINHARDT.—A meeting of creditors of Sigmund Leinhardt, manufacturing costumes and dresses, 56 and 58 West Twenty-second Street, was held yesterday at the Astor House, at which a settlement at 15 cents on the dollar was proposed and referred to a committee of creditors to examine and report. It was stated that his liabilities are $18,500 and the assets $4,500 equity in accounts and stock and equity of an unknown amount in two tenements which he bought for $86,000 on which there are mortgages of $70,000 and which now barely pay expenses. Some time ago the tenants struck, and he had to reduce rents, which were at first $10,000 a year and are now $7,000. He also lost $9,000 to $10,000 on samples in this business, which was a new one for him, having previously been in another line, where he was successful.

ELPERN BROTHERS & ALBERTS.—Elpern Brothers & Alberts, manufacturers of furs at 22 West Seventeenth Street, had two involuntary petitions in bankruptcy filed against them yesterday by creditors at about the same time. One was by the Wulfsohn Ganss Fur Company, $400; Otto Erler, $1,747, and H. F. Wagner, $1,380, who alleged preferential payments and removal of property. The other was by Philip Stein, $362; Morris Fechtelberg, $151, and Jacob Friedman, $151, who alleged removal of property and admission in writing of inability to pay debts. The partners are Jacob and Simon Elpern and Jacob L. Alberts, and the business was started in January, 1902. The liabilities are $13,000, and it is expected that an offer of settlement will be made at 25 or 30 cents on the dollar.

Discharges from Bankruptcy.

Judge Holt in the United States District Court yesterday granted discharges to these bankrupts:

LEOPOLD GASNER, importer of furs and ginseng, 29 East 10th Street, liabilities, $152,504.

B. FRIEDMAN & BROS., manufacturers of furs, 18 East Sixteenth Street, liabilities, $59,475.

W. E. ALLEN, 242 West Twentieth Street, formerly dairyman of Melton, Vt., liabilities, $10,852.

The Mortgage Behind the Bond

The integrity of the mortgage is of vital importance to every bondholder. In the case of an open mortgage bondholders should know what restrictions are placed upon future issues. If there be a sinking fund clause the issuing Company should not have the right to arbitrarily designate the numbers of the bonds to be paid off. The bonds should be drawn by lot by the Trustee, or in some other impartial manner.

Public Utility Bond Yielding About 4.80%

The authorized issue of these bonds is $30,000,000. The mortgage provides that beyond the first $5,000,000, additional bonds can be issued to the extent of only 80% of the cost of improvements made or property acquired. Moreover, when any part of the remaining $25,000,000 bonds are issued, the mortgage stipulates that the net earnings for the preceding year shall be equal to at least twice the amount of the annual interest on all bonds issued and to be issued.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Stocks Quiet and Strong—Call Money Rates, 3¾@5 Per Cent.

TRADING ON HOLIDAY SCALE

Coming Recess Reduces Attendance—German Bank Rate Unchanged—Bank of England Gets South African Gold.

Attendance on the floor of the Stock Exchange yesterday was much reduced by reason of the holiday to-day, a great many brokers having taken advantage of the opportunity to secure a three-day vacation. Dealings in stocks were in point of volume well under anything recorded in several weeks and the movement of prices was correspondingly narrow. As a whole the market was firm, with no features of weakness, and with numerous examples of considerable strength. New York Central, United States Steel, Rock Island shares and the various equipment stocks moved up easily, while Consolidated Gas overlopped gains elsewhere by its rise of nearly 3 points. The offered explanation for the course of Gas was that it related to the outcome at the polls to-day, but no answer was forthcoming to the very natural question of the exact character of this relationship. Copper stocks, Amalgamated Copper in particular, which had been the feature of recent markets, were quiet, but to take the place of the higher seasoned reports which have attended the advances in these shares of late there was the substantial news that one of the largest metal selling agencies had by means of a slight reduction in price closed out over 20,000,000 pounds of copper. General railroad earnings for the month of September continued to duplicate the excellent results of preceding months, Pennsylvania's statement noting a gain of no less than $1,755,000, while the returns of roads operating in Southern territory, including the Southern Railway, Atlantic Coast Line, and Louisville & Nashville, with their respective gains of $432,000, $270,000, and $283,000, reflected clearly the prosperous state of affairs in that important section of the country. Interest attached to the announcement by the Pennsylvania's Directors of an issue of some $80,000,000 of new stock, practically all the proceeds of which will go to meet maturing obligations. Greater significance attached to the statement made in connection with this announcement that the requirements of the property for 1910 will be practically cared for out of earnings. On the Cotton Exchange the day was marked by another outburst of speculative activity, with prices selling up to new high records.

A matter much commented on in connection with Saturday's bank return and which doubtless influenced the course of money yesterday was the failure of the statement to reflect in any way the reported returns of great quantities of American securities from London. That the liquidation by English investors of our securities as well as the placement of American finance bills with London bankers has been very much overestimated by critics here seems to have been proved by the investigation of inquiring bankers. Quotations for call money ran up to 5 per cent. just before the close of the day, but the bulk of the day's loans was made at not more than 4 per cent. The banks have lost rather heavily to the Sub-Treasury on routine transactions since Friday last, the amount standing at $3,471,000 yesterday morning, but the smaller requirements of the stock market provide an offset. The German Bank's return disclosed only seasonable changes and led to no increase in the institution's discount rate. The Bank of England secured without opposition $4,000,000 of African, gold.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

Gas as an Election Barometer.

It has always been Wall Street's opinion that a municipal campaign without great fluctuations in Consolidated Gas was like the play "Hamlet" with the Prince of Denmark left out. For several weeks, therefore, the present contest has been regarded as abnormal, owing to the indifferent course of Gas. Interborough-Metropolitan shares have displayed activity and fairly wide fluctuations on several occasions, but the sticklers for traditions refused to accept their performances as a substitute for similar demonstrations in the stock which they had come to look upon as the barometer of all local campaigns. Yesterday Consolidated Gas rose nearly 3 points on transactions of above 12,000 shares, and a sigh of relief went up from the old-timers. When they were asked whether this meant the defeat of Gaynor and the election of Bannard, or the defeat of both Bannard and Gaynor and the election of Hearst, or, finally, the election of Gaynor, they couldn't tell, but they were certain that the election could now properly be held.

Quarterly Dividends Popular.

In connection with the authorization of additional stock to the amount of some $80,000,000 by the Pennsylvania yesterday, the interesting announcement was made that the Pennsylvania had determined to adopt the system of quarterly dividend payments instead of the semi-annual distributions now made. Quarterly dividends were paid by the company in 1875 and 1877, but since the latter date the semi-annual form of payment has been followed. Traders on the Stock Exchange and investors in securities are at one in the opinion that quarterly dividends are preferable to other period payments. One of the developments looked for at the forthcoming meeting of the American Cotton Oil Company is the fixing of a semi-annual dividend by that company to take the place of the annual payment now made, and there can be little doubt that the understanding that such a change will be made in the Cotton Oil plan has had a good deal to do with the strength of the stock.

30,000,000 Pounds of Copper Sold.

Without calling forth contradiction of any sort the statement was made yesterday that the United Metals Selling Company had sold on Saturday 30,000,000 pounds of copper. This is looked upon as sufficient justification for the course of the company, which handles the products of the Amalgamated Copper and Cole-Ryan properties, in making concessions ranging from ⅛c to ¼c per pound. The reduction brought buyers into the market very promptly, and it is understood that contracts for further large amounts are as good as signed.

Grouse for J. P. Morgan's Staff.

A Wall Street man who insists that the odor of grouse is as familiar to him as that of cooking cabbage to most folks asserts that he detected the presence of grouse at the southeast corner of Wall and Broad Streets last Friday. An investigation into the possibilities of game of this kind roasting in that vicinity disclosed the fact that a fine basket of grouse made its way into the banking house of Morgan & Co. last week, having been shipped by J. P. Morgan, Jr., who has been shooting in the Highlands of Scotland for several weeks and whose intentions toward his fellow-partners in the banking house are plainly pacific.

Cotton Still Higher.

While new high records have become a commonplace in the cotton market, yesterday's performance has had the appearance of an object lesson to the few bears who have not ceased to feel for the top. After a hesitating opening the market followed recent form and went sharply up under the stimulation of heavy buying, March going to 15.10 and May to 15.15. During the rise there was little evidence of activity on the part of the recognized bear leaders, and whether accurately or not the market showed on the surface a large public business on the advance.

Betting Under Cover.

One of the features of the campaign has been the small amount of betting reported in the financial district. While it is acknowledged that this has been a season of slack interest in politics, notwithstanding the candidacy of a Wall Street man, the skeptics wonder, now that there is a legal ban on betting, how many of the reported wagers in the past which always carried with them the names of the Curb or Stock Exchange firms which acted as commissioners, represented real money. "Washing" is as effective in making election odds as in establishing the price of a Curb stock. Also, there was in the old days much free advertising to be had by telling stories of large bets placed, and then there was no comeback.

BOSTON STOCK MARKET.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Nov. 1.—Opening prices in the local market were strong and commission houses took considerable stock during the early part of the day. Greene-Cananea made a further advance to 11⅛, Butte Coalition to 28⅝, and Nevada to 25½, while the balance of the list was generally higher as a result of the early trading. The market closed steady at a slight recession all around.

PHILADELPHIA PRICES.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—The long-looked-for announcement on the new financing of the Pennsylvania Railroad, which has been the subject of pre-eminent interest in banking and Stock Exchange circles for weeks, was finally made public to-day, and although the stock allotment of 25 per cent. at par was more generous than had been expected, the stock declined slightly. An unwieldy short interest in Philadelphia Rapid Transit and Union Traction was made evident in the local market this morning. The price was quickly forced up a point in each case, reacting slightly later on. Rapid Transit sold down to 26, where several large blocks changed hands, but recovered and closed at 28½. Union Traction made a net gain of ¾ for the day. Cambria Steel was in good demand and advanced nearly a point at one time. Lehigh Valley shares held about level with last week's closing, while United Gas Improvement advanced slightly.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE.

Monday.

Trading attention on the Consolidated Stock Exchange concentrated to a considerable extent upon the specialties Holiday conditions prevailed most of the day so far as the standard list was concerned. While the total business—72,200 shares—was limited, the market was a broad one in respect to the number of different stocks that changed hands. In all, fifty-seven issues were traded in. United States Steel common again led the market in volume. It touched a low price in the early afternoon of 90⅝, against a low on the other board of 90¼.

MASTER'S SALE.

NOTICE OF SALE.
McCALL FERRY POWER COMPANY.
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that pursuant to a decree of foreclosure and sale made by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania on the 12th day of October, 1909, in a certain cause in equity between Knickerbocker Trust Company, Complainant, and McCall Ferry Power Company, Defendant, and decrees made in causes between the same parties by the Circuit Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York on the 15th day of October, 1909, and by the Circuit Court of the United States for the District of Maryland on the 20th day of October, 1909, the undersigned, Henry P. Brown, Special Master, will sell at public auction at the front door of the County Court House in the City of Lancaster, in the County of Lancaster, in the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, on Tuesday, the 7th day of December, 1909, at 12 o'clock M., all the property, both real and personal, described in the decree first above mentioned as owned by the McCall Ferry Power Company, including the dam, power house and hydraulic development in general of the McCall Ferry Power Company on the Susquehanna River, near McCall Ferry, in the Counties of Lancaster and York, Pennsylvania, with all the lands, water rights, rights to flow lands, structures, machinery, appliances, equipment and tools connected therewith or appurtenant thereto, and all shares of stock of any incorporated company, all promissory notes, bonds and obligations, all debts, claims and demands owing to the McCall Ferry Power Company, whether now due or hereafter to become due, all choses in possession and action, absolute or upon condition, vested or contingent, and all other property, real or personal, owned by the McCall Ferry Power Company, wheresoever the same may be situated. For a more particular description of the property to be sold reference is made to the said decrees.

Pursuant to the terms of said decrees no bid will be accepted by the Special Master at such sale until the bidder shall deposit with him, in money or by certified check upon some responsible bank, the sum of $10,000, and shall further deposit with him either the sum of $100,000 (in money or by certified check upon some responsible bank), or $200,000 in principal amount of bonds of the McCall Ferry Power Company secured by the mortage described in said decrees. After the sale shall be made by the Special Master in pursuance of this decree, he is required to report the same for confirmation. If any bid shall be accepted, and the person or persons making the same shall fail to comply with all the conditions of the sale and all orders which may be made in respect thereto, then the sums so deposited shall be forfeited and shall be applied to the expenses of resale or to costs, or to the payment of the bonds described in said decrees, as shall be ordered; but in case such bid shall be rejected, the deposit made by the bidder shall be returned to him. Such further portions of the purchase price shall be paid in money as said Courts shall from time to time direct, in order to meet the expenses of sale, and costs and allowances and claims which said Courts may adjudge to be prior in equity to the mortgage or deed of trust mentioned in said decrees, the right being reserved to resell the mortgaged property, rights and franchises upon the failure upon the part of the purchaser to comply within twenty days, with any order in that regard, and the balance of such purchase price shall be paid in money, or in bonds of the McCall Ferry Power Company secured by the mortgage described in said decrees, and the unpaid interest coupons thereof, at such price or value as the holders thereof would have been entitled to receive upon the distribution of the proceeds of said sale in case the entire amount had been paid in money. If registered bonds be used in payment, as aforesaid, they shall be endorsed and assigned in blank by the registered owner thereof.

For particulars other than those herein stated, reference is made to said decrees.
Dated October 22, 1909.

THINK IT SHOULD BE CLOSED

Cracks in the Walls Let in Daylight, and Judges Are in Fear of Their Lives.

Following a report made by consulting engineers on the state of the Criminal Court Building, Lafayette and Franklin Streets, to Borough President Ahearn last Friday, two engineers and an Inspector of the Building Department, after examining the building yesterday, admitted that it was at present so unsafe that immediate repairs costing about $200,000 would have to be made and the building temporarily abandoned.

For a long time to even occasional visitors in the building its shaky condition has been evident. In several places over doors, notably just above the bridge of sighs on the second mezzanine floor, daylight comes through rifts in the heavy walls. Workmen are continually busy strengthening with wooden joists the marble floors and arches where the stones have spread apart. Gas and water pipes have frequently burst through the settling of the building, telephone wires have snapped, and floors are often strewn with bits of plaster shaken from the ceiling.

Recently these fissures have been frequent. Some time ago there appeared one running from the ceiling of the mezzanine floor to the roof of the building that was so wide in places that a man could thrust his fist into it. Things have come to a point where the appearance of fresh fissures was hardly noted by those accustomed to the building.

Two weeks ago the Justices of Special Sessions, so it is understood, intimated to Superintendent of Public Buildings Voorhees that if something were not done soon they would take measures to hasten it.

Immediately after that Mr. Voorhees called in consultation Engineer Rudolph P. Miller of 527 Fifth Avenue. Mr. Voorhees says that he went with him through the building from top to bottom, and that Mr. Miller reported that there was apparently no immediate danger. Nevertheless, Mr. Voorhees asked him to make a report to the Borough President.

Before doing that Mr. Miller went through the building again with a brother engineer, Daniel Moran, and this second examination led to a change in his opinion. He made a report to the Borough President that brought yesterday's hasty examination. The result of that will be placed before the Borough President within a few days in the shape of a report.

Mr. Voorhees said that a modern foundation would probably be put in place of the old one of piles. That would necessitate, he admitted, a temporary evacuation of the building by the District Attorney and his staff, the five Courts of General Sessions, the branch of the Supreme Court, Special Sessions, the Tombs Magistrate's Court, and the five Coroners.

"Of course," said Mr. Voorhees, "the building is the most troublesome one in the city. It has to be repaired constantly. The worst trouble came from the settling of the building last Winter, when an eight-inch water pipe burst in the attic and flooded the building with three tanks full of water. Repairs after that cost $2,000.

"The building stands on land that used to be a swamp, and instead of the modern concrete foundations strengthened with steel, it was placed on piles driven into mud. The construction of the Subway under Lafayette Street started the trouble; that caused the draining of the water under the foundation, and this, with the after shaking of the trains rushing by, had its effect on the foundation.

"After that came the excavating for the new bridge subway loop under Centre Street. The detonations of blasting caused the building to go on settling, and brought further cracks in the floors and walls. But in the last few weeks we have watched the building and it appears to have settled little further."

The Judges, Assistant District Attorneys, and others who work in the building have been more nervous than ever lately. There have been ominous shakings and cracks in the wall hitherto unobserved. Several times gas pipes have burst, and the sudden snapping of telephone wires could only be accounted for by a shifting of the building.

Only yesterday, after the adjournment of the courts, Judges Swann, Crain, and O'Sullivan of General Sessions, went to the second mezzanine floor to look at the fissure zigzagging up the wall and the daylight shining through it.

A marble tablet on the wall of the main floor of the building, facing Centre Street, under and over which runs a long zigzag crack, says:

Criminal Courts Building, 1890-93. Cornerstone laid October 25th, 1890. Erected under the direction of the Commissioners of the Sinking Fund of the City of New York. Pursuant to Chapter 371, Laws of New York, 1887. Commissioners of the Sinking Fund—Hugh J. Grant, Mayor, 1890; Thomas F. Gilroy, Mayor, 1893; Frederick Smyth, Recorder; Theo. W. Myers, Controller; Ashbel P. Fitch, Controller; Richard Croker, Chamberlain, 1890; Thomas C. T. Crain, Chamberlain, 1891; Joseph J. O'Donohue, Chamberlain, 1893; Walton Storm, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen, 1890; Nicholas T. Brown, Chairman of the Finance Committee of the Board of Aldermen, 1893; Richard A. Stow, Deputy Controller's Secretary.

Another tablet across the hall reads:

Criminal Courts Building, 1890-1893. Constructed under the supervision of the Department of Public Works. Thomas F. Gilroy, Commissioner of Public Works, 1890; Michael T. Daly, Commissioner of Public Works, 1893; Arthur M. Thom, James W. Wilson, John P. Schaarschmidt, Associate Architects. Contractors, Dawson and Archer, Patrick K. Lantry, Jackson Arch Iron Works, Q. N. Evans Construction Company. the Mitchell-Vance Company, James Fay. Eugene L. McLean, Engineer of Finance Department. William G. Bergen, Superintendent of Department of Public Works.

Supt. Murphy said that he would have a statement to give out regarding the matter to-morrow.

WIFE'S DEATH LED TO SUICIDE.

Adolph Scheuber Killed Himself with Gas in a Lodging House.

Adolph Scheuber, of Rackensack, N. J., who with his two brothers, Edwin H. and Henry J. Scheuber, was in the real estate business with offices at 200 Hudson Street, committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in a rooming house at 482 Sixth Avenue last night. The man was identified by Dr. Clark F. Fletcher, an osteopath of 143 Sixty-ninth Street, whose business card was found in Scheuber's pocket.

A search of a wallet found in the room brought to light two newspaper clippings, one a poem entitled "A Dead Wife," written by Laura Jean Libby, and another, a poem, "Lips That Never Speak Again." A clipping in a pocket contained the advice, "A real hero is he who can bear his own troubles as stoically as he does those of his friends." On a finger Scheuber wore a diamond ring valued, according to the police, at $400.

Henry J. Scheuber said that his brother had become unnerved when his wife died. Scheuber was found when one of the lodgers smelled gas.

BIG MILL DEAL REPORTED.

Sale of Garner Properties Again Rumored, This Time to M. C. D. Borden.

Special to The New York Times.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Nov. 1.—It was said in the financial district in this city this afternoon that the American Printing Company, which is located here but owned by M. C. D. Borden of New York, had taken over the properties of the Garners. The consideration mentioned was $18,000,000. There have been numerous rumors of a sale of the printeries and mills owned by the Garners, but all have lacked official confirmation.

The Rockland Print Works of Haverstraw, N. Y., operating twenty-one machines, and the Dutchess Company of Wappinger's Falls, N. Y., with twenty-four machines, together with cloth mills connected with the Dutchess Print Works, compose the property of the Garners.

Special to The New York Times.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., Nov. 1.—No official statement could be procured to-night verifying the reported sale of the Dutchess Print Works at Wappingers Falls to M. C. D. Borden of New York. No news has been given out in Wappingers Falls of the sale, if it has taken place, although it would surprise no one, for it has been reported for weeks that the Garner properties were about to be transferred to a syndicate.

Color has been lent to the rumor by the fact that the Marquise de Breteuil and her sister, Lady Gordon Cumming, are now in New York. As these daughters of William T. Garner, the former owner of the print cloth mills in Wappingers Falls, Newburg, Garnersville, Pleasant Valley, and Cohoes, have never made a practice of visiting this country—in fact, it is some twenty years since their last call—their arrival this time is taken to indicate that their presence is needed on some urgent business matter connected with their large property interests.

The Trustees of the Garner estate several years ago divided a surplus of $4,000,000 among the three Garner daughters.

COTTON MILLS CURTAIL.

Plants at Lowell and Lawrence, Mass., Cut Down Working Schedule.

LOWELL, Mass., Nov. 1.—Five of the big cotton mill corporations in this city went on a curtailment schedule to-day, carrying out the vote of the Arkwright Club that 224 hours of working time be cut off before next August. Four of these—the Massachusetts, the Lawrence, the Hamilton, and the Merrimack—have ordered work to cease twenty-four minutes earlier each afternoon, five days a week. The Boott mills will cease work thirty minutes earlier each day, five days in the week. The Tremont and Suffolk mill will respond to a petition of its operatives and cut off two hours on each Saturday. The Appleton will not curtail at present.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Nov. 1.—Only two of the local cotton mills—the Everett and Pacific—announced a curtailment schedule to-day. At the Pacific the curtailment amounts to two hours a week, work starting twenty minutes later in the morning than usual.

COW DRAGS BOY TO DEATH.

While His Father Is Being Buried He Receives Mortal Injuries.

Charlie Bennett, 6 years old, died yesterday as the result of a peculiar accident which occurred on Friday at Northport, L. I. The boy's father, Frank Bennett, died some days ago, and his funeral was held on Friday. Mrs. Bennett was at the cemetery when the boy, in playing about in the roadway, caught a foot in a rope, to which a cow was tied. The cow became frightened and ran, dragging him after her.

Neighbors ran out and managed to catch the cow after a long chase, and then the boy was carried home, arriving before his mother returned from the burial of her husband. He lingered until yesterday morning.

H. C. LEA'S WILL PROBATED.

Estate of the Philadelphia Historian Amounts to Several Million Dollars.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—The will of Henry C. Lea, historian, was probated to-day. It disposed of an estate of several millions dollars in private bequests, with the exception of the testator's extensive library, which in great part will become the property, eventually, of the University of Pennsylvania.

Registrar C. Irwin granted testamentary letters to the testator's children, Nina Lee and Arthur H. Lea.

After providing a number of specific bequests for relatives, the will stipulates that the residue of the estate shall pass to the widow, Anna J. Lea, for life, the net income to be enjoyed by her without accountability. Upon the death of the widow the estate is to be divided equally between their children or issue of the latter per stirpes.

Besides real estate valued at upward of $2,300,000 Mr. Lea's return of personal property subject to taxation for this year was $480,000.

PENNSYLVANIA WILL INCREASE ITS STOCK

TO RAISE ABOUT $80,000,000

Funds Will Be Used to Meet $60,000,000 of Notes and $20,000,000 of Mortgage Bonds.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 1.—The Directors of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company to-day declared a stock allotment of 25 per cent. at par. After the meeting President McCrea said that this allotment would raise about $80,000,000, sufficient to meet the $60,000,000 of notes and $20,000,000 general mortgage bonds maturing during 1910, and that all improvements to the property, including the completion of the New York tunnel extension and any new equipment that the company may require during 1910, will be paid out of the surplus income and funds now in the treasury of the company.

The increase in the Pennsylvania's stock is the first large issue of new stock by the Pennsylvania since 1903, when $75,000,000 was offered to the shareholders for subscription at 120. That issue was underwritten between the time the offer was made to the shareholders and the date of subscription, and after the offer was made the price of the stock in the open market dropped below the price at which the new stock was offered. Conditions now are so much more favorable that the right to subscribe to the new stock at par was quoted yesterday at prices ranging from 7 to 9¼. The price of Pennsylvania stock itself stood at the close yesterday at 148¾.

At their meeting last March the stockholders of the road authorized the Directors to increase the company's indebtedness by $80,000,000 to provide for maturing obligations, including the $60,000,000 of notes which fall due next March, but the Directors' decision to do this financing by means of an issue of stock made any increase in the road's indebtedness unnecessary. By this transaction, in fact, the debt of the Pennsylvania will be reduced by a full $80,000,000, consisting of the $60,000,000 of notes and $20,000,000 of maturing bonds, both of which will be met out of the proceeds of this stock issue.

The Pennsylvania now has outstanding a little more than $316,000,000 of stock, and on this the 25 per cent. increase would amount to just about $80,000,000 of new stock, but the conversion of convertible bonds into stock before the period of subscription expires may increase the amount of new stock to be issued. Part of the road's convertible bonds, those maturing in 1912, are exchangeable into stock at 140, and the remainder of the bonds, which mature in 1915, are convertible at 150. The offer of this new stock is expected to stimulate the conversion of the bonds into the stock in order to profit by the right to subscribe to the new stock. The final result of this financing by the Pennsylvania, therefore, will be the substitution of stock for a large amount of funded debt, thus strengthening further the financial position of the company.

PASS STARCH BOND INTEREST.

Company Defaults on 6 Per Cent. First Mortgage Issue—Plans for Exchange.

The November interest on the 6 per cent. first mortgage bonds of the National Starch Company was defaulted yesterday at the Title Guarantee and Trust Company. All but $522,000 of the $2,843,000 issue of these bonds is held by the Corn Products Refining Company.

Efforts have been made by the minority holders since early in the Summer to get the holding company to make an exchange for the debenture bonds of that concern. It is expected that such an arrangement will be reached. No terms have yet been arranged at which the exchange will be made, although several meetings of the parties interested have been held.

WINNECKE'S COMET SEEN.

Observed in Argentina Oct. 31 at Midnight, Says Kiel Report.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 1.—A cablegram has been received at the Harvard College Observatory from Kiel, stating that Winnecke's comet was observed by Porro of La Plata, Argentina, on Oct. 31, about midnight, Greenwich time.

It was then in right ascension, 17 hours 11 minutes 51.6 seconds; declination, 27 degrees 18 minutes 43 seconds. The comet is visible in a small telescope.
